MCKENZIE BOXER CHRIS EDLIN FALLS IN CLOSE DECISION FOR WORLD TITLE

By Ernie Smothers

M

CKENZIE (August 10) — Two days after narrowly losing by decision to Colorado boxer Paul Soto in the Ringside Amateur Masters Adult Division World Championship title fight in Kansas City, Missouri, McKenzian Chris Edlin said, "I am proud to say that I gave everything I had in the title fight. I trained hard, put forth the effort, and gave it my all. In the end, the title fight was close. I've got to give credit to my opponent. Soto is a very experienced, good fighter with concussive striking skill. He nailed me with an overhand right in the first round that got my attention and connected with some hard body shots that ultimately ended up deciding the match in his favor. As the fight progressed I found my punching range and he began respecting my power by staying outside. It was a close finish."

He said, "When the final decision was rendered, I was initially disappointed in the call. Thankfully, my friend Will Radford of Huntingdon had made the trip to Kansas City and shared the right

City to Vote on Budget, Dependent Health Insurance

MCKENZIE — McKenzie City Council convenes Thursday, August 13, 7:00 p.m. to consider the final passage of the 2015-16 fiscal year budget and tax rate. One of the provisions of the budget, as originally presented, was to eliminate the co-pay for major medical insurance for dependents of city employees.

The Council will decide whether or not to participate in that dependent co-pay. The city pays 100 percent of the employees' health insurance coverage and 50 percent of the dependents' coverage. That applies to employees with tenures longer than two years. Dependents of employees hired within the last two years must pay 100 percent of their premiums.

In other business, the Council will be introduced to the new sergeants at McKenzie Police Department, make reappointments to the Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeal, and a new appointment to the McKenzie Housing Authority. They will also consider a lease with TNT Railcar Services and the City of McKenzie.

The meeting is open to the public.

Park Theatre Opening is Delayed

Because of delays in receiving the heating and cooling system and auditorium ceiling tiles for the newly renovated Park Theatre, "Southern Fried Funnies" is postponed until the grand opening of the theatre. It was scheduled this week as part of the Southern Fried Food and Sweet Tea Festival.

$10,000-$13,000 School Upgrades Approved

BRUCETON (August 19) — During the regular monthly meeting of the Hollow Rock-Bruceton Special School District Board of Education, board members approved the spending between $10,000-$13,000 for equipment upgrades to the school library and purchases of new chairs and tables for grades K-3.

Prior to approval, Duncan said, "I believe that these upgrades are needed. The library needs upgrading in order to provide students with the necessary tools to improve access to research materials. Library upgrades include 15 new laptop computers with carts and a retractable projection screen. Elementary school classroom upgrades include new chairs and desks. I recommend these upgrades."

The board approved TSBA-recommended changes to Policy 2.800-Expenditure of Funds; Policy 2.805-Purchasing; and Policy

6.4001-Student Surveys.

Prior to approval of changes, HRBSSD Director of Schools David Duncan explained the changes in the aforementioned policies to the board.

He said, "Policy 2.800's change calls for the director of schools to comply with all rules and regulations and implement federal grant expenditure procedures. The federal rules and regulations found in 2 C.F.R. 200 can be modified and included in the board's administrative procedures."

Duncan said that the change to Policy 2.805 requires district employees to meet the conflict of interest requirements of 2 C.F.R. Part 200. The change also explicitly requires that the director or designee ensure expenditures of federal grant funds are allowable and the time between transfer and disbursement of funds is minimized as addressed and recommended per Policy 2.800.

He added, "Policy 6.4001 Student Surveys, Analyses and Evaluations addresses TSBA-recommended changes relative to the collection of student data. The change basically outlines requirements for what can and can't be collected. Parent's rights are also detailed as well. Most of the changes are required via state law."

Duncan said that a new Collection Development Policy would be instituted for the library relative to collection of donations; number of books allowed per check-out; and procedures pertaining to controversial materials.

Duncan acknowledged the employment of Heather Sowell-middle school English; Tracy McArthur-middle school Social Studies; A.J. Overstreet-fourth grade; Chris Rich-middle school Social Studies; Julie Finley-second grade; Julie Kelley-third grade.

Veterans Placement Services Hosts Grand Opening

By Joel Washburn
washburn@mckenziebanner.com

MCKENZIE (August 7) — Veterans Placement Services in downtown McKenzie hosted a grand opening ceremony to mark the opening of the new employment placement services center to help veterans and their families.

Tracy Vinson, regional vice president, was excited to announce the first center (outside of Memphis) was in McKenzie, her hometown, as the company rolls out its expansion plans across Tennessee.

McKenzie is the area office for rural West Tennessee communities. Its mission is to match veterans with employers, who are seeking associates who are loyal, respectful, and honorable - traits instilled in them during their military service.

The office is located at 2356 Cedar Street across from Super Drugs and Lulu Belle's florist. The branch manager is Stacie Young, who is assisted by Hannah McCann. Office hours are 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday to Friday.

As part of the ribbon-cutting ceremony, National Guard soldiers

Britton McCann and Matt Warren placed the American and Tennessee flags in front of the gazebo in the downtown Veterans' Memorial Park. Remarks were made by Vinson, Mayor Jill Holland, county Mayor Kenny McBride, State Representative Andy Holt. Reverend Dennis Trull offered a prayer, asking God's blessings on the new business. Katie McGill sang The National Anthem.

Holt said that veterans and employment are two of the most important issues today, and that he was proud to welcome a company that makes a positive impact on both issues.

Mayor Jill Holland welcomed the new business to McKenzie while Mayor McBride said the county is seeking to develop a veterans' court, headed by Judge Larry Logan, to expedite the legal affairs of veterans.

A strong contingent of veterans, including representatives from the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4939 were in attendance to celebrate the opening of the new business.

After the brief ceremony in Veterans' Memorial Park, everyone was invited for the ribbon cutting ceremony at the offices, located just across the street. Vinson had the honor of cutting the ribbon to mark the second of many planned Veterans Placement Service offices across Tennessee. The next expansion will be in Jackson.

Following the ribbon cutting, everyone was invited to enjoy refreshments.

As folks gathered inside and welcomed the new business, Tracy Vinson told The Banner that she was extremely pleased to have Dianna Lankford in attendance. Dianna was her supervisor at another employment placement service. Mrs. Lankford, who now resides in Arkansas and is retired, said Tracy will do well because of her background in placement services and her love for veterans.

Tracy chose to live in McKenzie after the Memphis resident was widowed in the year 2000 with five children. The local community provided caring and support, so that's why she decided to rear her children in the rural community. Her children include: Britton McCann, 26, Jay McCann, 25, Neal McCann, 23, Ezekiel McCann, 21, Hannah McCann, 18, and Sophie Vinson, 10.

McKenzie Schools: Hard Work, Supportive Community Earns Exemplary Status

By Joel Washburn
washburn@mckenziebanner.com

MCKENZIE (August 4) — McKenzie Special School District is one of only 12 school districts in Tennessee to earn the Exemplary status for the 2014-15 school year. It is only one of two Tennessee systems to twice earn that distinction.

Members of the McKenzie Special School District Board of Education were told about the award during the Tuesday, August 4 meeting. Lynn Watkins, director of schools, said the award is because of some really hard work by talented people, a supportive community, a strong support staff, and hard-working students.

The award was given to area schools, McKenzie Special School District and Huntingdon Special School District, for meeting educational goals.

In other business, the Board administered the oath of office to Kelsey Spivey, a senior at McKenzie High School, who is the student representative to the Board. She will sit alongside board members and serve in an advisory, non-voting position. She is the daughter of Scott and Jennifer Spivey.

Also honored was Marie Hatcher, who retired from the food service department at MHS. Rita Brandon, director of the food service, said Marie has worked many years in two stints. She was known as "granny" after students started calling her that beloved name after her grandson was a student at MHS.

Three teachers were granted tenure. Kelly Simmons (Kindergarten teacher), Renee Hobson (Special Ed. Teacher), and Courtney Creasy Kee (Special Ed. Teacher) received the honor after meeting the goals of an overall excellence rankings of four or five (out of five) for the past two years and a minimum of five years experience.

Watkins said the school system received an IDEA grant of $61,340 to improve math, language arts in grades 3-8. Recently retired teacher Rhonda Chandler will administer the project to help train teachers. Additionally, the school will purchase 20 Chromebook laptop computers for each building. The grant can be renewed for possibly three to five years, said Watkins.

Board members approved four policy changes. The first involved "nepotism." The new policy reads, "If a member of the Board has a relative who is an employee in the system, prior to voting on any matter of business that may have an effect upon the employment of the relative, the member shall declare such relationship. In making such a declaration, the member shall certify that his/her vote on the pending matter will be in the best interest of the school system."

Two other policies concerned the dismissal practices of a non-tenured teacher and the procedure for granting tenure. Both policies had minor changes to conform to new state law.

The final policy change involved how grades are calculated for semester and final grades in the grades of 3,4,6,8,9, and 12.

In the Director's Report, Watkins said he accepted the resignation of teacher Alisa Fesmire, who moved to east Tennessee, and Marie Hatcher from the MHS cafeteria.

Beth (French) Mathis was hired to teach eighth grade math and Anna Shepherd to teach fourth grade.

MES educational assistants for the 2015-16 year include: Mallory Welch, Shalyn Priestley, Gina Harper, and Laurel Anderson.

Michelle Horton, a board member, remains at home under the care of hospice.

Tourism Commissioner Visits McKenzie

MCKENZIE (August 10) — Tourism generates $16.7 billion in direct impact in Tennessee each year. However, those are the figures released in October 2014, which are surpassed by the soon-to-be-released receipts. Kevin Triplett, commissioner of the Tennessee Department of Tourism Development was in McKenzie to speak about tourism and its impact on the state and local communities.

Held at the venue meeting venue, Connie's Place, in downtown McKenzie a representatives gathered from the city, county, industrial board, Southern Fried Food and Sweet Tea Festival committee members, Bethel University officials, mayors of Gleason and Huntingdon — Diana Poole and Dale Kelley, and representatives of the federal senators and representatives listened as the city hosted the event to learn how to improve tourism in the region.

Triplett said tourism is a regional affair, in which each community helps attract visitors to the region. The State of Tennessee is the partner for local communities. It supports the local effort, while providing the overall umbrella of the theme, "Soundtrack of America, Made in Tennessee."

Tennessee ranks 15th and 16th in economic impact as compared to other states' promotional budgets. There are 800 festivals in Tennessee annual—most have some musical entertainment associated with them.

Trip Advisor ranked Tennessee as one in five states to visit before Labor Day. Tennessee was the lone state in that list without a beach, said the commissioner.

The Department of Tourism Development will host three seminars in each of the nine state regions to help develop tourism.

When asked about McKenzie's ongoing efforts to attract tourist, Triplett said the city is doing some of the right things — refurbishing its theatre, updating its downtown square, and restoring its assets.

"It is not an overnight deal," said Triplett of tourism development, who said he would provide some financial numbers once those are released in the coming weeks.

Marty Mabry, who heads the West Tennessee effort for tourism development, said on a recent trip, she said people asked her to relate her good experiences on Trip Advisor and Facebook.

The commissioner's visit was in conjunction with this week's Southern Fried Food and Sweet Tea Festival.

strength of the Quorum brand. The spin-off is intended to be tax-free to Community Health Systems and its stockholders and is expected to be completed in the first quarter of 2016.

Quorum Health Corporation will be headquartered in middle Tennessee and will operate independently with its own board of directors and management team. It will include a diversified portfolio of 38 hospitals with an aggregate of 3,635 licensed beds across 16 states. The hospitals that will comprise Quorum Health Corporation have strong market positions and are primarily located in cities or counties having populations of 50,000 or less. In 84 percent of these markets, the hospital is the sole provider of acute care hospital services.

According to NewsWire,

the transaction creates a new healthcare company poised for growth. With an attractive portfolio of high-quality community hospitals, streamlined management structure and independent access to capital markets, Quorum Health Corporation is expected to have an enhanced ability to drive growth by capitalizing on acquisition opportunities consistent with its portfolio, developing facility specific operating strategies aligned with its community needs and better leveraging its management and consulting capabilities.

This significant transaction will realign our portfolio into two strong and focused companies that can respond to market demands with greater agility and that are better positioned to take advantage of growth opportunities, while creating additional value for our stockholders," said Wayne T. Smith, chairman and chief executive officer of Community Health Systems, Inc. "Over the past 30 years, Community Health Systems has evolved from a collection of smaller hospitals into a much more complex and diversified portfolio of hospitals, outpatient services, and healthcare systems across the country. We know how important hospitals are to their communities and recognize that smaller facilities have distinct opportunities and different challenges than those in larger markets, where the majority of our assets are located."

Smith continued, "This transaction will allow Quorum Health Corporation's hospitals to focus on the changes in the healthcare delivery system, which are different in smaller community hospitals than in our larger and more urbanized markets. At the same time, the transaction will facilitate a sharper focus on the hospitals that are retained by Community Health Systems, especially in high-opportunity markets and in areas where we are building regional healthcare networks."

Amendment 1 was placed on the ballot by the Tennessee General Assembly in two separate votes. It was sponsored by U.S. Rep. Diane Black (R-6), who was a state senator at the time of introduction, and State Sen. Mae Beavers (R-17) as Senate Joint Resolution 127.

Plaintiffs contend that the method the state used to count election results for Amendment 1 was unconstitutional and violated Section 3 of Article XI of the Tennessee Constitution, which reads that amendments must be approved "by a majority of all the citizens of the state voting for governor, voting in their favor." The state, according to the plaintiffs, only checked that the total number of votes in favor of the

Dr. Foust Joins HCMC in Podiatry

PARIS — Henry County Medical Center is pleased to announce that Lindsay Foust, DPM, Podiatry has signed her contract to practice medicine and join the medical staff in December 2015, establishing her practice at Henry County Orthopaedic Surgery and Sports Medicine.

Dr. Foust, a native of Paris, attended Murray State University for her undergraduate degree and received her Doctor of Podiatric Medicine from Kent State University College of Podiatric Medicine. She did her Podiatric Surgical Residencies at Alliance Community Hospital in Alliance, OH and Summa Western Reserve Hospital in Cuyahoga Fall, OH. She comes to Paris from Kentucky/Indiana Foot and Ankle Specialists where she was a foot and ankle surgeon and clinician. She also has a passion for wound care and plans to offer this in her practice.

She and her husband Marshall, who is also from Paris, along with their two year old daughter Annabelle, will be moving to Paris in October and begin practicing in December. She and Marshall are expecting a baby boy and they want to get settled and adjusted before she begins her practice in Paris.

"It has always been my goal to come back to Paris and we finally have been given that opportunity," said Dr. Foust. "I hope to make Paris and Henry County proud."

In their spare time, Dr. Foust and her husband enjoy traveling and being outdoors. They also enjoy spending time with their daughter and can't wait to be closer to family.

words of encouragement to help me put things in perspective. Soto and I hugged after the fight and he complimented me on my tough jab. We gave each other a lot of respect. The fight was over, and you leave it in the ring. All of us that reach the position of fighting at the highest level understand what it takes to get there. We train hard, and we know the risk that awaits fighters every time we step into the ring. It is not for everybody. But...we love boxing. The sport has been very good to me."

Edlin said that the moment the ring announcer called his name over the P.A., the hair raised up on the back of his neck.

He said, "When they called my name and said that I was from McKenzie, Tennessee; it really got my adrenaline pumping. I came into this fight very prepared. In fact, when I weighed in at 119 pounds, I garnered the distinction of being the lightest registered boxer in the world in the over 40 age category. Due to my weight, I ended up fighting one fight—the championship bout with Soto. So many fighters, trainers and fans of boxing talked to me during the week and were amazed how fit I was to be 53. No doubt about it, I was ready physically and mentally to compete."

Asked what his future intentions were in boxing, Edlin replied, "I think I'm finally through competing inside the ring. I have been fortunate to fight for two world championships, box successfully in Golden Gloves, and coach boxers, but I think my time in the ring is over. The last few months of training became an intense grind for me kind of like a job. I had to maintain such a strict regimen over my diet while conditioning and sparring. It was a tough process to go through. The great unbeaten heavyweight champ Rocky Marciano said 'You will box for as long as you can stand it,' and he was right. I've given my all to fighting, and the experience was amazing. Now, it's time for other things."

He concluded, "The whole week in Kansas City was great, but I found myself really missing home. I am very proud to be from Carroll County. There is no better place on earth than our home. I just want to say that I am thankful to all the folks who have called and wished me well and supported me throughout. I am so grateful to the kids at Henry County Boxing Club that sparred with me and pushed me to be my best. Coach Derek Moon at Henry County Boxing Club is an amazing coach and a true friend. He had me ready to go. I am just glad to be back in Carroll County so that I can visit with my family and play with my one-year-old grandson, Ethan. God has truly blessed me in more ways than I could ever mention, and I am thankful to Him for that."

Edlin said that he is prayerfully considering a future endeavor in coaching the "Sweet Science", but there is nothing definitive on the horizon.

He said, "To coach boxing takes total commitment. It takes money to purchase the right equipment. In addition, a person has to commit to long hours of training fighters in the gym and traveling with them to competitions. I will leave my future steps to the Lord. He will show me the way."

Half-baked By Clayburn Peeples

Back in the long ago, early Elvis days when I was in high school, we had a couple of teachers who would assign debate topics to write about every now and then, and it seems like every time, one of the topics would be, "should there be federal aid to education?" Unbelievably, there was none then, and every time the subject was argued, the main objection, and the one which usually carried the day, was that if local schools took money from the federal government, then sooner or later the federal government would be running the schools, dictating everything from what teachers taught to what foods were used in cafeterias.

I thought about how that prophecy had come true the other night as I was making cookies for a bake sale related event our church youth group was having.

Freedom of religion still exists today, mostly, at least, the federal government hasn't banned church bake sales, or regulated them to death, but that's just what some people complain it has done to school bake sales.

The culprit, according to critics of bake sales, is calories. Calories and trans fats, and with as many as 40% of American children being obese, salty, sugary and fat laden offerings of most bake sales are, at best, not helpful. We should protect our children, they say, by not allowing bake sales by school organizations.

So goes the argument, anyway, with cautionary warnings concerning food-borne illnesses thrown in as a chaser.

Over the last decade, several places, notably New York City and California, have put restrictions on the sale of home-baked goods at school functions during school hours. Then along came the Healthy Hunger Free Kids Act of 2010, a pet project of First Lady Michelle Obama, which compelled all schools receiving federal assistance to restrict student food choices according to federal nutritional standards set by the Department of Agriculture.

And not just in the lunch room. The act, still being phased in, also covers bake sales, and essentially prohibits the majority of items sold at them due to the act's limit on calories, sodium, sugar and fat content. All of the yummy fun stuff, in other words, like cookies, cakes, fried pies, donuts and homemade candy, fail to comply, so they are out.

The Department suggests that school groups offer fruit cups, granola bars and fresh fruit and veggie snacks instead, and that food centered school activities like cakewalks be replaced with book walks.

Good luck with all that. To be certain, the law allows states to authorize a certain number of noncomplying days, days when the good stuff can in fact be sold, and Tennessee has set that number pretty high by national standards, 30, but many school officials and school organization supporters fear 30 is not enough, and that critical bake sale income will still be lost as a result.

Others are angry just on principle. "So what if cupcakes are not healthful," they say, "we, not Washington, should decide whether our kids eat them or not."

Still others fear, with some reason, that the anti-cupcake crowd has its sights set on a total ban on unhealthy foods from all school related events, even ball games and band competitions.

So why not just ignore the federal regulation, you might ask. Well, the reason is that a school district can be fined thousands of dollars, and one already has been, for not being in compliance. So don't be surprised if school bake sales aren't as sweet in the future as they used to be.

Who would have thought bake sale offerings would become subjects of political controversy, but they have. Conservatives, not surprisingly, say people should decide for themselves what they're going to eat; liberals think otherwise.

And calories aren't the only controversial items on bake sale menus. Various groups have taken to using them to make political statements. A college Young Americans for Freedom organization in California, had an Affirmative Action Bake Sale at which they charged different amounts of money to different racial and ethnic groups, their purpose being to highlight what they saw as the unfairness of affirmative action.

Needless to say, they were met with a storm of protest and criticism, just as did the democrat student group in Utah that held a Gender Equality Bake Sale in which they charged female students 77 cents for cupcakes for which they required men to pay a dollar. This to illustrate the unfairness of the claimed pay gap between men and women in America.

And finally there is the recently concluded Get Baked Sale in California, San Francisco, of course, the first bake sale to offer marijuana edibles such as pot brownies and cookies, cannabis infused fortune cookies, mini donuts and ice cream as well as gourmet cannabis macaroons, all competing for the coveted San Francisco High Times Cannabis Cup.

Only medical marijuana is legal in California at this time, but that didn't dampen the enthusiasm of the crowd, and local police didn't even bother to patrol the event.

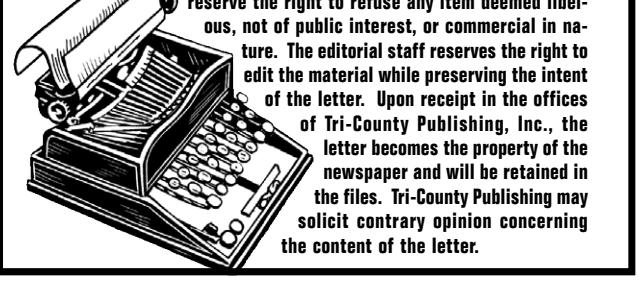

So we've come to the point where we are legalizing marijuana and turning chocolate chip cookies into contraband.

As Charlie Brown used to say, "Good grief!"

Hunker Down with Kes

We Learned More Than We Meant To!

The worst thing about going back to school every August was...well, going back to school. The excitement relating to "learning" waned for me about half way into the first spelling bee in the second grade. You remember this one; the girls lined up on one side, the boys on the other. They had Anne Alexander, Betsy Dinwiddie, Suzie Cozart and Diana Morris... We had Reggie Lawrence, Bobby Brewer, Ricky Hale and Buddy Wiggleton.

You talk about a stacked deck! They were smarter. They tried a lot harder. They took the whole enlightening thing more seriously than us...especially at that particular moment in our educational careers. And the fact that us guys couldn't spell hen with a chicken leg stuck in our mouth didn't help our chances one bit!

You tell me where the joy was in that! We lost one hundred and twenty-two spelling bees in a row. I'm pretty sure that is a record that still stands to this day! If it hadn't a'been for lunch, recess and the rare time one of us got to go outside and dust the erasers, school would have been a complete bust.

Now, was it necessary? Absolutely. Was there really any other choice? Absolutely not! Did we all understand that from a very early age? Absolutely and completely!

Did any of that matter when the opening bell rang in August summoning us back to those cold brick walls housing the nondescript classrooms with the big chalk boards and hard wood floors? Not really.

Understanding the necessity of something and liking it are often times worlds apart.

I think it boiled down in those elementary years to whether we wanted to be at the baseball field roaming wild and free or held against our will in the Red Bird reading class trying to pronounce galoshes, haberdasher and Nacogdoches, Texas. We were swinging on a grape vine across the big ditch behind George Sexton's house one minute...and the next we were being made to get the point on the "p" just a little higher up than the normal letters in writing class. Our "formal" education jerked us away from the R. C. Colas we were enjoying on the front steps of Woodrow Kennon's Grocery Store.

No wonder we took a frog to class from time to time. Or rolled a steel ball bearing across the aforementioned hard wood floors when Miss Belle went in the cloak room to check on Hollis Mayo. Or dropped a pet tarantula down the back of Vicki Fields' blouse to see how high she could jump. Or stuck clay balls to the light fixtures and waited for them to melt and fall into someone's peanut butter and jelly sandwich.

We figured using our imaginations, exercising some independent thinking and setting up a few weird "cause and effect" scenarios was sure to get us recognized and rewarded by our teacher. Well, it got us recognized anyway.....

We kidded about "being in prison" or "like cattle led to the slaughter". And we kept waiting for the "big event" to befall us. You know, like all the knowledge in the world would just plop into our minds one day. It was along about the fifth grade when Ricky pointed out that this whole "educational thing" might take a little longer than we first envisioned.

Of course, as it turns out, learning in any shape, form or fashion is always more of a process than a colossal happening! And I think it works pretty much the same for the smart ones as well as the ones not so quick on the uptake...it just "comes in" on different levels.

And somewhere along about junior high it dawns on you that this learning curve ain't never going to stop. Nor should it.

Me and Buddy, Ricky and Bobby complained as much as ever. But by high school there wasn't much conviction to it. We maybe didn't understand why we were taking typing, charting all kinds of things on x and y bar graphs or figuring out the ever popular square root of four hundred and fifty-seven but we were convinced it would help us "somewhere down life's winding path".

At least our lives were moving faster than those folks on their way to Canterbury. I don't reckon they ever made it. Every time they'd start to move out....somebody would stop and tell another story! We hated the "Old English" style it was written in. We hated memorizing the Prologue to Chaucer's epic. We fussed, protested and made known abroad our discontent with the subject matter. The fact that I'm writing about it fifty years after the fact...and you know exactly what I'm talking about, speaks volumes for the educational process.

I remember studying Beowulf, diagramming a sentence with two dangling participles and reading about the six soldiers that raised the flag on Iwo Jima in the same day. That, I reckon, is about the best learning I ever did in such a short period of time! ...unless you count that morning Vicki hit her head on the ceiling after figuring out what exactly was crawling across her back.

Respectfully,
Kes

There Will Never Be Another Mrs. Bullock! Paula Watkins

I was preparing to cut out a pattern the other day, and knocked over my box of pins. The first words to come out of my mouth were, "Oh lord! Mrs. Bullock!"

That woman had to have danced all over Heaven if she observed my pins rolling everywhere. I began thinking about my home economics class and had to chuckle to myself. Experiences from that year began to surface as I tried to find the pins that were all over the floor. Getting down on my all-fours was a lot harder than the task seemed to be some fifty-plus years ago. And to add insult to injury, I tilted my machine to get the pins that had rolled under the sewing machine only to have the thread fall off the spool holder and roll, and roll, and roll! I rewrapped thread for what seemed to be fifteen minutes. I started throw the dang thing in the garbage, but I didn't have another spool in that color. By that time, I seemed to sense Mrs. Bullock's presence along with her peers as they laughed me.

If Mrs. Bullock had blood pressure problems, I am sure I was one of the causes. Learning to sew, cook, and to have good manners certainly did not seem to be a necessary requirement for growing up. But take home economics, we did! Every girl marched across the parking lot to the latest and best home economics department our school system could afford. We had a "parlor", a small classroom, a kitchen and the sewing dungeon. We were uptown! And you would "do good" as your mother commanded because every girl would become homemaker.

But back to Paula's perils in the home ec. class. Another problem that contributed to Mrs. Bullock's long year was my habit of whistling. I, when sewing, would whistle softly to myself while I sewed. She should have let well enough alone and been thankful I was not stirring up conversations all around the room. But no! – she asked or perhaps I should say directed that I do not whistle in class. "A whistling woman and a cackling hen always come to some bad end!" she quoted to me. I couldn't decide if she was going to wring my neck like a chicken's or if she was predicting my future. At any rate, that became the chant for the remainder of the year with our class.

And then we were allowed to enter the hallowed kitchen. Nothing would do but to learn to make biscuits and popovers. I did take to that segment of home ec. a lot better than the sewing. I did like eating – still do as you well know. I tried hard to stir just the right amount of times to make sure that the popover would have a small hole in the center when they came out of the oven piping hot and ready for real butter or jelly. I'm not sure why there was such a production about serving the popovers unless it was to ensure we would use the proper knife and plate. You did good on this one, Mrs. Bullock. I can still smell those biscuits and popovers. I didn't take a lot of interest in the taffy. That took too long to pull and then to cool before we could sample the finished product.

One of the most lasting pieces of advice Mrs. Bullock shared with our class was the proper way to dress so as to make a good impression on those we would meet. We would go to the beautiful full-length mirror in the parlor and Mrs. Bullock asked each one to stand in front of the mirror for a personal inspection. "Now, turn around, and look at your backside," she would direct. Your skirt or dress would need to hang so as not to be too tight. "And never leave home without checking your hair; and do not put on so much rouge as to call attention to yourself!" At that point in my education I began to wonder if Mrs. Bullock was married.

I look around today and wonder if our young sweet ladies would benefit from home economics. I am thoroughly convinced that some portion of that class would be of great assistance. And yes, I still turn to see if my attire looks as it should before leaving the house. I look and I wonder how many of you still give yourself that last little bit of a going-over. The problem is this: when I turn around and glance over my shoulder, it has become very, very depressing! Oh well, Mrs. Bullock – you deserve the last laugh!

TCAT-McKenzie Constructs Eiffel Tower Replica

There's a new Eiffel Tower replica outside the front doors of the W.G. Rhea Public Library, thanks to Tennessee College of Applied Technology at McKenzie and the City of Paris Public Works Department.

Connie McSwain, Director of Library, said TCAT-McKenzie agreed to take on the project of building an eight-foot tall Eiffel Tower for the Library. Mike Ogden, a welding student at TCAT-McKenzie did hours of research on the real tower in France, including the architecture and the history. After doing that research, students realized in order to have a better scale, they should build the tower 14 feet high as opposed to eight feet high. Public works crews from the city of Paris helped install the tower right outside the main entrance to the Library.

Those who spearheaded the project included Dr. Brad White, TCAT Director, John Penn Ridgeway, Assistant Director at TCAT-McKenzie, and Jimmy Kee, Welding Instructor at TCAT-McKenzie. Others included James Tucker, TCAT-McKenzie Machine Tool Technology Instructor (retired), Kila Palmer, maintenance, and welding students Keeanu Cox, Donald Pitman, and Mike Ogden. The project required 25 sticks of $\frac{1}{4}$ HR round which equals 500 feet. Each piece was hand cut and TIG was used to join the pieces together. It took the students 180 man hours to build the tower and it stands 174 inches from base to top. At the top of the tower is an American Flag donated by McEvoy Funeral home.

Ms. McSwain said the replica tower should be just another attraction for the community and visitors when they come to Paris. She said they are already planning a fundraiser around the tower called Locks of Love. Locks are available to purchase at the Library to lock your love on the fence surrounding the tower. The idea for this came from a story and program in France where people purchase a lock then take a boat ride to the river lock on the Seine River and, upon reaching the water lock, place their lock to symbolize locking their love and throw the key into the river. TCAT McKenzie Welding student, Mike Ogden, was the first to purchase a Lock of Love and place it on the fence surrounding the Eiffel Tower. His lock is in memory of his mother who passed away during the creation of the Eiffel Tower. Jimmy Kee and John Penn Ridgeway followed suite, engraving and placing their locks on the fence.

TCAT-McKenzie was honored to be asked to help with this project. A reception and formal unveiling of the tower was held August 7th, 2015.

In fourth period action, the Tigers of Hollow Rock-Bruceton battled the Camden Middle School Lions, and McKenzie JV faced-off against Paris JV.

In the final quarter of action, McKenzie Middle School squared off against Paris Inman in 70-yard field scrimmage, including simulated 30-yard punts.

Q2: USJ JV 8, Martin JV 6

Martin jumped on the scoreboard late in the first frame via a fourth and two, 32-yard sideline scoring dash by Marquize Taylor. The Panthers' two-point conversion pass attempt fell incomplete as Martin led, 6-0.

Storming back, USJ knotted the score early in the second quarter as a Bruin receiver nabbed a deflected pass and bulled his way to paydirt. USJ took the lead for good on the ensuing play as a Bruin runningback chased down a fumble and eluded Panther defenders left side to score.

On the next play, Martin runningback Marquize Taylor sailed right side 40-yards to score. However, a holding penalty negated the go-ahead touchdown. From there, USJ JV's defense tallied consecutive quarterback sacks before sacking the Panther quarterback on fourth and long to force the ball over on downs.

Responding, Martin's defensive line netted back-to-back quarterback sacks as time expired with the Bruins capturing a tough, 8-6 win.

Q3: Mustangs 24, Lions 0

Dresden's Quea Taylor opened the contest with two three-yard gains before Huntingdon's defenders sacked the Lion quarterback for a two-yard loss, stopped Taylor for no gain, tackled the Lion quarterback for a loss of one, and added a loss of three to force the ball over on downs.

On the next play, Huntingdon speedster Dejan Robinson energized the Mustang faithful by taking the pitch right side and blazing 40 yards to paydirt. Mustang Brandon Lawton powered leftside to add the two-point conversion as Huntingdon led Dresden, 8-0.

Responding, Lion quarterback Zach Crawford completed a pass to the Mustang 35. Taylor bulled to the 31 before exploding up the middle on fourth-and-one to move the chains at the Mustangs 24.

Following a rush for no gain, Taylor fought for a first down at the Mustang 20. On the next play, Dresden was penalized five yards as a Lion lineman jumped prior to the snap. Counting of four and five yards before erupting right side to move the chains at the Dresden 23. Mustang Malek Cannon raced left side to the 16 before netting a first down at the Dresden 9. With time dwindling in the contest, Mustang Blake Bradley raced up the middle to score. Jager Taylor added the two-point conversion leftside as the Mustangs earned a dominating, 24-0 win over Dresden.

Q3: Martin Panthers 22, West Carroll 8

West Carroll controlled the ball first, but two fruitless runs and two incompletions turned things over.

Martin struck quickly with a touchdown run on the first play and completed the two-point conversion for an 8-0 lead.

West Carroll once again went four-and-out on their second possession.

Martin's second attack began with a 15-yard run. Two plays later, the Panthers were threatening with another first down near the red zone. A fumble stifled the drive on the next snap as War Eagle Jeremiah Bryant smothered the ball.

West Carroll's third drive began with Bryant running for nine yards. The Panther BRUCETON (August 7) — As temperatures and tempers soared, the Hollow Rock-Bruceton Central Tigers narrowly defeated the vastly-improved Greenfield Yellowjackets, 3-2.

On the first play of the scrimmage Tiger speed merchant Zayveon Johnson erupted through a gap in the Central line and raced 60 yards to paydirt.

Greenfield, fueled by quarterback John David Ricketts responded with a combination of run and pass to net a pair of first downs before turning the ball over on downs.

Central coupled the passing of Chase Bratton to Josh Gentry and Logan Belew with inside rushes by Johnson and Tiger Isaiah Donald scores for Central.

Bethel University Undergraduates Begin Fall 2015 Semester August 17

MCKENZIE — Bethel University's fall 2015 semester for traditional undergraduate students will begin Monday, Aug. 17 on the school's McKenzie campus.

Incoming freshmen arrive this week and take part in orientation beginning on Thursday, Aug. 18.

"We have close to 400 incoming freshmen this year," said Tina Hodges, Dean of Enrollment for Bethel's College of Arts and Sciences. "We are excited because our incoming traditional undergraduate freshman numbers are up from last year."

Hodges said that continued registration makes it difficult at this point to determine overall enrollment numbers.

Many returning students have already moved in to prepare for fall.

We have several hundred students who are already here and taking part in fall sports and in Renaissance practice camps," said Peggy Carter, Director of Residence Life.

Freshman orientation will include sessions with STAR Leaders who will help students learn about campus life. Orientation will also include motivational speakers, a dance, movies, a freshman carnival on Saturday, Aug. 15 and a chapel service on Sunday morning, Aug. 16.

Classes begin Monday, Aug. 17, but traditional undergraduate registration for fall semester will continue through Friday, Aug. 21. To inquire about enrollment in Bethel, contact the College of Arts and Sciences Office of Enrollment Services at 844-497-0265 or at admissions@bethelu.edu.

County Approves Changes To Personnel Policy

The county of Carroll's personnel policy was slightly modified Monday in effort to reduce its workers' compensation insurance premiums.

With the changes, the county is expected to save $11,500 annually as a result of a addition of pre-employment drug screening for all new hires. The change mostly affects clerical, office personnel.

All associates in the Sheriff's Department and the Highway Department were already subject to the pre-screenings. All associates must also submit to drug screen in case of workplace accident and all employees in safety-sensitive positions are subject to random drug screens.

In other business, the commission approved the appointment of Commissioner Willie Huffman to the Carroll County E911 Board with a term ending January 2017.

The quarterly report of the Carroll County Indigent Care Board was approved. The balance of the trust fund is $3,172,932. The fund paid Baptist Memorial Hospital-Huntingdon $24,933.38 in the first quarter of 2015.

Gleason Resident Victim Of House-Washing Ruse

GLEASON (July 29) — An elderly Gleason woman was the victim of a ruse by 49-year-old Clarence Worley. According to a report by Investigator Randall McGowan, the man offered to wash her vinyl siding for $300, but no more than $1,000 if additional chemicals were needed to complete the job.

On July 27, one-half of the work was complete when the man presented her a bill for $4,800. Fearing for her safety, the lady, who authorities did not identify for her own safety, paid the man. He promptly took the check to the bank and cashed it.

He is additionally wanted in Carlisle County. His business partner might be younger man, possibly Hispanic. They were in a light silver colored pickup truck. Anyone with information, please contact the Weakley County Sheriff's Department.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
