VACCINES, COVID-19

Weighing the Risks

BY BRITTANY MARTIN

banner@mckenziebanner.com

NASHVILLE (January 18) — Tennessee is making great progress in rapidly vaccinating those at highest-risk of serious illness and death from COVID-19.

The state received its first shipments of the Pfizer-BioN-Tech and Moderna COVID-19 vaccines mid-December 2020. Within the last four weeks, more than 221,000 people in the state have received vaccinations, and the Tennessee Department of Health (TDH) is distributing COVID-19 vaccinations as rapidly as supplies are received from the federal government.

The TDH released regular updates to the vaccination schedule and county-level data is available from local health departments.

As of January 18, Carroll County had limited vaccines available and is currently serving: 1a1, 1a2, 1b, and 75 years and older groups. Henry and Weakley counties had no vaccines available. Should availability change ties are currently serving: 1a1, 1a2, 1b and 75 years and older Phase 1a1 including long-term health facilities, first responders, staff of long-term facilities 1a2 includes funeral and mortuary staff, out-patient health care workers; 1 b is school and childcare staff; 1c is high-risk comorbidities 16 years and older; 2a/b is critical infrastructure - social services, commercial agriculture, corrections staff, and public transport staff; and phase 3 is congregate living, grocery workers, corrections residents.

What does that mean? How do I know which phase of the vaccine schedule I'm in? Do I want to get vaccinated? Getting vaccinated for any disease is a decision that is best made after arming yourself with factual, upto-date information.

Research is still ongoing on COVID-19 as well as the effects vaccines will have on a small percentage of people with underlving conditions.

The information presented in this article was gathered from sources such as the Tennessee Department of Health (TDH), Centers for Disease Control (CDC), U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), World Health Organization (WHO) local health facilities and others.

There is a lot of information available from the sources mentioned; to learn more, visit their respective websites.

Please talk to your healthcare provider about specific concerns or health conditions.

What is the difference between Influenza (Flu) and COVID-19? Influenza (Flu) and COVID-19 are both contagious respiratory illnesses, but they are caused by different viruses. Coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) is caused by infection with a new coronavirus (called SARS-CoV-2), and flu is caused by infection with influenza viruses.

What are the symptoms of COVID-19? COVID-19 has a wide range of symptoms (mild to severe). Symptoms may appear 2-14 days after exposure to the virus. Symptoms may include: Fever or chills; cough; shortness of breath or difficulty breathing; fatigue; muscle or body aches; headache; new loss of taste or smell; sore throat; congestion or runny nose; nausea or vomiting; and/or diarrhea. CDC will continue to update this list as we learn more about COVID-19.

General COVID-19 Vaccine Questions

What can I do to prevent getting COVID-19 until I can get the vaccine? Practice social distancing, wear a mask when around others, wash your hands, avoid being around others who are sick. For more information about protecting yourself and others visit the CDC website.

Why should I consider getting a COVID-19 vaccine? Getting a COVID-19 vaccine is the best and safest way to become immune to COVID-19. Getting the vaccine will help your immune system build protection against the virus in case you are exposed in the future. Even though catching the virus may be another way to build protection, this is dangerous because you could get very sick or even die. You can also spread the virus to others when you are sick. The COVID-19 vaccines cannot give you COVID-19 and are a safe way to become protected from

If I tested positive for COVID-19 in the past, do I need to get the COVID-19 vaccine? According to the CDC, people who have already been diagnosed with COVID-19 in the last 90 days may choose to delay getting the vaccine because getting sick with COVID-19 again is unlikely during that time. However, there is no harm in getting the vaccine if you have already had COVID-19. You may also choose to wait to get the vaccine in order to allow those who are more high-risk to be vaccinated.

If the vaccine is a two-dose vaccine, how will I know when to get the second dose? When you receive the vaccine you will receive a card with the date of your first dose, the name/ manufacturer of the vaccine received and the date on which you should receive your second dose. Your second dose of COVID-19 vaccine must be from the same product name/manufacturer as the first dose. We recommend when you receive your card, take a picture as a back-up, add the date to your calendar, and download the V-safe app. The V-safe app can remind you when it's time to receive your second dose.

Go to https://www.cdc.gov/ coronavirus/2019-ncov/vaccines/ safety/vsafe.html, to learn more about the V-safe app. How long do I have to wait between receiving the flu vaccine (or any other vaccine) and the Pfizer or Moderna COVID-19 vaccine? According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the Pfizer and Moderna vaccine series should be given alone with a minimum time of 14 days before or after any other vaccines. If the Pfizer COVID-19 vaccine is given within 14 days of another vaccine by mistake, doses do not need to be repeated for either vaccine. After I receive the COVID-19 vaccine, can I stop wearing a mask? No. It will still be important to continue to follow public health recommendations to protect yourself and others. This includes wearing a mask, staying at least 6 feet away from others, avoiding crowds and washing hands often.

Do I need to quarantine after exposure to a case after I've been fully vaccinated? Given the currently limited information on how much the COVID-19 vaccines may reduce transmission in the general population and how long protection lasts, people who have received the vaccine should continue to follow all current guidance to protect themselves and others. This includes wearing a mask. staying at least 6 feet away from others, avoiding crowds, washing hands often, following CDC travel guidance, following quarantine guidance after an exposure to someone with COVID-19, and following any applicable workplace or school guidance, including guidance related to personal protective equipment use or SARS-CoV-2 testing.

If I get symptoms shortly after I've been vaccinated, should I get tested? If you have symptoms shortly after receiving the vaccine, these symptoms do not mean you have developed COVID-19 from the vaccine. You may have some side effects, which are normal signs that your body is building protection. These side effects may feel like flu and may even affect your ability to do daily activities, but they should go away in a few days. For more information about symptoms after receiving the vaccine you can view the CDC's What to Expect after Getting a COVID-19 Vaccine fact sheet.

I have heard the Pfizer vaccine is not recommended for children under the age of 16 and the Moderna vaccine is not recommended for children under the age of 18. Will children have the option to be vaccinated? The FDA has issued emergency use authorization for Pfizer and Moderna COVID-19 vaccines, but there are other COVID-19 vaccines in development. A clear timeframe is not known at this time for when children will be recommended to get the vaccine. Pfizer added children under the age of 12 to their clinical trials in November, so we hope to learn more about this sometime next vear as clinical trials progress.

McKENZIE (January 14) Twenty-nine graves of unknown persons were recently located in the historic Shiloh Cemetery. located at the intersection of State Route 423 and Carroll Lake the whole cemetery. The survey began November 11 and finished on November 13, 2020. It detected any disturbance in the ground.

According to Geomodel's website, recent interments (1 to 50 years old) generally produce very distinct grave anomalies in the GPR profile and are most easily detected. Older graves (50 to 200 years old or more) produce less distinct or minimal anomalies and are more difficult to detect. Remains of burials are easier to locate in sandy soils that do not contain tree roots or rocks. The motion was approved unanimously.

A motion was approved to seek bids for lawn care service for the next fiscal year, July 1, 2021 through June 30, 2022.

There was a lengthy discussion on contracting out janitorial services. There was a general consensus that additional janitorial staff was needed, at least at the junior-senior high. Members acknowledged the pros and cons of contract services while praising the work of the staff currently serving the three schools. Ultimately, members agreed to let Director Williams explore options and take action.

Several board policy updates were approved on first reading. Notable was an update to provide additional COVID-19 days to employees. Board members agreed to finalize that update on just one reading, while the rest will require the usual second reading. One update regarding interrogations and searches was delayed until input can be sought from the school resource officer.

In his monthly updates to the board, Director Williams relayed that the district would receive a second round of federal COVID-19 relief funds. The second payment is both larger and more flexible than the firstround payment. The schools received $234,000 last spring, while the new amount is $1.38 million.

Trezevant Seeks Grant for Sewer Improvements

BY JOEL WASHBURN

washburn@mckenziebanner.com

TREZEVANT (January 12) — The City of Trezevant is seeking a $600,000 state grant with $42,000 in local granting funds to make repairs to the city's wastewater

Jeff Goad said the grant will help the city make needed repairs to the system. He noted the city's water and wastewater system has the necessary funds to pay the local share if the city is successful in obtaining the grant.

Goad also said the state's water/ wastewater financing board offers to provide a free water/sewer rate study for the city. After the city encountered a financial loss for two consecutive years, the city must find a way through rate increases to attain a positive net profit to avoid the state from establishing the water/sewer rates for the city.

Speeding and disregarding stop signs was also a topic of discussion. Sonya Bullington said motorists disregard the four-way stop in the area of Crooked and Bryant streets. She noted many children play in that area. Another resident said motorists speed along Clearview Street. A discussion centered on adding speed bumps, however, Police Chief Mike Mulligan said the city could bear some liability in case of damage to motorists' cars. The Municipal Technical Advisory Service has not provide clear guidance on the use of speed bumps, said the chief. Another discussion centered around adding rumble strips to alert motorist of an upcoming stop sign.

Alderwoman Pam Joyner was assigned to conduct a study to determine how other cities, such as Atwood are using speeding bumps.

The city agreed to contract with Ronnie Cooper to remove debris from an old Hillsman homeplace on S. Borad Street and now owned by the city. Both Cooper and Carl Knight provided quotes of $5,500 for the services. The city agreed to use Cooper because of a history of service between Cooper and

The city increased its allocation of funds from $5,000 to $10,000 to purchase a used pickup truck or van for the fire department. The current 1980s model is in disrepair. Alderman Eddie Granger said he was unable to find a truck for $5,000 or less. The truck is needed to haul firefighting equipment and dispatching with each fire call.

Alderman Mark Argo said the city's new jetter to clear clogged sewer lines, and a camera for inspection of sewer lines arrived and is now in use.

Granger said the addition of one truck bay to the fire department on State Route 105 is coming along nicely. The board approved adding three LED security lights to the front of the station. The cost is $768 installed by the contractors, who will remove and replace two older lights. The board also agreed to add gravel to the entrance of the new bay. Mayor Blaylock hopes to work with the county to provide and haul the

A land parcel, adjacent to the fire department and owned by Don Barger was also discussed to possibly purchase it for the city. The parcel has a building, which could be used by the department. Granger is to report back to the board next month concerning a possible purchase price.

An unnamed lane behind 53 Park Street was named T. Willie Lane during the meeting. It named in memory of Richard T. Willie Adkisson.

and on a resolution to annex. The council passed Resolution 21-001 to apply for CDBG Small Cities Block Grant Funds. The CDBG grants are 80/20 matching grants and will go towards McKenzie's wastewater improvements.

In other business, the council agreed to the sale of the former Impressions building located at 15 Broadway. Taylor Nichols and her husband provided the City of McKenzie with a business plan along with a bid for $3,500. The burn-out building has sat vacant since December 2012. The Nichols plan to open their business, Tie This Creations, a t-shirt and gift

The city provided the young couple with an incentive plan hoping to expedite returning the building to the tax roster. The incentive states the couple has a year to complete building renovations and open before the building is deeded to the Nichols. The calendar year would begin March 2021 and run to March 2022. If they finish the renovation by October 1, 2021, the cost of the building would be reduced to $1.000 allowing them to use the $2,500 for further enhancements to the building.

Mrs. Louise Scates was honored with a mayoral proclamation recognizing her 100th birthday. She was born January 11, 1921, in Trezevant to William McKinley Yates and Nina Rebecca Yancey. She graduated from Trezevant High School and attended Bethel College. On December 6, 1940, she married Ira Scates, Jr.

Louise worked for the City of McKenzie for 30 years. After retiring she began working for Millers Jewelers in McKenzie. She is a member of First Baptist Church and is still active in the church and politics. She attributes her longevity to her family; her mother lived to be 102 and her grandmother was 103.

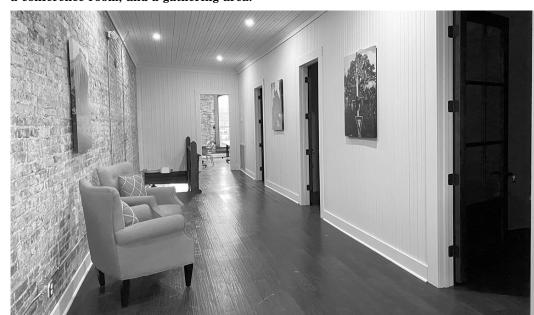

During department reports, department supervisors provided the council with status updates. For December, the fire department responded to 19 calls two of which were residential/structure fires. The police department received 1110 calls for the month; 604 were security checks, 139 were investigations (10-43), 86 were vehicle stops, 26 were for theft, and 21 related to vehicle incidents or crashes.

The next meeting of the City of McKenzie Board of Mayor and Council is February 11 at 6 p.m.

Gary Simmons, chairman of the Board of Directors of the McKenzie Industrial Board said the new co-working space is a super opportunity for McKenzie, especially those budding entrepreneurs, who are eager to start a business. It provides an opportunity to start a business with daily, weekly or monthly access. It offers those without high-speed internet or an office to have a place to work and meet. Jackson, Nashville, Dyersburg all have similar co-working spaces, which have become really popular, said

Simmons. This Friday, the public has the opportunity to participate in a ribbon cutting and open house celebration. Heath said the a limited number of persons can participate in individual tours throughout the day to achieve social distancing during the COVID-19 pandemic. One can phone 731-352-2004 or email mckenzieindustry@ gmail.com to schedule a tour. What visitors will see are four private offices for longterm rent, individual work desks for daily use, two conference rooms for short-term rent by business and industry, a kitchen area and handicap-accessible restrooms. The original brick adorns the interior walls along with railroad-style decor and photographs of the railroad by Alivia Green and Christian Nunnery. The audio-visual equipment in the conference rooms have internet and the big-screen televisions have the necessary interface connectors for all type of training and internet training. The rent includes all utilities, internet and wi-fi access, and 24/7 access for some level of renters. The facility will have controlled access at the entry point and it will have surveillance by security cameras.

Visitors can rent workspace by the day. Heath said the facility cannot be rented for social events, such as baby showers. The first event in the facility was a Christmas pop-up market.

The project was beseiged with setbacks, such as the entire roof blowing off and flooding the building. An unplanned new roof and new ceiling slowed the progress, but certainly enhanced the longevity of the facility. The building also unexpected had to be totally rewired to meet current electrical codes.

Heath said local contractors and suppliers provided the supplies for construction. Suppliers and contractors included: Construction Solutions of McKenzie, Trevathan Electric, A-Plus Heating and Cooling, Carroll County Lumber, Bennett Hardware, Armour Siding and Windows, Williams Furniture and Merchants Outlet Mall, Howard Happy, represented by Candy Lowe of McKenzie, Elliott Signs of McLemoresville, David Gordon Roofing, and Nikolas Heath, who performed much of the demolition.

Heath estimates the project costs $250,000, which was funded, by a grant from TVA, Tennessee Economic and Community Development, some insurance proceeds, and the McKenzie Industrial Board.

1968 All Over Again

s 2021 began, I couldn't help but hope some of the tension and hostility within the United States would subside. I am not one to editorialize, nor will I use this article to preach that my beliefs should be the gospel for all to follow. As a matter of history, I see 2020 and 2021 setting itself in the pages of time to resemble 1968.

Reflective of 1968, we are in a time where there is too much strife and social unrest. With social media serving as the mouthpiece for the malcontents, too often individuals are posting every thought in their head without weighing the consequences of our words. For those who were alive in 1968, imagine the hostilities that would have erupted if social media was available. With COVID-19 taking a hold in our everyday lives and political divisions are magnified, we are in a time where not only democracy but humanity is being tested.

I am staying clear of voicing my political opinion and affiliation because it has no place in this news medium or historical recitation. What I would like to do with this week's page is simply tell a synopsis of 1968 and tie in a little McKenzie history where possible.

1968 was a pivotal and promising time for the United States, but there was a wave of social unrest not accounted for the previous year. 1967 was a year filled with good and bad; the Doors had their debut album, Muhammid

At Least Let's Hope Not the draft, Thurgood Marshall was appointed to the Supreme Court, the Detroit race riots, draft card burnings, and the

to the U.S. Constitution. The underlying condition of the anti-war movement over Vietnam and the ever-shifting tide of the Civil Rights Movement left the door open for a hotbed of civil dissonance. Increased protests coupled with a pair of assassinations changed the United States forever.

In late January 1968, deep in Southeast Asia, North Vietnamese troops attacked more than 100 cities and outposts in South Vietnam. U.S. forces were able to hold off the series of attacks but the public's opinion turned further towards the negative on American involvement in the conflict. By the end of March, President Lydon Johnson began limiting bombing runs on North Vietnam and announced he would not seek re-election.

By April 3, a demonstration against the war was known as the National draft-card turn-in day. It consisted of about 1,000 draft cards being turned in. In Boston, Massachusetts 15,000 protesters watched 235 men turn in their draft cards.

Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. joined in the Anti-Vietnam War sentiment. At the Washington National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., March 31, 1968, Dr. King said that he was "convinced that [Vietnam] is one of the most unjust wars that has ever been fought in the history problems he saw plaguing the nation: racism, poverty and the war in Vietnam.

Dr. King's battle against racism, poverty and the war would proved fatal. Early February 1968, Memphis African-American city sanitation workers were on strike. On March 28, 1968, Dr. King participated in a march that turned violent. In response to the violence, Memphis Mayor Henry Loeb declared martial law with 4000 Tennessee National Guardsmen sent to the city.

On April 3, he was back in Memphis attempting to organize a more peaceful march.

The following day, he was assassinated on the balcony at the Lorraine Motel. 30 minutes after the assassination, the McKenzie National Guard unit was activated and ordered to report to Memphis. The guard unit had completed training on riot control.

Georgia Governor Lester Maddox referred to Dr. King as "an enemy of our country" and threatened to "personally raise" the state capitol flag back from half-staff.

Nearly two weeks after the assassination of Dr. King, Mayor Loeb broke the strike agreeing to negotiations that included union recognition and wage increases. Additional strikes were threatened before the City of Memphis honored the agreement.

On June 5/6, 1968, presidential candidate Robert Kennedy was assassinated by Sirhan Sirhan. Kennedy had just won the Democratic Primary in California. With Johnson not seeking re-election and Bobby Kennedy out of the running, the presidential nomination for the Democrats was wide open.

During the Democratic National Convention in Chicago Sunday, August 25, a couple thousand police officers wearing riot gear, helmets and gas masks lined up at Lincoln Park. Some threw tear gas into the crowd. Over 650 protesters were arrested during the convention. Over 100 protesters were treated at area hospitals. It was reported that 192 police officers were injured and 49 required medical treatment. A group later known as the Chicago Seven, were charged with conspiracy and crossing state lines to incite a riot and brought to trial.

The violence at the convention did nothing to unit an already divided political party. Democrat Humbert Humphrey received the party nomination for president. Earlier in the month, the Republicans nominated Richard Nixon. The 1968 election was narrowly won by Nixon. He was later re-elected in 1972 and the rest as they say is history.

The gist of the 1968 tale is this; we had a rough 2020 let's not make 2021 any worse than it has to be. It is time we as a nation work for unity. Too often we, day, but who or what will perish? Hays State University in 2011.

James Earl Ray, a Missouri prison escapee, sought under the ilias Eric Starvo Galt in connection with the gunshot slaying of civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., is one of the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives." FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover ordered the special addition of Ray to the "Top Ten" list to insure videoproad discominition of Pay to the "Top Ten" list to insure widespread dissemination of Ray's photograph and description to speed his location.

Ray has been intensively sought since the murder of Dr. King on April 4, 1968, as he stood on the balcony of a Memphis, Tennessee, motel. An exhaustive FBI fingerprint search, comparing latent fingerprints uncovered in the Dr. King case against fingerprints of over 53,000 persons on whom wanted notices were posted determined that Galt and Ray are identical.

A Federal warrant, issued at Birmingham, Alabama, on Apri 17, 1968, charges Ray, under the alias of Galt, with conspiring to interfere with a Constitutional Right of a citizen. Ray, who escaped on April 23, 1967, from the Missouri State Penitentiary, is also sought for unlawful flight to avoid confinement for robbery His long criminal record also includes convictions for burglary and foreign Lts. HUNKER DOWN WITH KES

Baseball, Hot Dogs, Apple Pie And...

You can't hardly mess up corn-

If it's a bit undercooked, you can grin and pour a little extra syrup over it. If it got left on the stove too long, just scrape off the bottom and enjoy from the middle up. Made from scratch is best. But there are mixes out there that are way better than "just tolerable".

And when you think of the confusion, misgivings and unpredictable things "baking" in the world around us today, it's a staple to hang on to!

I've eaten it in regular triangles, I've had it in squares, Mom had a cast iron skillet specifically molded to turn out six torpedo shaped pones, I've eaten it with a fork, I've picked it up with both hands and shoveled in mouthfuls, I've put my arms behind my back and leaned down and eaten it like a donkey, I've crumbled it up in a glass of milk and had it for dessert, I've eaten it with green eggs and ham, Sam I am.

It was a great conversation piece. Leon, me and David Mark had running arguments at meals over the best way to make hot water cornbread, whether hoe/ cake was one word or two and if it actually contained real corn. Cornbread was often an interactive meal. If Dad went to answer the phone and Mom turned to set something on the stove, I ducked a wadded up handful Leon hurled toward my left temple.

Cornbread is one of the most versatile foods on the planet.

As a kid growing up in the greatest little village in West Tennessee we only ate it at three meals each day. And I know for dead certain positive we were

If we were playing ball in that vacant lot beside Ricky Hale's house and it got lunch time, Miss Anita would call us in for a bowl of pinto beans and cornbread. If it was "kick the can" as dark was falling on Richard and Linda Gregg's house, we'd go in and feast on cornbread and pinto beans.....do you see a theme here? When we hauled hay for Mr. Dwayne Melton, he demanded we start at first light. He'd come out to the barn where we'd gathered up with a sack of cornbread "leftover" from breakfast.

Cornbread eats well with most everything from hard boiled eggs to a spinach casserole. It goes great with a sweet potato. It compliments lima beans and black eyed peas. It's especially good with cabbage. And I don't know have many mornings I ate it right by itself....and went out to face the day, happy, full and content.

But it was invented to eat with the aforementioned pinto beans and, of course, turnip greens

A lot of folks back then apparently thought these three items constituted all seven food groups! I kid you not. We ate them so often we turned it into an art form. You could have a bowl of beans and the cornbread on the side. Or you could pile the beans on your plate and use the cornbread as a backstop.

My favorite way was to open a piping hot slice of cornbread and pour the beans on top, take a fork and mash it altogether so you created a whole new entity. We'd pour ketchup on top and eat it like it was steak.

Mom would put the turnip night and we'd eat it the "old fashion" way. The next night she would put the greens on top of the cornbread and you'd eat a "haystack". The following night she'd slice the cornbread, pile in a heaping amount of greens and we'd have a "turnip green sandwich". Leon, being the oldest and greens beside the cornbread one smartest brother, after about three years commented, "You guys know, it's still just cornbread and turnip greens no matter how she dresses it up!"

I think the high demand for cornbread might have correlated with the price. It was way cheaper than a loaf of Colonial, Sunbeam or Wonder Bread. We called that stuff "light bread". You couldn't mix it with pinto beans worth a darn. And a cooked-right pot of turnip greens would have melted the weak fiber.

We mostly used light bread to make those peanut butter and banana sandwiches we'd take to school. We'd have twenty minutes for lunch. I'd spend the first part of it trying to convince Suzie Cozart to trade me her cornbread and apple for my

I was going to tell you about the camping trip accident where the fire under the cornbread erupted and set the woods ablaze. And you've got to hear about the fight that broke out at the American Legion Hall over the outcome of the cornbread baking contest.

But right now I've got a fresh batch coming out of the oven! Gastronomically Yours,

House Republicans Approve TennCare Waiver

Tandy Darby, R-Greenfield, today announced Tennessee House Republicans passed HJR0018, a resolution approving the waiver for Tennessee's shared savings proposal from the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS).

The waiver amendment is the first of its kind in the nation. The proposal rewards Tennessee for its efficient fiscal management and gives the state the ability to better administer TennCare from within Tennessee.

The shared savings plan allows Tennessee to keep a share of underutilized federal funds to be reinvested in health-related services for TennCare enrollees. These enhanced programs include prioritizing maternal health, serving additional needy populations, eliminating the waitlist for intellectual and developmental disability services, and addressing other state-specific public health crises.

This proposal gives Tennessee more control over Tenn-Care, ensuring a higher quality of care and more efficient services for the approximate 1.4 million Tennesseans enrolled in the program. With the shared savings, TennCare will have excellent patient care.

The process to approve the proposed waiver began in 2019, when the Tennessee General Assembly passed HB1280 directing the governor to submit the waiver amendment and negotiate with CMS. The agreement will be implemented by Tenn-Care upon approval, concluded the press release.

The Tennessee Justice Center released the following statement written by Michele Johnson, executive director.

'It is tragic that, in the middle of a deadly pandemic, our legislators have rushed to adopt this crass political gimmick. It distracts from their continued refusal to let 300,000 working Tennesseans receive the federally funded health coverage that former Governor Haslam's plan would provide. Not a single other states has sought a block grant, and the nation's most respected patient advocacy organizations all oppose it. The block grant puts at risk the health of the 1.4 million Tennesseans, including half of our children and two-thirds of our nursing home residents, who rely on TennCare. This is a dark moment for our state," concluded the TJC statement.

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

BY BRAD SAM

McKENZIE (January 14) — McKenzie High School senior golf standout Johnathan Moore signed with Bethel University Golf Thursday in a ceremony in the MHS theatre, joined by family, coaches, teammates and Principal Kelly Spivey welcomed all and congratulated Moore on his decision and his accomplishments.

MHS Golf Head Coach Larry Joe Smith said Moore "fulfilled everything we expected... continuing the good tradition we've established in sending players to the next level."

Smith was recently named head coach of the Bethel Women's Golf program and will assist with the men's team as well. He told The Banner, "Johnathan's been a tremendous success. He's earned many honors and recognitions. I'm excited that I'll still have a hand in coaching him at the collegiate level.'

John Austin, the new head coach of the Bethel Men's Golf program, said of Moore, "I've seen him play since middle school, and he played with my son Ben for two years. I saw his progress and his good performance at the state tournament. I'm confident he can definitely contribute to the Wildcats as a freshman."

Moore told The Banner he loves golf because it requires patience and it's a peaceful game ("at times," he added with a laugh). He said he love to be competitive.

He said he chose Bethel to remain close to home and because he knows Coach Austin. He said he's seen the program improving in recent years.

Moore said he's loved being a Rebel because, "We don't like losing." Of his teammates, he said they've always worked hard and done the best they could.

He is undecided on a college
