Blackburn Congratulates Tennessee Ranking Fifth for Business Growth

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Senator Marsha Blackburn (R-Tenn.) celebrates Tennessee ranking fifth in America's Top States for Business. This is the Volunteer State's first appearance in the top five for the CNBC report evaluating state competitiveness and economic growth among other metrics.

"The Volunteer State's well-deserved rank in America's Top States for Business is the result of decades of policies to foster business development, including my fight against the Tennessee state income tax," said Senator Blackburn. "People are fleeing Democrat-run disasters like California in droves because of the overflow of opportunity resulting from fiscally conservative leadership. Thank you to the lawmakers, business owners, and families who continue to make Tennessee a great haven for growth."

The first place state was Virginia, headed by Governor Ralph Northam, a Democrat. Virginia is the repeat winner. Second was North Carolina, headed by Governor Roy Cooper, a Democrat. Third was Utah, headed by Governor Spencer Cox, a Republican; and fourth was Texas, headed by Governor Greg Abbott, a Republican.

Mexico, U.S. and Canada. Bright said Tennessee is a pay-as-you-go state as it concerns its transportation system. The roadway is now funded for paving, which marks one of the final steps to open the region. I-69 will connect with State Route 22 (US-51) in Union City. Carroll Countians will have four-lane access to I-69 along State Route 22. I-69 is an integral part of High Priority Corridor 18 across mid-America. Corridor 18 originated with the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 (ISTEA), where the U.S. Congress designated certain highway corridors of national significance to be included in the National Highway System. I-69 currently exists from the Michigan/Canada border to the northeast side of Indianapolis, Indiana. Congress passed legislation to extend the corridor from Indianapolis to the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Development of the proposed I-69 corridor would provide a continuous highway link, designed to interstate highway standards, from the Mexican border to the Canadian border, a route length of approximately 1,650 miles. The extension of the corridor incorporates several elements, including a new interstate route (I-69) that will serve Memphis, Tennessee. The proposed route has been divided into multiple segments, three of which impact the state of Tennessee. The three Tennessee sections include: Segment 7 (Fulton, Kentucky to Dyersburg, Tenn.), Segment 8 (Dyersburg to Millington), Segment 9 (Millington to Hernando, Miss.) Purpose and Need - There is no existing interstate facility with Corridor 18 for the full distance from Indianapolis to the Texas/Mexico border. This missing interstate link is in a corridor that has a high demand for formerly known North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA)-associated goods movements. Short- to medium-length trips, however, far outnumber international traffic along the corridor. There will be local and regional trips that will take advantage of an improved facility designed to Interstate highway standards. By diverting these local trips to the I-69 Corridor, the adjacent state and federal highways will likely see a drop in overall traffic levels with attendant increases in travel efficiency and motorist safety. Throughout its length, I-69 would connect 16 existing Interstate highways crossing Corridor 18 (10 east-west routes and 6 north-south routes). It would link 10 urban areas of more than 50,000 population along the corridor. Within urban areas, development of I-69 could provide the means to upgrade existing Interstate routes, connect major transportation corridors and radial freeways with a new facility, and connect modal and multi-modal terminals to the Interstate highway network. The overall goals for this Interstate facility are defined as follows:

- To improve international and interstate movement of freight and people by ensuring a safe transportation system that is accessible, integrated, and efficient while offering flexibility of transportation choices in mid-America.
- To enhance the regional and local transportation systems by providing transportation capacity to meet current and future needs.

- To facilitate economic development and enhance economic growth opportunities domestically and internationally through efficient and flexible transportation with particular emphasis being given to economic growth in the Lower Mississippi Delta Region.
- To facilitate connections to intermodal facilities and major ports along the corridor.
- To facilitate the safe and efficient movement of persons and goods by fostering a reduction in incident risk.
- To upgrade existing facilities to be utilized as I-69 within the corridor to design standards suitable for an Interstate highway and commensurate with the projected demand.
- To directly connect the urban areas named by Congress (the "named cities" of Indianapolis, Evansville, Memphis, Shreveport/Bossier City, and Houston and the Lower Rio Grande Valley) with an Interstate highway connection.

revenue to assure the utility makes a profit. Additionally, the city approved an increase in the sewer tap fee from the current rate of $500 to a new rate of $600. The water tap fee remains unchanged at $600. The board approved rate adjustments of 50 cents on the minimum bill for usage of 1,000 gallons and $1.03 on the minimum sewer rate. Jeff Goad said a rate hike was mandated after the proprietary fund experienced financial losses over the last two years. Part of the city's capital expenses includes a new water line, replace wells and sewer lift stations. The board approved the resignation of Jeff Goad, assistant city recorder, who has the required certified municipal finance officer certification. Kathy Weatherford Edwards said the city is advertising to fill the part-time position. Goad's resignation is effective September 10. As part of the ongoing water system improvement, it was announced the city's two water wells are repaired. Lucinda Davis, owner of a house on Crooked Street, asked for leniency from the city after she received a letter notifying her of the non-complying status of the structure, which partially burned five years ago. She asked to install a roof and make the former residence a structure for storage. She noted it would not have any electricity. The board gave her one month to provide her plans to improve the structure. Attending were Mayor Bobby Blaylock, councilmen Don Barger, Leon Lyell, and Mark Argo. Absent was Pam Joyner. The seat of Councilman Eddie Granger remains vacant after his resignation in June.

Charley Pride's Secret Son Comes Forward

Tyler Tines Pride, 42, of Texas has filed suit against the Charley Pride estates after he was omitted from the will of the late country music superstar, who died of COVID-19 in December 2020. Tyler is the son of Joyce Ann Tines, an Atwood, Tenn. native, who was an airline attendant when she had an affair with the superstar. At the time of Joyce's relationship with Charley Pride, he was already married to his wife, Rozene, and the couple had three children. Later, a paternity case confirmed Tyler was also Charley's son. The singer provided child support until Tyler turned 18 years of age. Tyler and his dad visited occasionally, but the family never told Tyler his dad was sick nor did they allow him to attend the funeral. Tyler is suing for a portion of the estate, even though he was not included in the last will and testament. Tyler is married and has children of his own and resides in Texas.

marketing efforts intended for parents," said Tennessee Department of Health commissioner Lisa Piercey, MD, MBA, FAAP. "The Tennessee Department of Health not only supports immunizations but continues to provide valuable information and access to parents who are seeking vaccinations for their children. We are proud of the efforts of our staff across the state and will continue to promote vaccination and the vaccination work of our partners." While health departments administer routine childhood vaccinations, they continue to give COVID-19 vaccines. As of July 18, 2,625,316, or 38.4%, Tennesseans are fully vaccinated against COVID-19. 42.9% of Tennesseans have received at least one dose. Of the fully vaccinated Tennesseans, 2.2% are 12-15, 4.5% are 16-20, 11.1% are 21-30, 12.7% are 31-40, 13.9% are 41-50, 17.2% are 51-60, 19.1% are 61-70, 13.5% are 71-80 and 5.8% are 81 or older. A June 11 article from the American Medical Association reported over 96% of practicing physicians in America are fully vaccinated against COVID-19. Of the remaining physicians, 45% plan to get vaccinated. In the week of July 10 through July 16, the Tennessee Department of Health reported an average of 2.14 positive COVID-19 cases per day in Carroll County, an increase from last week's 1.1 positive cases per day. The county averaged 13.9 tests per day. As the highly-contagious Delta variant continues to spread across America, physicians urge Americans to get vaccinated. To find clinics, pharmacies, and other locations across Tennessee offering COVID-19 vaccines, visit vaccinefinder.org. The CDC encourages persons unable to receive the COVID-19 vaccine to wear a mask when around others, wash their hands, avoid being around other sick persons, avoid crowds, avoid poorly-ventilated spaces and continue social distancing.

H. Gordon Stoker

Gleason and The Jordanares

When talking about Mike Snider and his music career, it is a must to bring up Gordon Stoker as both men hail from Gleason. I didn't realize until the other day, it was Stoker who arranged for Snider to appear on the Opry.

As fate would have it, I was listening to a Podcast about the Nashville Sound and much to my surprise the host kept mentioning the Jordanares. Now, I knew Stoker was part of the Jordanares and they did a tremendous amount of backup vocals for Elvis Presley. Yet, I was floored to learn that they were the background vocal for countless other recording artists in the late 50s and 60s on into the more modern era of country music.

So it would be remiss if I didn't include the story of Gordon Stoker, a Grammy winner and a member of the Country Music Hall of Fame, to the list of those included in the Weekly 150.

Hugh Gordon Stoker was born on August 3, 1924, to Ambus Hugh Stoker (1891-1963) and Willie Lee Bevell Stoker (1894-1984) in Gleason, Tennessee. Blessed with the gift of music, he began playing piano publicly at the age of eight for West Tennessee's Tumbling Creek Baptist Church.

By age 12, going by the name Hugh Gordon, Stoker was well-known, playing in and around Weakley County and performing with the Clement Trio on WTJS in Jackson, Tennessee. He had caught the ear of John Daniel at McKenzie's Snead Picnic; after graduating high school at 15 joined Nashville's John Daniel Quartet. Performing with them on WSM's Grand Ole Opry, he became one of the Opry's youngest performers at age 15.

As World War II rolled around, Stoker's music career took a brief interlude as he was drafted into the Air Force in 1943. He served as a teletype operator for three years. After his service concluded, he decided to move to Shawnee, Oklahoma to attend Oklahoma Baptist University. He studied psychology, music and voice, and sang in the Bison Glee Club.

Stoker missed the bright lights of Nashville; he enrolled at George Peabody College (now part of Vanderbilt University) in 1948. The move allowed him to rejoin the Daniel Quartet. A year later, he met and later married (1951) Jean Wilkerson of the local east Nashville family singing group, the Wilkerson Trio.

Meanwhile, in Springfield Missouri, a new quartet, The Jordanares, was formed in 1948 by Bill and Monty Matthews along with bass singer Culley Holt and second tenor Bob Hubbard.

In 1950, he auditioned for and won the piano-playing job for the popular vocal quartet, the Jordanares. He started singing first tenor with them in late 1951. Stoker assumed the additional roles of group leader/manager. The Jordanares recorded for Capitol Records in the early 1950s and soon started providing background vocals on recordings for solo performers.

In 1955, The Jordanares traveled to Memphis to sing with Eddie Arnold at Ellis Auditorium. When the show was over, a young musician, Elvis Presley, made his way backstage to meet the quartet. He explained that if he ever got a major recording contract he wanted them to sing with him.

Stoker recalled the only

1. Gordon Stoker of The Jordanares was born in Gleason, Tennessee in 1924. 2. In 1943, Stoker's music career took a hiatus for his service in the Air Force during World War II. 3. Briefly performing as Hugh Gordon, the talented musician gained notoriety in West Tennessee. 4. The Stoker children were known for their music ability around Weakley and Carroll counties. 5. After joining the John Daniel Quartet, Stoker found the bright lights of Nashville. 6. In the early 1950s, Stoker joined The Jordanares and became part of music history. Photos Courtesy of the Gordon Stoker Family thing that made the young man memorable at the time was his long sideburns. He added, "Boys didn't have long sideburns back then," he explains, "But the main thing was that he had on a pink shirt. Boys just did not wear pink shirts in 1955."

Elvis called the group in January 1956 after signing with RCA Records. This began a 15-year relationship and friendship. Stoker sang duets with Elvis on hit records like "All Shook Up", "Good Luck Charm", and "Easy Come Easy Go" while the full quartet sang back up on most of Elvis' songs.

The Jordanares' background vocals were recorded on 28 of Elvis's 30-plus number one songs. Their success was not limited to just Presley's records, it's estimated they can be heard on over eight billion records sold, including Grammy-winning recordings in six consecutive decades, starting in 1959 with Johnny Horton's "Battle of New Orleans" to "Lost Highway" by Willie Nelson and Ray Price in 2007.

During the 1960s and beyond, the Jordanares often worked as many as four sessions a day. Countless recordings they appeared on go down in the pages of country music history;

Ferlin Husky's "Gone", Jim Reeves' "Four Walls", and Patsy Cline's "Crazy", Don Gibson's "Oh Lonesome Me," Tammy Wynette's "Stand by Your Man," Conway Twitty's "Hello, Darlin'," Kenny Rogers's "Lucille," and George Jones's "He Stopped Loving Her Today".

According to Stoker's son, Alan, a curator at the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum, The Jordanares helped with the origination and methodology of the "Nashville Number System" of musical notation, now standard in Music City recording studios. They were instrumental in establishing Nashville offices for performers' unions.

The Jordanares were not only backup singers but had an impressive discography reflecting continuous releases from 1950 to the 2000s. Their honors include:

1998: Gospel Music Hall of Fame; 1999: North America Country Music Associations International Hall of Fame; 2000: Rockabilly Hall of Fame; 2001: Country Music Hall of Fame; 2002: Golden Voice Awards Vocal Group of the Year; 2003: Grammy for Best Southern Country or Bluegrass Gospel Album. For several years, Stoker and The Jordanares toured with Elvis. When Elvis made the move to Las Vegas and performed two shows a night, the group parted ways.

"I always thought two shows a night is what took his life," Gordon said sadly, "It's just hard... They pushed him, he wasn't well; he was taking uppers and downers all the time. He was never on hardcore drugs - he didn't even smoke marijuana - but that eventually took his life."

While the Stokers called Brentwood home for most of his recording career, he, like Mike Snider never forgot their roots in Gleason.

"He was so famous," said Stoker's niece, Jenna Wright. "But to me, he was just Uncle Gordon. He was an extremely unassuming person."

Wright recalled how her uncle attended her graduations from Gleason and UT Martin. She added the family was extremely close. She even recalled how her father, Wayne Stoker (1915-2010), and Gordon were together at Thanksgiving when Mike Snider dropped by the house.

"When my dad got real sick a couple of years ago, Uncle Gordon would call him every day, no matter where he was," Wright said of her late uncle.

On March 27, 2013, after a lengthy illness, Stoker died. His obituary stated of him, "He found much happiness working outside, digging and planting in his garden and taking care of his goldfish pond. His sense of humor, laugh, tenderheartedness and love of family will always be remembered."

The Stokers have two sons, Alan and Brent, and a daughter, Venita, plus five grandchildren.

Gordon is interred at Woodlawn Memorial Park and Mausoleum in Davidson County, Tennessee.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Back to School in McKenzie

On Tuesday, August 3, the class of 2022 will begin their final year at McKenzie High School. Students will attend the traditional half-day on August 3 and begin a full-day schedule on August 4. I want to welcome all of our new and returning students for what is going to be an exciting year.

We have opportunities for our students and parents to visit our campuses prior to the school year. On Thursday, July 29, McKenzie Elementary School is hosting Meet the Teacher from 1 to 6 p.m. McKenzie Middle School is hosting fifth-grade orientation for parents and students at 4 p.m. on July 22. The high school will have schedule pick up on July 22 from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. Ninth-grade orientation will be Thursday, July 29 at 6:30 p.m.

I want to introduce you to our new faculty. Rachel Edlin, a UTM graduate, will be teaching 1st grade. Hope Powell, a graduate of Freed-Hardeman, will also teach first grade. Ashley Sellers, a UTM graduate will teach second grade. Morgan Klinzing, a graduate of UTM will teach in our CDC program. Jill Scott, a Bethel University graduate, will serve as a speech language pathologist. In our middle school, Morgan Bromley, a Bethel University graduate, will teach fifth grade language arts. Nick Cobb, a UTM graduate, will teach sixth grade math. Luke Anderson, a UTM graduate, will teach seventh grade science. Tyler Holt, a Bethel University graduate will teach eighth grade math. At the high school, Dylan Benson, a Bethel University graduate will teach physical science.

Many thanks to our maintenance and custodial staffs. They have done a fantastic job readying the buildings. Bobby Osborn is the director of maintenance. Kim Carroll leads our custodial crew for ABM.

The start of a new year is always exciting. I am from McKenzie. I grew up on Stonewall Street. When I hear the band practicing and the football boys are in pre-season camp it sends me back. I believe it is a good thing when our community gathers under Friday night lights. Hope to see you there.

Looking forward to the first day,

Lynn Watkins

HUNKER DOWN WITH KES

Talk About A Potential Gold Mine!

We left the house and drove up to North Carolina. The mountains were spectacular, the cooler temperatures refreshing and the folks we met along the way were most friendly.

Next time I'm going in a U-Haul Truck.

I saw a washing machine sitting out by the road just south of Clyde that looked better than the almond colored one we are using. I wanted to turn around but Cathy had spotted a restaurant that served rainbow trout and cheese grits.

Who would leave a perfectly good washing machine on the side of the road? Did it fall off the Ace Hardware truck by accident? Do they have some kind of "trade-in, pick-up" service in the Tar Heel State that differs from other places?

Then I thought it might be a trap. Placed there on purpose? You know, like you stop and pull over; run back to it, thinking you're picking up a bargain... And when you lift the lid a tiny lady with glasses and a clipboard sticks her head up and says, "Did you know your car warranty was out of date?"

And, of course, I didn't actually know if it was a "perfectly good" washing machine or not. It is kinda hard to tell when you blow by at 60 miles an hour. But I didn't see any dents. And it's human nature to try to see the best in every situation. Good golly, if it had all the knobs on it, it was way ahead of almond boy....

We spotted a left running shoe in the inside lane of US 441 in Macon County, near Franklin. I don't think it was Nike...maybe an Asics or possibly a Reebok. I'm pretty sure it wasn't New Balance. Those New Balance runners think too highly of their brand to leave one behind!

Why is it always ONE shoe? You never see a pair in the road. It does give you cause to ponder: Did a playful, or mad, little sister toss her brother's shoe out the window? Did a dog steal one off a nearby porch and drop it when he realized there was no food value in it? Did someone run completely out of a shoe fleeing the scene?

I don't want to contemplate any one legged theories. That might keep us here all day...

The antlers were outside Scott Creek. There was no animal attached to them although this looked like deer country. They were nailed to what appeared to be an old wooden basketball backboard.

I told Cathy they might look good in the den opposite the fireplace. She could hang Christmas ornaments on them. Or Valentines. Flags on the Fourth. Maybe the grandkids could throw doughnuts or those little round hair holder things at them. We could give prizes...

We were rolling through Waynesville when we saw the grill. It didn't have any rust hardly at all on one side. This thing was big. I'm pretty sure six burners. I could be the envy of my whole neighborhood. I was trying to see if it had all the wheels when I near 'bout collided with the log truck.

By the time I got the car under control and stopped safely at the next light, I swear barbeque ribs and smoked chicken aromas permeated the air around us.

The baby highchair was sitting beside a mound of leaves near Dillard, Georgia. It was padded! Ummmm...

"Don't say a word."

"Cathy, we're not that old."

"No. Nope. Nada. We are not going there!" She wouldn't even look at me.

Or consider the possibilities.

"Did you see it was padded?"

"Our baby chair days are behind us."

"Cathy, I just thought—" "You drive. Thinking and raising babies are not your long suit."

We saw a sofa sleeper coming through Atlanta on Interstate 85. There was no chance to stop. Traffic was eight lines wide on a five lane highway! Somebody dumped that thing at 90 miles an hour.

I didn't particularly need a sofa sleeper but you couldn't beat the price. 'Course, the problem here was picking up the merchandise without getting run over. Don't anybody tell CBS—or we'll be seeing this scenario play out on "Survivor IX."

We didn't have these "roadside bargains" when I was growing up.

We used every item we had to the complete limit and life of the thing.

And then we would repurpose it.

We were recycling in West Tennessee back in the '50's out of object necessity.

I reckon old habits die hard.

That's why I'm renting a truck the next time we go out. And I'm turning around and going back...no matter what anybody in the car...uh, truck... says or thinks.

Respectfully,
Kes

Inglenook Book Club July News

The Inglenook Book Club met in June at Lakeside Assisted Living Center with Suzanne Russell and Gaye Rowan as hostesses. Members enjoyed a delicious frozen congealed salad called “Champagne Sally” made by Suzanne and Gaye, along with snacks and beverages.

Tables were brightly decorated with a July 4th theme.

President Carolyn Moore called the meeting to order and thanked the hostesses. Members recited the Pledge of Allegiance, the club aim and motto.

President Moore announced she delivered 83 glue sticks for the school teachers. Members brought boxes of Kleenex tissue for today's meeting, and next month's donation is wide-ruled spiral notebooks.

Members wished a Happy Birthday to Victoria Ard and Shirley Martin.

After the business meeting, Elaine Williams presented the program on author Stuart Woods, best-known for his Stone Barrington novels. Barrington is an ex-NYPD detective who now works as a lawyer who takes on shady cases.

Stuart Woods was born in Manchester, Georgia, attended local public schools, then graduated from the University of Georgia with a Bachelor of Arts in Sociology. After college he moved to New York in search of a writing job. The magazines and newspapers were not hiring, so he got a job in a training program earning $70 a week. “It is a measure of my value to the company,” he says, “that my secretary earned $80 a week.” He spent the whole of the sixties in New York, with the exception of two months of basic training for what he calls “the draft-dodger program” of the Air National Guard.

With the guard, he spent ten months in Mannheim, Germany, according to him, “driving a two-and-a-half-ton truck up and down the autobahn.” He notes the truck was all he ever flew in the Air Force. At the end of the sixties, he moved to London working for various advertising agencies. In early 1973 he decided the time had come to write the novel he had wanted to write since the age of ten. He moved to Ireland and worked two days a week for a Dublin ad agency while working on the novel. Then he discovered sailing and about a hundred pages into the book, all he wanted to do was sail, and the book fell by the wayside. During this time he participated in several races, one of which was a trans-Atlantic race from Plymouth, England, to Newport, Rhode Island, in 45 days.

The next years were spent in Georgia, writing two non-fiction books: Blue Water, Green Skipper based on his sailing experiences, and the second called A Romantic's Guide to the Country Inns of Britain and Ireland, a travel book he wrote on a whim. In the meantime, a New York publishing house, W. W. Norton, offered an advance of $7,500 to publish his novel called Chiefs. This is the first book in his Will Lee series.

Though only twenty thousand copies were printed in hardback, the book achieved a large paperback sale and was made into a six-hour television drama for CBS-TV starring Charlton Heston at the head of an all-star cast including Danny Glover, Billy Dee Williams, and John Goodman. Chiefs established Woods as a novelist, winning an Edgar Allan Poe prize from the Mystery Writers of America. Woods has since been prolific, having published more than sixty novels with more than fifty best sellers.

His Stone Barrington novels seem to be the most popular, and Woods writes about three books per year. Barrington cruises the world of the rich and famous. One of the latest takes us to Florida where Barrington's vacation is interrupted when something falls from the sky.

He teams up with a detective to investigate the issue when the evidence seems to disappear.

Before he knows it, Stone is drawn into a web of deceit and crime that follows him wherever he goes—along with old and new enemies who just can't leave him be.

Woods married for the first time in 1984, but the marriage ended in 1990. He said, “I married too young—I was only 47.” After 15 years in Atlanta, he moved to Santa Fe, New Mexico, where he met his second wife, Chris, who was working in a bookstore while trying to write her own novel. He now divides his time between Florida and Connecticut and travels widely with no plans to retire.

Shirley Martin, the club's Chamber of Commerce representative, reported attending the new Magnolia Mercantile store's grand opening and also gave the schedule of remaining “Nights on Broadway.”

Suzanne Russell stated the Carroll County Humane Shelter is currently selling Georgia peaches.

Next month's meeting will be hosted by Zia Locke and Sally Sutton.

Members present were Victoria Ard, Linda Edge, Juanita Finley, Carolyn Goodwin, Suzanne

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Carroll County Sheriff's Reports

Aggravated Assault — Kristopher Durance Willis, 42, of 4627-20 Peggy Lane, Hollow Rock, was set to be charged with aggravated assault, domestic assault, and violation of an order of probation following a July 16 incident at his residence.

According to the report by Deputy Chance Townes, he met with the female victim at a local church, and she told him that Willis had thrown a brick through the driver's side window of her vehicle while she was sitting in the driver's seat. Townes observed the window was shattered and the victim had minor cuts on her left arm. The victim said she and Willis had gotten into an argument about text messages at their mutual residence, and when she started to leave in her vehicle, Willis threw the brick at her, shattering the window. Willis was not at the residence when officers arrived, and he had not yet been arrested at the time of the report. Townes noted the victim had two active orders granting bail against Willis.

Vandalism — Deputy

ties are investigating the recent vandalism of a vehicle in Huntingdon.

On July 9, Paul Beaton told Deputy Christopher Adams he left his 2011 Cadillac Escalade parked at his residence on Dilahunty Road during the previous night and the next morning he found the driver's side window had been broken, the plastic door cover was off, the inside arm rest was bent, and the vehicle's keys were missing.

Aggravated Assault — Elias Bahnam Nazi, 45, of 80 Fowler Circle, Hollow Rock, was charged with aggravated assault and domestic assault following a July 9 incident at his residence.

Deputy Chance Townes reported he responded to a residence on Fowler Circle (not Nazi's residence) and spoke with a female victim. She told Townes she and her ex-husband (Nazi) had gotten into an argument and his residence, and Nazi grabbed what she believed to be a pool stick and struck her twice on the right leg. Townes later found Nazi at his residence and charged him.

Farmers' Market Fresh Program Returns to McKenzie Market

The Carroll County UT Extension office is back at the McKenzie Farmers' Market every Saturday morning with the Farmers' Market Fresh program. Members of the UT Extension office have a booth where they offer food samples, recipes and research-based advice on the best ways to select and store everyone's favorite summertime items.

The best part of the program — each person who stops by the booth receives a recipe card for the food being sampled that day, plus a kitchen item to take home. At the end of the season, consumers could have an entire collection of recipes featuring items fresh from the farmers' market.

Featured recipes include: honey mint fruit salad, vegetable lettuce wraps, fresh vegetable caviar, Mediterranean chickpea salad, Farmers' Market pasta salad, Swiss chard pasta, gazpacho, and cantaloupe and red pepper salsa.
