Dragon Hunters loose in Schaben Park

Dragon hunters of all ages were able to join Naturalist Connie Betts to learn about dragonflies! Things started off with an informational sit down.

"These predators (dragonflies) live most of their life in the water then transform taking to the sky for more hunting," Naturalist Connie Betts shared. "This is something most people don't know." Each child also had a chance to look over species cards and ask questions. Following the sit-down session kids and parents alike had the chance to use nets to catch dragonflies in both the water and air. After, the entire group had the chance to gather and see a few of the different kinds of dragonflies that live in Iowa. The group also caught a few native damselflies.

The Dragonfly Program was Sept. 8 at Schaben Park. This program had no cost, no registration and all necessary equipment was supplied. The Harrison County Conservation Board posted the following on their Facebook page after the event, "Thanks to all the dragon hunters that came out to Schaben Park tonight! We caught dragonfly nymphs (babies), dragonflies, and damselflies."

The Harrison County Conservation board is always excited to share the wonders of nature with citizens of Harrison County. Be sure to be on the lookout for more fun classes and opportunities from our conservationists in the future.

A new COAT FOR CLASSIC GAMES

The Dunlap Community Development Corporation helped spruce up some vintage carnival games on Sept. 8.

Merlyn Hein, a Dunlap resident, recently refurbished a handful of carnival games. In order to fully bring them to life, volunteers got together last Thursday to add color to the classics.

To celebrate the finished items, the Boyer Valley

Drill Team will host a carnival event where the "new" games will be featured. Proceeds from the event will help the dance team fund a trip to Florida.

KENDRA BECKNER | THE DUNLAP REPORTER
Fonley Allen was hard at work fixing up carnival games during the paint party in Dunlap. A group gathered to help fix up the old carnival games and bring them back to life. "I'm Glad that Jill Schaben came on board and is bringing it back with the help of the DCDC (Dunlap Iowa Community Development Corporation)," Allen said when asked about the event.

St. Patrick Catholic Church celebrates 150 years as parish

BY AARON HICKMAN
news@enterprisepub.com

St. Patrick Catholic Church in Dunlap celebrated 150 years as a parish with a fall festival this past weekend.

With the town being founded in 1867, some Catholics would gather and a priest would come from Magnolia, which was the only parish in Harrison County at the time, according to Father Joel McNeil. In 1872, they were assigned a resident pastor and became a parish.

The parish covered everywhere from Denison to Missouri Valley and the points in between until those other communities established their own parishes.

"That's significant, and it's something I wanted to celebrate," McNeil, who has been at the church for seven years, said. "I want our folks to think about that, to think about those folks and all they went through from droughts to bad farm prices and depressions and wars. Through it all, they have maintained their parish."

Now, after 30 years, the church is almost done being enhanced, as well, with new paint, flooring, carpet and plaster repairs. Some light fixtures are scheduled for repair but have been delayed because of supply chain issues.

Having to sit in chairs instead of pews for the time being, McNeil believes the people of the parish are pleased with the improvements that have been made.

What has been done for generations in Dunlap is continuing in taking care of the church. That's something that McNeil finds extremely valuable.

"We want to look to the past with appreciation and look towards the future with commitment," he said. "To appreciate what we've been given. The first attempt to build the church got blown down in a tornado. They had to regroup and raise some more money and try a second time, and that church lasted a little while, then they built another one out of brick."

SEE FESTIVAL, 10

As we enter the fall season we would like to send our best wishes to all the youth who will be attending our area schools.

Have a great 2022-2023 school year!

Roofing is installed at the Willow Lake Nature Center.

The Willow Lake Nature Center is expected to open in the spring of 2023. Construction on the building started roughly one year ago.

Construction on Willow Lake Nature Center moving along nicely

BY AARON HICKMAN
news@enterprisepub.com

Under construction for nearly one year, the new Willow Lake Nature Center in Woodbine is getting closer and closer to completion.

Expected to open in the spring of 2023, October of last year is when the initial dirt work started. Due to the same supply chain issues that have affected so many other projects, rebar was hard to come by. Fortunately, it didn't take that long to find some and get to work.

"We were aware that we're gonna have problems, we're gonna have issues, but let's not kick the wall," Scott Nelson, director of the Harrison County Conservation Board, said. "Let's not scream and yell. We're just gonna go with it."

Since the initial turbulence, the project has been moving along smoothly, with a significant amount of development taking place quite recently.

"It's coming along really well," Nelson said. "A lot's happened in the last month. We saw a lot of vertical infrastructure go up. Before then it just seemed like there's a lot going on, but you can't really tell that there's a lot going on."

As far as the structure goes, the framing is done, exterior walls are up and weather-proofed, and the roof has been sheeted.

Heating and cooling has been getting worked on by the mechanical team, and ductworks have been going in, as well as the units for a ground source heat pump. Geothermal wells to help with that are nearly done being drilled.

The electrician is running conduit and wiring on the main level, CJ Futures is handling four retaining walls, and Meco-Henne is currently working on the carpentry for the roof.

"It's all really interesting to see," Nelson said. "We all know and hear about these things all the time, but it's neat to see it in progress and the skillset that's out there in the trade system."

When the building is completed, the major difference between the new nature center and what Harrison County had before is the available square footage.

Now there will be a dedicated standalone conference room that can be turned into a classroom, which will be able to accommodate school groups and field trips while also being able to be cleared out to house traveling exhibits.

"Those are available and are out there and we've always dreamed about them," Nelson said. "An exhibit can come in for a month or two months, just to have something new, different, and fresh. That's gonna be a big difference."

The exhibits and displays that will be a part of the nature center portion are being designed, with Connie Betts, the board's naturalist, working alongside the various contractors.

The goal is to create an atmosphere where people, both visitors and residents, can learn and be amazed by all that goes on around them. Nelson hopes that the new nature center can turn into a source of entertainment for all kinds of people in Harrison County, whether they're traveling through, there for a school trip, or anything in between.

"If I have family that comes to my house, and they wanna be entertained, right? What should we do? My gut and my heart tell me that a lot of people are gonna go: 'let's go out to the nature center and go see the exhibits so we can learn something,'" he said.

The major theme will be centered around water. Nelson hopes those who leave the nature center after a day of learning will have a greater appreciation for water, water resources, their environment, and everything that they can see and do in Harrison County.

There is also a great amount of confidence that the project will serve as an economic driver. With people coming into town to make a visit to the nature center, they will wind up visiting more than just that.

"What they're gonna do is go back into the communities either on the way here or getting out, or just exploring, and stop at a restaurant, stop at a store," Nelson said. "We all know that tourists have billfolds and wallets, and hopefully they'll leave a nickel or two behind."

What's most important, though, are the educational opportunities provided.

"You always hope that it resonates in them to want to do more, want to do better," Nelson said.

Wise school leaders don't keep public in the dark

BY RANDY EVANS

These days, I stand in front of audiences and engage in what is politely called "public speaking" more often than even Mr. Gentry ever imagined when I showed up at his office door 55 years ago with a bug-eyed expression of concern.

Mr. Gentry was the guidance counselor at Davis County High School. He was in charge of class scheduling. What brought me to his doorstep was noticing I would be taking "Speech" class that semester.

Before I could say anything, however, he presciently said, "You probably are wondering about the Speech class. You will thank me someday." That "someday" has arrived. You were correct, Mr. Gentry.

Public speaking is an important part of my professional life. I have spoken to groups large and small as an advocate for citizen engagement in state and local governments. Speeches are an important way to get my message to lots of people. But just as important is hearing what is on their minds when I invite them to ask questions.

When the audience is made up of elected officials and government employees, I expect them to pepper me with challenging scenarios about public meetings and public records. I have not spoken to any school groups recently. But when the opportunity comes along, I expect them to grill me with some of the real-life challenges that confront school administrators and their governing boards.

One such real-life headache is ongoing in the Cedar Rapids Community School District. It played out a year ago at Des Moines Area Community College. And the Linn-Mar Community School District in Marion may have the same headache, too.

The issue is cyber-security and ransom attacks that are carried out by unknown criminals. These people hack their way into an institution's computer network and try to steal personal information of employees and, potentially, private student information, too.

The Cedar Rapids district was hit by just such an attack on July 2, forcing the cancellation of summer school the following week. A month later, the Linn-Mar district announced it was investigating the source of a problem that took down its telephones and knocked out its computer systems.

At DMACC, a cyber incident in the summer of 2021 forced the Ankeny college to shut down parts of its computer network, ending online classes, delaying students from signing up for new classes, and knocking out internet service for several weeks.

It should surprise no one that cyber criminals are attacking government institutions and trying to extract a ransom. Businesses in Iowa have been hit this way, too, costing them significant amounts of money and extra labor.

There is an important difference between private businesses and government institutions, however. One belongs to the people of Iowa. The other does not.

The Cedar Rapids school district did pay a ransom in an effort to protect the personal information of its employees — 8,790 people, in all. The information that may have been compromised includes employees' full names, Social Security numbers, driver license numbers, banking account and routing numbers, and their personal medical information.

My government transparency radar goes off when I hear that school officials have refused to disclose how large the ransom was, to whom it was paid or how it was paid. The school is offering a free year's worth of credit monitoring services to employees to see if their personal information is used.

The attackers who struck DMACC last year also demanded payment of a ransom. The college refused. But administrators now also refuse to tell the Cedar Rapids Gazette how much ransom was sought or how much the college actually spent to combat the security breach — for outside experts, for new equipment and repaired equipment, and for higher cyber insurance premiums.

Linn-Mar officials have not said whether any personal information on employees or students was compromised. Nor have they even confirmed whether a cyber attacker was responsible for that district's computer problems.

Were I standing in front of the School

Administrators of Iowa or the Iowa Association of School Boards to address their members, I would expect to be grilled like a cheap steak about my position on the intersection of Iowa's public records laws and information about these cyber security incidents.

I would remind these officials that Iowa's public records law allows school districts or other government entities to keep confidential their cyber security procedures and their emergency response procedures. That is just common sense.

No one expects them to be required to make public what the records law describes as the vulnerability assessments made on their computer networks, the information contained in security and response plans, or the passwords and security codes needed to access certain parts of their computer networks.

But it is common sense, too, that administrators would be expected to make public, upon request, basic information that the tax-paying public is interested in: That would include the amount of ransom that was sought or that was paid in response to an intrusion by cyber criminals, as well as an accounting of how much a school district or community college paid to clean up its computer networks after a cyber-attack.

It would be detailed enough so the public can determine whether their local school district or college is taking all reasonable precautions to guard against such an attack. The public is entitled to know whether their local school is showing to adopt recommended security precautions.

After all, the cyber criminals who struck the Cedar Rapids school district's computers already know how much ransom they received and how it was paid. The only people being kept in the dark now are the taxpayers in the district and the parents of its 15,800 students.

Even if a school's lawyers show how these details could legally be kept confidential, I would remind school officials that secrecy is never a good way to build public trust and confidence in the management of a district or college.

Was it Worth It?

5:00 AM. No alarm needed. Mom slipped out of bed, put on her wash dress and everyday apron and tiptoed downstairs. She scooped a dollop of shortening into the cast-iron fry pan and took the chicken out of the refrigerator. Darlene and Dorothy had helped get things ready last night. They had made potato salad, baked two apple pies and cut up chickens. As the grease began to sizzle, she rolled the chicken pieces in seasoned flour and plunked them in the frypan. Soon a wonderful aroma permeated the kitchen.

The stair door opened with a squeak. Dad padded in. "Smells good already!" He pulled on his work boots. Before going out for chores, he gave his wife a peck on the cheek. "You go to a lot of work for this day. Is it worth it?" She added a drumstick and nodded a smile.

7:45 AM. Our black

Ford Fairlane drew to the stop sign at the intersection of Highway 25 and 14. A steady stream of cars rolled by. Ten minutes later there was a brief break in traffic and Dad eased in.

We were off! Mom, Dad and their four youngest headed for Huron. A day at the South Dakota State Fair! Our parents had enjoyed the tradition since their oldest children were big enough to go. Those two were on their own now, a reminder of how time flies and kids grow up in the blink of an eye. I think they understood at the time how important it was to make memories. Obviously, they did it right. Every one of us remembers the fair.

8:15 AM. We drove into the fairground parking lot, a rough, sod-covered expanse. At the gate, we got our hands stamped. We agreed to meet back at the car at noon.

Dad and Delmer set their sights for the machinery. Acres of shiny-new inventions invited farmers to buy. Partial to green, the men found themselves in the middle of new John Deere mowers, combines and other contraptions. A friendly salesman came along and shook hands with both. "Is this the next farmer in the family?" Delmer's chest swelled with pride.

The three ambled through the lineup. "I bet this young man would like to get the feel of the new 730 tractor." A glance at Dad for permission, and Delmer scrambled up to the yellow seat. When they were ready to move on, the salesman handed Dad a packet of information. He tossed two ball point pens to Delmer. My brother's braces sparked in thanks.

Meanwhile, Mom and we girls began at the 4-H building. We wandered through the displays of exhibits from young people all over the state. It was fun to see if we agreed with the judges' choices for top ribbons.

The crowd was growing considerably as we entered the Horticulture Building. Hundreds of tables of flowers filled the area. We "ooed" and "aahhed," taking in the glorious scents as well as the beauty.

Organ music added to the aura. All at once we came upon a wondrous sight. Mirrors! Rows and shelves and hangers displayed the loveliest bouquets in front of mirrors. We stared as the reflections lit the room.

The Women's Building presented handmade items of every craft imaginable. Doilies, quilts, beautiful embroidery. We found ourselves admiring AND wanting to create such beautiful things.

Suddenly, Mom looked at her watch. "We had better start back to the car. It's nearly noon." Tummies growled in agreement.

Dad and Delmer fell in just behind us outside the gate. Others were already enjoying their picnic. They smiled and waved as we walked by. At the car the whole family pitched in. As we sat on blankets and enjoyed Mom's fried chicken, we reported and listened to accounts of the fair. Excitedly, we planned the rest of the day's activities—from the all-you-could-drink-milk-for-a-dime at the Dairy Bar to the rodeo at the grandstand.

9:00 PM. A continuous line of car lights followed us as we drove east out of Huron toward home. The kids in the back seat were quiet. Dad checked his rear-view mirror to see contented smiles. He stole a glance at Mom. "What do you think? Was it worth all that work?"

At that moment the little girl who sat between them leaned her head against her mother's side and snored softly. Mom smiled. "I can't wait 'til next year!"

Woodbine Applefest set for another year

Since 1988, the last Saturday of every September is dedicated to a festival of everything apple in the City of Woodbine, Iowa.

The city will host one of Iowa's largest car shows, which, according to the event's website, has attracted over 350 makes and models from as early as the Model T Ford.

In addition to the car show, a craft show, outdoor market, local business vendors, live music, historical tours, a kid's corner, and so much more is set to take place on Sept. 24. T he Crew Center will be sponsoring a brand-new event this year, a Hay Bale toss for all ages. Multiple food vendors will also be at the celebration. The free entertainment tent located at Walker and 5th Street featuring a live band and a beer garden will close out the day.

Free parking will be located at the Rodeo

Grounds and Industrial Park. Handicap parking will be on 4th street between Weare St and Lincoln Way.

Transportation from parking areas will be available. Over the years the community has come together to continue to grow the event into the major staple it is today.

All together this event will have something for everyone, and the City of Woodbine would love to have you!

Embrace the Hills bicycle ride returns Saturday

With nearly 80 cyclists already registered, lots of preparation and prayer is already happening for the 11th annual Embrace the Hills bicycle ride scheduled for Saturday, September 17, 2022.

"Last year was a very emotional ride for me", said one cyclist who chose to remain anonymous. Signing up for the 2022 ride, he wrote, "This will be a celebration of one year cancer free! Last year I rode by myself. I was having my thyroid removed that following Monday.

"I thought, What if I don't wake up and never get to do this again? So.. on the way down Murray Hill I thought, I don't care what happens. I just let it rip and didn't use the brakes all the way down the hill. Yikes!"

Murray Hill, with or without brakes, is one of the highest points in Harrison County, and bikers enjoy a gradual ascent of the final hill on the ride, greeted by breathtaking views at the top.

Cyclists are told to "check their brakes" before descending the steep side of Murray Hill to finish the final 10-mile leg of the journey which begins and ends in Mondamin, Iowa.

Two routes are available this year. The shorter route, 28 miles, embraces shorter hills but wonderful scenery and pit stops. The longer route, 48.5 miles with an optional shortcut, has more challenging hills, more scenery, and more pit stops including the Dutch 4 Corners Lemonade Stand with homemade cookies.

Bikers can register online (check out www.bikeiowa.com) or contact Richard and Tammi Mether at 402-253-5102 or tammimail@gmail.com. Bikers are asked to donate one non-perishable food item as part of the registration fee, and proceeds from the ride are donated to the local food pantry in Mondamin, Matthew's House.

Route begins at Pisgah-Loess Hills State Forest

Jump in your favorite car, fire up the engine, roll down the windows, turn up the radio, and put on your biggest smile. It is time to hit the road to show your support for state parks in Iowa.

The crew for Anna Rea the 1930 Ford Model A invites everybody to drive along for the visit to Preparation Canyon State Park and Wilson Island State Recreation Area on Wednesday September 28, 2022. While the tour is emphasizing vintage or classic cars, participants can join the fun in any vehicle of their choice.

People wanting to tour Preparation Canyon State Park can join us at the Pisgah-Loess Hills State Forest Visitor Center by 9:30 a.m. We will depart Pisgah-Loess Hills State Forest Visitor in time to arrive at Preparation Canyon State Park by 10:00 a.m. We will do a windshield tour of the park and listen to a short presentation by park staff. Upon leaving Preparation Canyon State Park the tour will proceed to Wilson Island State Recreation Area. People interested in joining the tour for Wilson Island State Recreation Area can do so by being in Missouri Valley at Rand Community Center at 100 South 4th Street by 2:30 p.m. We will depart Missouri Valley in time to arrive at Wilson Island State Recreation Area by 3:00 p.m. The tour will continue on September 29 to Lake Manawa State Park and conclude at Waubonsie State Park, see website for details.

Crew members are Kevin Szcodronski of Ankeny and Ann Raisch of Eldora. They will be leading the tour in an original 1930 Ford Model A affectionately named Anna Rea to visit all 94 state parks in Iowa.

The purposes of the tour are to show support for state parks in Iowa, recognize the contributions that state parks provide to our quality of life, celebrate Iowa State Parks Centennial, and enjoy traveling along Iowa's most scenic roadways at a leisurely pace. Our challenge to you is to drive at Anna Rea's cruising speed of 40 mph. This trip is also about the most fun you can have and never leave Iowa. You will visit Iowa's most beautiful areas and meet some of our best people. Take this challenge to get a glimpse of wildlife in road ditches, have more time to enjoy barn art, wave at oncoming drivers, and beep your horn at the people along the route greeting us!! We will do a lot of smiling, and hopefully put smiles on the faces of others as we travel along the way.

People can participate in the tour for as many visits to state parks as they desire. Be warned though. Once you start, you may not want to stop! There is no fee, however please contact Kevin at least a week in advance to help us better plan the tour.

Five tour loops with 68 state park stops have been accomplished. Plans are underway for the final 26 park visits. More information about the tour can be found on the website: www.annareamodela.com and you can email Kevin Szcodronski by at skidia3@outlook.com or phone 515-240-7668.

So grab your keys and come along to see the best of Iowa!!

BOYER VALLEY COMMUNITY SCHOOLS

BOARD OF DIRECTORS - SPECIAL MEETING - AUGUST 25, 2022

4:00 P.M. - BOYER VALLEY SOUTH

CALL TO ORDER: President Steve Puck called the special meeting of the Boyer Valley Board of Education to order at 4:00 p.m. Members answering roll call were Paul Cogdill, Ben Hansen, Elizabeth Heistand, Craig Malone, Jen Miller and Steve Puck. Director Ueding was absent. Administrators present: Supt. Jeremy Christiansen and Secretary Terra Sell. Visitors present: Tony Kuker and Cody Freland.

APPROVE AGENDA: Motion by Miller, second by Heistand to approve the agenda as posted. Motion carried 6-0.

OPEN FORUM: Tony Kuker addressed the board regarding the 90-day ineligibility wait period for open enrollment. There is no opportunity for him to play JV and he would appreciate the opportunity to be able to compete on varsity at Woodbine for football.

NEW BUSINESS:

A. Open Enrollment Eligibility: there was a request received by the board from an open enrolled out student requesting to waive the open enrollment ineligibility rule of 90 days to compete in varsity athletics. Concerns were brought forth regarding the deadline to submit open enrollment paperwork having been removed and possibly opening an avenue for students to "jump districts for certain sports," to which the board will not allow. Heistand noted, this is a unique situation, which can be made reciprocal, without setting a precedent. Motion by Heistand, second by Hansen that the Boyer Valley School Board grant a waiver on the open enrollment ineligibility rule of 90 days for varsity athletics under the terms/conditions as follows:

a. Open enrollment documentation is filed properly and only between school, not calendar, years for transferring of a district.
b. The student requesting open enrollment must attend said requested district on day 1 of the school year.
c. Said requested school district must not provide an opportunity for the student athlete to play sub-varsity athletics.
d. Said requested school district must pass a reciprocal policy prior to varsity eligibility of student athlete.

TDR 9-15-22

e. Said student may return to their home district without varsity eligibility penalty applied.

Motion carried 6-0.

B. Motion by Miller, second by Cogdill to approve a contract for Julie Burhoop, PLCL. Motion carried 6-0.

C. Motion by Hansen, second by Heistand to approve a contract for Paula Evans, Library Associate at $14.25/hr. Motion carried 6-0.

D. Supt. Christiansen updated the board regarding keys for the building on whether the board would like to keep the current, residential keys or transition to commercial. This process would require getting bids, but he wanted to gauge the interest on the topic before moving forward. Consensus of the board was to move forward on gathering more information and pricing.

A motion by Hansen, second by Heistand to adjourn the meeting. Motion carried 6-0. With no further business appearing before the board, President Puck declared the meeting adjourned at 4:24 p.m.

These minutes are as recorded by the board secretary and subject to approval at the next regular board meeting.

Bulldogs fall to Crusaders

BY MATT GENGLER
sports@missourivallentimes.com

It was a struggle for the Bulldogs in their first road test of the season. Coon Rapids-Bayard took advantage of every Boyer Valley miscue in a 35-7 win on Sept. 9 at Coon Rapids.

"When we took a couple steps forward, we followed it up with five steps back, that was the story of the night," stated Bulldogs Head Coach Nathan Christensen. "We missed blocks, had bad snaps and way too many mental errors."

Defensively, the Bulldogs were paced by Bobby Gross (12 tackles) and Robert Brasel (11 tackles). Owen Garside finished with six tackles, an interception and a fumble recovery.

"The scores don't show it, but I've been pleased with our defensive effort thus far, and we'll need another good one this week," Christensen concluded. "But we need more focus on the offensive side, as self-inflicted miscues are costing us in critical situations. In this balanced district, consistency is the key, and we have to find ways to fix it."

UP NEXT: Boyer Valley (0-2, 1-2) will be at West Harrison on Sept. 16, and host Woodbine for Homecoming on Sept. 23 as District 10 play continues.

LAST WEEK: Coon Rapids-Bayard def. Boyer Valley, 35-7; West Harrison def. C-A-M, 29-22.

execution has been the focus this week, as the Bulldogs prepare for West Harrison.

ABOUT THE HAWKEYES: West Harrison found their passing game last week (180-yds, 3 TDs) in their win at C-A-M, as the Hawkeyes offense spreads the ball around to a variety of receivers. The Hawkeyes' defense leads the district in QB Sacks (12); Interceptions (7), Fumble Recoveries (7) and tackles for loss (29). We have to find a way to account for Sage Evans (#73) on both sides of the ball, as he is the heart and soul of that team.

KEYS TO THE GAME: West Harrison has won their last two games by a combined 10 points, and are due for a letdown. Defensively, the Bulldogs have to make stops and can't let the Hawkeyes high-flying receivers get into space, and need to find a way to create turnovers. Offensively, they have to sustain drives, win the line of scrimmage (both sides) and capitalize on the Hawkeyes' miscues.

The Boyer Valley Student

VoiceSeptember 15, 2022
Volume 17, Issue 1Boyer Valley Drama Department Shooting For The Stars

WRITTEN BY ZAYDEN REFFITT

Theater helps us see a different perspective of our own. We're shown humanity, comedy, drama, conflict, and resolution. The Boyer Valley Drama Department is doing just that with their fall play, The Play That Goes Wrong written by Henry Lewis, Jonathan Sayer, and Henry Shields. This 1920's whodunit has everything you never wanted in a show—an unconscious leading lad, a corpse that can't play dead, and actors who trip over everything (including their lines). Nevertheless, the accident-prone thespians battle against all odds to make it through their final curtain call, with hilarious consequences.

The director, Benjamin Schauer says, "This is unlike anything this school has ever done before." The drama club officers Ian Garside, Jasmin Bald, Rian Snavely, and Jodee Kruse could not be more excited to kick off this year's season.

Last year the Boyer Valley Drama Department was very successful receiving a long list of awards and achievements for their performance in Little Shop Of Horrors. Ian Garside received an award for Outstanding Performance in a Principal Role, Zayden Reffitt and Ian Garside received a Distinguished Scene Award, and Faith Beeck and Zayden Reffitt received Special Recognition for Performance in a Principal Role. Additionally, Rian Snavely and Karley Haggie were invited to participate in the opening medley at the Iowa High School Musical Theatre Awards Showcase, and Ian Garside was nominated to participate in the Triple Threat Program for a chance to represent Iowa in the 2022 Jimmy Awards.

This department is small but mighty with a history of great shows, the latest of which will leave you rolling on the floor. The Play That Goes Wrong will be presented in the Boyer Valley high school auditorium on November 4th and 5th at 7:00pm and on November 6th at 1:30pm. Tickets are $4/students and $6/adults and can be purchased at showtix4u.com or at the door. Come and support your local performing arts department. These shows cannot be put on without the support of the community.

FESTIVAL: St. Patrick Catholic Church celebrates 150 years as parish

When they had a new priest come in in 1927 it's recorded that at his first sermon he said: 'I guess I don't need to tell you you all need a new church.' I'm sure they built what they could afford, then the town grew and they outgrew the church. So they got to work and built a magnificent church. We've received so much of their hard work, labors, and sacrifices."

McNeil believes that every time a new pastor is assigned to a parish, they have a mission. No pastor is good at everything; they all have strengths, weaknesses, and spots where they are just okay. For McNeil, his mission is to honor those who came before by making sure their work lives on.

From his window, McNeil can see the Sioux City diocese. Recently, several parishes were closed there. A neighboring parish close to Dunlap was closed, as well.

"That's one of the things that's important to me is that we as a parish really rally and remember those who established this parish and be sure that that never happens to us," McNeil said. "Remembering the folks who have gone before us and what they have given us in this beautiful church, and now we have to take the responsibility to hand it off to the next generation."
