There is no doubt. The message has been signed, sealed and now delivered. North Scott is the king of the high school trapshooting world.

With confidence oozing from their gun barrels and a swagger earned from previous success on the shooting line, North Scott took no prisoners at the recent Scholastic Clay Target Program (SCTP) National Championships.

Just when you thought things couldn't get any better, the Lancers made the Cardinal Shooting Center in Marengo, Ohio, their own personal playground last month as they continued their annual gold rush in record-setting fashion.

After back-to-back years of bringing home national championships in doubles and handicap, North Scott's shooters not only defended their titles, but also tacked on gold medal-winning performances in singles and skeet, with a second-place finish in sporting clays thrown in for good measure.

for sure.

With just 10 shooters taking on a field that included nearly 2,700 of the nation's best, it was no surprise that the Lancer contingent walked away with the coveted High Over All award for doubles, handicap and singles, while also the HOA for skeet, singles and sporting clays.

"We really couldn't have done any better," said North Scott coach Eric Long. "It was a great week, and the kids

"We've never won High Overall before, and the best we've ever done was third the last two years. This was absolutely the crowning touch."

Not only did the Lancers dominate the team and squad standings, but they also left their mark on the individual results.

Senior Eric Long, Jr., the coach's son, became the first

North Scott shooter to bring home an individual national title as his 195 out of 200 in doubles topped the country, and he also finished fifth in singles with a 199.

Jodi Williams is the first face most high school visitors see in the front office and the first voice parents hear on the high school attendance phone line.

And she's heard it all in her 19 years with the high school. Like this:

"I'm sorry, my son can't come in today," a student caller attempts in a lower octave.

"Uh huh," she'll respond politely, then contact the actual parent. "I think I got a bad connection when you called in your son," she begins. That's when most parents will say, "What call?"

Williams is among five women all high schoolers and their parents must know as the school year begins.

Today, we introduce you to them, and share their request to students and parents: Reach out to us. Contact us. Use us as a resource.

"And if you haven't yet, register now," Williams advises.

Jodi Williams

Williams is the attendance secretary who handles absences, late arrivals, early departures and all attendance concerns. jodi.williams@north-scott.k12.ia.us

For many students, Williams plays the heavy, enforcing attendance rules essential for each student's education and the safety of the entire building.

"I know everyone who misses, anyone who has to leave early or stay late," she said. "One time I counted. I had 230 calls in a day. I buzz 200 or so through this door every day."

563-285-3212

For parents, Williams can be the lifeline that engages them before attendance problems get out of hand.

'We get parents who stop in unannounced to pick up their kid for an appointment. They don't understand their child may be in gym, out on the field, and need to get changed. Or they're in the middle of a quiz, or presentation and when they're gone, it affects other kids," she said.

Other parents call to take their child out of school for lunch.

"Nice thought, but I don't know where you can go to lunch in Eldridge and make it back in time," she said.

Her advice to parents: "Please call in and let us know what's going on. If you're not home when I call, please return the call. We just want people at home to know what's going on at school."

She acknowledged that sometimes her calls aren't welcome. "I do have parents who see my number and say, 'Oh, shoot, it's Jodi.'

"I was at the Lucky Frog with my family and I saw two kids who still owed me detention. I asked my daughter if it would be out of line to remind these kids they owe two detentions," Williams recalled. "Then their dad said that when they saw me, they slid under the table."

But most students have a different relationship with the attendance-taker.

"Some kids come in every morning and bring me Casey's breakfast pizza, coffee, or a candy bar. I tell them I'm trying to diet so they bring in a veggie tray."

Her tenure has been long enough, "that I'm seeing the kids of kids we've had in the past.

Karin Schmeink

That's among the top requests Karin Schmeink has heard in her 10 years at the high school working with the school's counseling staff. Schmeink's diverse duties include assisting students registering for the ACT, signing up for driver's education and managing locker assignments.

Schmeink advises parents to check the district website and sign up for Messenger, a service that alerts parents via email to school activities and daily announcements.

"All the information we give students is in the daily announcements on the web site. We gave up loudspeaker announcements four or five years ago. Nothing would sink in, and not much would make it home," she said.

Schmeink can tell parents and students when college and military recruiting reps are

She also is the link between students, their families and the counseling staff.

"Let your counselor be aware of what's going on. Our counselors are very discreet," she said. Student volunteers in the office also are counseled on discretion. She said counselors can help with relationship problems and teaching social skills.

Her advice to parents? Don't wait until there's a problem to call.

"I love working with students, interacting with them and hearing their stories, sharing their successes when they're accepted into colleges," she said.

Deana Sorensen

Sorensen is administrative assistant to the dean of students and handles student IDs, locker assignments and appointments with the deans.

The kids say it's just stupid. Who cares if I'm in high school and wearing my junior high badge? It's the same number," she said, adopting a student's perspective. "But if we see a junior high badge, that tells us you're not supposed to be here."

Sorensen opens a drawer that still has lost IDs and lanyards from last year. Students routinely ask for replacements at $6 each. "I tell them to clean out their bedrooms, their cars, their dad's car before coming to me for a new one."

Sorensen also is the one to call when problems arise, or as she emphasizes: "Before problems arise."

"If you see something out of whack — She had an Agoing, but now it's a D. Or if you can't read between the lines in Powerschool. Or if they're test nervous," Sorensen said. "Don't assume an answer, or make a decision before you know what the school can do for you."

Sorensen says her job is busy, but never boring. "My day's never the same. The best part is looking back at end of the year and seeing the graduation ceremony. There often is a student or two who at one point someone said they're never going to graduate. And I got to be there when the light bulb came on."

Cheryl Jurgens

Jurgens is the school nurse, providing nursing care, tracks student medication and absences due to illnesses. cheryl.jurgens@north-scott.k12.ia.us

Cheryl Jurgens keeps track of the health, wellbeing and medications for the 1,000 or so high schoolers.

This month, that means making sure each student has a current meningitis vaccination for a new state law requiring proof from 7th graders and seniors.

Cheryl Jurgens 563-285-3217

"I'm busy gathering those now," Jurgens id. Seniors who can prove they v cinated earlier can attend school up to 60 days before getting an update. But those with no proof will not be admitted.

"Last year was our first year with the new law. We had one student we had to keep out. This year we did we did letters, robo-calls and our doctors in the area did a good job alerting families," she said.

Every day, Jurgens dispenses medication for dozens of students. All prescriptions a student needs during a class day must be kept in her office. That includes short-term pain or antibiotic medications.

"Some have daily medications. Some keep medications here in case they miss a morning dose," she said.

She also is permitted to dispense up to five doses of over-the-counter painkillers, like ibuprofen, acetaminophen to a student each Jurgens also tracks illness-related absences. Parents who call in are asked to disclose at least two symptoms.

"I need to hear more than, 'flu.' If it's sneezes and headaches, or vomiting or diarrhea, that's what I need to know," she said.

Jurgens looks forward to "my new students, my freshman," this year and every year.

"I love what I do. I get to watch them grow academically, intellectually, and their personalities. My job is to help them stay healthy so they can focus on that."

Kathi Washam

Washam is the activities secretary and handles sports and activities and assists athletic coaches.

kathi.washam@north-scott.k12.ia.us

Washam is the voice callers hear when trying to reach Activities Director Jason Schroeder or any of the coaching staff and other activities.

Especially now.

"This is my busiest time of year," said Washam, who is in her 26th year at the high school. "I get the questions about sports, plays and all the activities. All summer long, my phone rang about summer sports camps. 'What time is this?' 'What does my kid need for this sport?"

She also manages the physicals required of all student athletes.

"That's probably 50 percent of the questions I get. They want to know if they have all their forms in."

The Iowa Legislature's decision three years ago to push back the start of school added to her back-to-school work load. School may not start until Aug. 23, but fall sports are well

"With Iowa pushing back school start date, it gets tough because of sign ups for fall sports. Practices started Aug. 6, and some parents are just starting to get in tune with back to school. They're not thinking about it in early August."

She called her job, "a perfect fit."

"I love sports. Period. I love the people I work with. It's an amazing office to work in. And I just love working with the kids; I'm like a mom to all the coaches."

Later in the semester, Branstetter helps schedule parent-teacher conferences. Later in the year, it's senior pictures, and toward the end of the school year, graduation.

"I'm the go-to for graduation. I order diplomas based on what counselors tell me.

Almost every day, Branstetter gets calls from concerned parents. Both she and principal Shane Knoche typically will ask if the family has worked directly with the teacher, coach or other staff involved.

Branstetter urges all parents to reach out with any questions, and particularly to learn what they can handle themselves online.

"Sometimes I feel they wasted a trip here for something I can walk them through online. Like paying lunch money. A lot of parents are OK registering online, doing all the electronic paperwork and forms, but they don't want to pay online. That's fine. They can come in. I'm totally ready for it."

She has two children of her own in high school, who sometimes ask the No. 1 question she gets from parents: "Will you put more money in the lunch account?"

Princeton seeks $75K for Dollar General

By Mark Ridolfi

NSP Assistant Editor

Princeton council members will meet 4 p.m., Monday, Aug. 20 to consider spending $75,000 in city savings to complete a water pipe loop to the new Dollar General Store, which opened earlier this month without water service.

The money is part of help the council is extending to the company that encountered difficulties hooking up to Princeton's water system. Employees filled a water tank that is a temporary solution until the connection is complete.

Council members meeting Aug. 9 supported the funding, but needed to schedule a special meeting. The city posted a meeting for 4 p.m. Monday, but postponed that a week to consult finance attorneys, Mayor Roger Woomert said Monday.

A Bore Tec excavation crew was onsite Monday laying pipe from the Dollar General south to the Casey's store. Princeton Public Works Director Josh Genz said Dollar General had agreed to pay for extending a water main to the store, then adding pipe beneath U.S. 67 and the railroad tracks to connect with another main. Those connections would create a supply line loop, long sought by Princeton to improve water pressure for residents and businesses on the town's north side.

Genz said the store's construction crews were expecting the city had a six-inch metal main. But they found a four-inch plastic pipe that also serves a mobile home community along U.S. 67. Genz said that small plastic pipe cannot accommodate Dollar General's six-inch connection.

That left Dollar General needing to install their line all the way to the city's six-inch, metal main at Lost Grove Road.

Since Dollar General already agreed to help pay for the pipe extension, Genz advised the council to help the firm by using city funds to complete the loop that will benefit the town in the long run. He said the store's construction crews are on site and ready to work now.

He estimated the extra cost of the six inch line to Lost Grove Road would be about $55,000. Extending a line beneath U.S. 67 would cost another $25,000, Genz told the council.

"I think we need to help them out. They've been helping us out. We want to complete this work while the equipment and manpower already are there," Genz said at the Aug. 9 council meeting.

A water tank outside serves the store's toilets. Water fountains inside the store are inoperable.

Council members welcomed Dollar General's interest in Princeton after Casey's General Stores proposed expansion of its Princeton site, but required the city to cover all the costs of utility extension. The city declined and Casey's never followed up.

"Casey's cost us a lot of money without doing anything," council member Ann Geiger said at the Aug. 9 meeting.

"They can sit there and operate their little store to their heart's content," council member or completed. Karen Woomert said.

Republic contract

Council members approved a five-year contract extension with Republic Services of Bettendorf, the division of Allied Services LLC that provides trash services to Princeton and much of Scott County.

The contract carries a $15.24 monthly trash and recycling pick up fee through July 31, 2019. It increases three percent each year and reaches $17.67 by Aug. 1, 2023 for the last year of this contract.

Republic's Municipal Services Manager Matthew Pivit, of Peosta, Iowa, said the collapse of overseas recycling markets is limiting Republic's income from selling the paper, plastic, glass and metal it collects. The new contract contains a provision allowing the company to charge a new recycling fee if those markets do not improve.

Pivit said the amount per household will depend on markets, but he said it would likely be well under $1. "Maybe it would be 40-cents per household," he told the council.

The new contract also allows each household to dispose of one bulky item, like small furniture, each month at no additional charge.

Sidewalks

Three Princeton property owners along Lost Grove Road will get letters from the city demanding that sidewalks be installed

Council members unanimously supported sending the letters to two property owners who had not installed sidewalks, and a third whose walks are not fully accessible.

"One property owner installed it himself and it's moving, and is not compliant with ADA," said council member Jami Stutting.

City Attorney Candy Pastrnak said the letter should make clear if the residents do not comply, the city will build the walks and bill the property owners.

Pick-up truck repair

Public Works Director Josh Genz will try to repair the town's rusted pick-up truck bed before replacing the vehicle.

Genz said 12 years of hauling salt eroded the bed in the city's Ford F250 truck. He had repair estimates for $3,510, and said he could not find a suitable used bed. "They're all rusted at that age," he said.

Council member Karen Woomert suggested replacing the rusted bed with an improvised flat bed and 2-by-8-inch wooden sides. Genz said he will pursue bids for that kind of repair.

New mulch for parks

Council member Amy Simmons said Volrath Hardwoods will donate mulch for Princeton's parks. Travis Volrath said he expects to bring at least 80 yards of mulch for the Princeton Beautification Committee members to spread this summer.

QC Advanced Toastmasters host Aug. 18 open house in Eldridge

By Synclaire Lunardi NSP Intern

At 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 18, the Quad Cities Advanced Toastmasters Club will host a free open house at the Scott County Library for people to learn how this organization can help anyone hone communication and leadership skills.

The event will feature all the components of a typical Toastmasters meeting, including five- to seven-minute speeches, evaluations, and exercises in spontaneous speaking, known in most Toastmasters clubs as Table Topics.

Club vice president Jim Schneider said, "The first hour of activity, we're doing a demonstration meeting, which will be a bit more formal than normal meetings. We want potential members to see what the ideal meeting setup looks like. We've also got at least two speakers, one of whom is a member of the advanced club, and the second is Kory May, who used to be in the club but is now involved in Iowa City where he lives."

This international club's aim to increase confidence in public speaking can be helpful for anyone.

"Whether you have a big presentation to give, have taken on a leadership role you don't feel prepared for, or just want to get more comfortable talking to people in groups or one-on-one, Toastmasters can help you," said Kristin Bruchmann, a nine-year Toastmaster and one of the organizers of the open house.

"Toastmasters clubs provide a safe place to help people develop skills that can have a positive impact in many facets of their lives," Schneider said. "It's an incredibly supportive and empowering organization, and we manage to have lots of fun, too."

The not-for-profit Toastmasters International conducts annual speech contests at different levels for different categories of speeches. The open house meeting will feature a veteran Toastmasters contestant, Kory May of Iowa City, who has won 11 contests at the state level. May will represent Iowa for the fourth time at the international competition August 23-25.

At the open house, he will be presenting one of his speeches to a full evaluation panel, which includes three judges, each looking at a different aspect of the speech.

"QCAT's evaluation panel provides robust feedback, I look forward to speaking there and tweaking my finals speech to winning form," said May, a past president of the QC Toastmasters club.

Refreshments and a networking session will follow the open house meeting, and guests may participate or simply observe.

"Anybody would benefit from this organization. Who doesn't sometimes wish they could construct their ideas in a much more succinct way and express themselves well at a meeting or to their boss?" said Schneider. "Toastmasters can build their confidence and ability to communicate with people so it appeals to a whole spectrum, from people who really want to polish their speech patterns to people who just really want to be able to get their thoughts out and let people hear what they're thinking."

NS community pitches in on trauma kits

By Synclaire Lunardi NSP Intern

Atrauma kit now resides in every classroom throughout the North Scott School District, due to the hard work and dedication of the Long Grove Fire Department and an army of volunteers.

On Saturday, Aug. 11, the Long Grove Fire Department assembled trauma kits for all North Scott schools funded by the almost $5,000 they have raised. They are still raising more funds to complete this potentially life-saving project.

Those who wish to help can send donations to the Long Grove Fire Department or First Central State Bank, where there is a North Scott trauma kit fund.

"Our ultimate goal is to have a faster response, to save more lives, and to be proactive instead of the behind the game," said Long Grove Fire Chief Joshua Roe. "If something does happen, we're hoping that the teachers and the other staff throughout the school can get more lives saved. If a big tragedy or trauma happens or unfolds in North Scott schools, we hope that they're able to use some life saving skills before we even get there.

"A standard school shooting is about 12 minutes so by the time that 911 is called, we get the page out, we receive it and roll a truck, from those averages, the school shooting is already over. You can bleed out in less than three minutes so using a trauma kit, teachers can bandage it, and put a tourniquet on it. If we can get that bleeding stopped with a teacher or another student or staff of any sort, we hope that it saves lives."

The contents of these kits, according to Amy Shannon of the Long Grove Fire Department will be, "gauze, both four by four and two by two, adhesive bandages, and there will also be trauma shears and tourniquets in each kit."

Teachers and staff will be trained at the beginning of the year on the use of the tourniquet and the other supplies these kits will provide.

"There will be a trauma kit in each classroom in the district, and then there will also be one in the gym, the library, music rooms, and offices. Pretty much any resource room that there would be students in," said Shannon.

Members of the Long Grove department worked with the Eldridge Lions Club, Long Grove Lions Club and Park View Lions Club to fill 270 bags that could help save students' lives in the event of a mass casualty event in the North Scott School District. Once assembled, they spent Sunday installing them so they are now ready for the start of the school year.

"I hope they hang them on a hook and they rot right off the hook," said Roe. "I hope we never have to use them but if it could help, it's important to have them."

Costello wins national FFA dairy ranking

North Scott FFA member Collin Costello is among four finalists nationwide for dairy production, the first North Scott student ever to advance that far.

Costello faces a round of interviews from dairy professionals at the National FFA Convention Oct. 24-27 in Indianapolis.

The North Scott FFA chapter won its first ever three-star national ranking, advisor Jacob Hunter said.

The FFA program ranked second among Iowa chapters and advanced to national competition. The three-star rating is the top achievement, representing just three percent of FFA chapters nationwide.

The national ranking is among the FFA goals under Hunter's leadership. "When hired, I was tasked with accomplishing this feat within the five years and through teamwork and dedication with the community and school, we were able to make this happen in less than two years," he said.

TRAP: Lancers take top individual honors

other competitors who were also shooting Brownings.

Sophomore Jacob Dies finished second in handicap with a 188 total, while senior Michael Mohr finished third in doubles with a glitzy 192 score.

However, it was sophomore Tommy Keeshan who truly stood tall after earning the quintessential Top Gun award, which goes to the shooter with the highest combined scores in singles, skeet, sporting clays, pistol and rifle. He was the lone Lancer to compete for that distinction.

"It feels great to be a national champion, and I'm just happy to have that at the end of my senior year and be able to finish strong," said Eric Long, Jr. "I felt like as a team, we were on rails. We were shooting really well.

"In the weeks leading up to nationals, we practiced all the time and made sure we were confident. That's where the confidence comes from, knowing you did your best in the weeks before, and that you couldn't have done anything else to prepare.

"It felt awesome leaving nationals, and knowing that of all the states, we represented Iowa in a great way. It just feels good."

Mohr, who like Long, was competing for the final time as a Lancer, said he thought the team did really well.

"I think that what kind of surprised us the most is how well we shot in skeet and sporting clays," he said. "We've never really done really well in those two disciplines, and this year we got first place team in skeet and second in sporting clays.

"I think winning meant a lot to all the seniors. We've gone out there and done some amazing things together the past two years, and this year we went out there and put in a lot of work to make sure we finished on top."

Keeshan said the team took everything in stride.

"I wasn't surprised with our success," he said. "We were expecting to go up there and shoot our best, and hopefully get a few top places. We did that, but we definitely could've done a lot better."

To truly understand the magnitude of North Scott's accomplishments, you need to understand how the week (July 14-21) played out in Ohio.

Lancers begin title defenses

North Scott first took to the shooting line on Monday, July 16, and it proved to be a busy day. They shot their first 100 handicap targets at 9 a.m., and followed that up with 100 doubles targets at noon. They followed that up with 100 more targets in doubles (12:40 p.m.) and handicap (3:15 p.m.) on Tuesday, July 17.

There are no team scores for those two disciplines, but the Lancers proved to be the best of the best, as they finished first and second in the squad category in both events.

The handicap squad of Dies (188), senior Braxton Childers (186), juniors Andrew Troje (187) and Hunter Frerichs (176), and sophomore Drew Baxter took the gold with a 911 total.

The squad of Long (188), Keeshan (178), sophomore Jaydon Biles (170), junior Hunter Block (185) and Mohr (184) finished second with a 905 total, 16 targets ahead of the third-place squad, and 17 in front of Ankeny.

In doubles, it was the unit of Long (195), Keeshan (190), Biles (188), Block (183) and Mohr (192) that finished first with a 948 score, 10 ahead of the squad consisting of Dies (184), Childers (186), Troje (192), Frerichs (189) and Baxter (187). The third-place squad finished with a 890 total, and again, Ankeny was fourth.

Getting out of their comfort zone

The two disciplines that arguably are North Scott's weakest, but only because they don't regularly compete in them, are skeet and sporting clays, and both were contested on July 18 and 19.

"One of my goals was to do better in skeet and sporting clays," said Coach Long, "because we only have one or two sporting clays courses within 60 miles of us.

"A lot of the southern states focus on skeet and sporting clays all year, and some of those teams have so many shooters that they can have different ones concentrating on different disciplines. That's not the way we do things."

In the end, the Lancers did just fine.

The three-man team of Mohr (197), Keeshan (197) and Biles (197) brought home North Scott's first-ever skeet championship with a 591 total, four ahead of Harris County, Ga., while the squad of Long (196), Keeshan (197) and Biles (197) finished second in the squad division.

When the sporting clays totals were tabulated, the Lancers just missed making it a clean sweep for the week. The Southlake, Texas team finished with a 542 total, while the Lancer contingent of Long (181), Mohr (179) and Keeshan (179) finished second with a 539.

It's all about singles

There's no doubt that winning the singles title was the Holy Grail the Lancers had their eye on. They finished second to Ankeny the last two years, losing by a single target in 2016 and four birds last year.

"When we get out to nationals, we have a team meeting the first night, and I take the kids out to the stands where the shoot offs are held, and we sit and talk," said Coach Long. "We read their goal sheets out loud, and I have them read off three individual goals, three team goals, and how they want to accomplish them.

"It's amazing, but it's not like everybody said they want to win, win, win. They have their own personal goals and the team goals, and a lot of the team goals are to be a great teammate. The one thing on just about everybody's list, including mine, was to win the singles title. That was the big one."

North Scott's first 100 targets took to the air on Friday, July 20, with another 100 on Saturday. When the final bird had shattered, it was the Lancers who were finally standing tall

The team of Long (199), Dies (199), Frerichs (198), Baxter (198) and Keeshan (197) brought home the elusive gold with a 991 total, 11 ahead of Union Grove, Wis., while Ankeny was third with 973.

The squad of Long, Keeshan, Biles (190), Dies and Baxter also finished first, while the squad of Frerichs, Block (195), Mohr (195), Troje (183) and Childers (193) finished 10th.

When it came to HOA for skeet, singles and sporting clays — where you take the top five scores in each discipline, it wasn't even close. North Scott's total of 2,865 easily outdistanced the PC Eagles score of 2,791, and their 2,883 total for doubles, handicap and singles easily earned them the HOA, well ahead of Ankeny's 2,780.

Bright future

Of the 11 shooters North Scott took to nationals — Clayton Adrian competed in the Intermediate division — only Long and Mohr are seniors. There's no question the Lancers will be aiming to storm the national stage in years to come.

"I'm feeling pretty good about what lies ahead," said Keeshan. "I feel like we're going to try to beat our old scores and do even better than before. I think we can do that, as long as we practice hard and keep our minds straight."

Coach Long would tend to agree.

"I don't know how we top this," he said.
"We've got a few more really strong years, at least two more. We may not have the depth we have now, but we aren't far from it.

"We are losing some very strong seniors in Eric and Michael, but there is no reason we can't go back to national eight or 10 strong next year. I would hope that they can duplicate what they did this year.

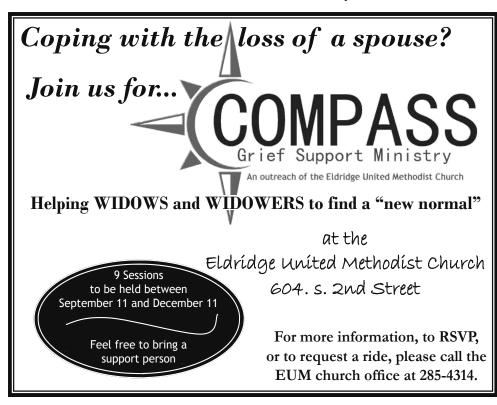

"Right now, we have probably the most diverse group of kids in the trap world, in the nation. I've said it before, but they kind of made their mark this year and kind of proved that North Scott has the best trap program (singles, doubles, handicap) in the nation for sure, and we're nipping at their heels in the other disciplines (skeet and sporting clays)."

As for Mohr, he's grateful for being part of something so special.

"Being part of the trap team means everything to me," he said. "Just having some consistency, being able to go out and see the same guys every day, guys you really didn't know when you started, and now are some of your best friends.

"I think that's what I'll take away more than anything. Just the memories we've made, and there have been a lot."

"Competing with these guys is amazing," added Keeshan. "You can't find anything else like this. It's just so rare to have only five people do good, but we have 10, 11 or 12 that are at the top of the game. That was definitely the case at nationals."

New students push Armstrong, Shepard class sizes

Enrollment totals will determine if district can hire new teacher

By Mark Ridolfi

NSP Assistant Editor

Just a few new kindergarten students are putting pressure on Neil Armstrong and Alan Shepard elementary class sizes, which may reach 26 or more.

The district will await registration numbers next week to determine if it will hire a full-time teacher, part-time aides, or send new students to other schools, Superintendent Joe Stutting told board members meeting Monday at the Administration Center.

Stutting said district guidelines set optimal kindergarten class size at no more than 24. Shepard Elementary in Long Grove has 50 enrolled in two sections. Armstrong Elementary in Park View has 56 in two sections.

Stutting said the district could exceed class size guidelines, but warned that every elementary has sections approaching the limit.

"There's no easy solution. In every building we have sections at or above our goal," he told board members. "The question is, where do you draw the line?

Adding an entry-level teacher would cost about $70,000 in salary and benefits.

He said the state legislature's revamp of collective bargaining laws gave the board authority to offer lower wages and benefits.

"But we made a decision last year to keep our experienced teachers," Stutting told the board. He said the district's class-size dilemma is one impact of the 1-percent allowable growth funding approved by the legislature over the past two years.

That level fails to keep place with the district's rising costs, forcing the district to offer early retirement benefits and, in some cases, accept larger class sizes.

"We need to tell our story to elected officials," he told the board members.

Board member Joni Dittmer noted the district faces the same issue nearly every year. "We've had this dilemma before. We have teachers who can manage," the larger class sizes.

Stutting said the district is committed to maintaining sections of all grade levels at every elementary, which precludes options that could manage the enrollment with no new hires.

That option might include dividing existing elementary schools into upper and lower levels, offering K through third grade in one building and fourth through sixth in another, as an example.

"But we don't want to do that," he said. He said maintaining full-service grade schools in Eldridge, Donahue, Long Grove, Princeton and Park View, "is our unique make up, a make up we like."

Stutting said perhaps a flurry of new registrations will bring in enough to justify a new teacher at Armstrong. Or perhaps some new families might agree to send their student to another building. "I would hope we would gain enough students that this would be a nobrainer," to hire a new teacher.

Biting the bullet

The certain demise of the Silver Bullet batting cage and storage facility by next July will force the school board to look at temporary options.

Stutting said the district will consider buying or leasing containers to accommodate the storage provided by the old steel building across the street from the high school that will be dismantled when Eldridge widens the First Street and LeClaire Road intersection next for a new bus barn and batting cages came in much higher than expected, so the board is looking at temporary solutions.

School board chairman John Maxwell said initial cost estimates from LEGAT architects

'We don't want to rush into any kind of major construction," Maxwell said in an interview after the meeting. He suggested the board might contract with a private batting cage firm for a year or two until the district can build another.

For storage, Stutting suggested the board might consider rebuilding the Silver Bullet on school district property south and east of the Administration Center. He also suggested using steel from the Silver Bullet to improve the barn on the 18.8 acres purchased by the district on South First Street for a new, regional FFA building.

"We've tabled the Silver Bullet and transportation facility. We need to do a little more homework," Maxwell said.

New sidewalk

Board members paid Affordable Parking Lot Services $31,252 for parking lot improvements at the football field and a new sidewalk on the north side of Iowa Street by the Administration Center.

Hearing on flexibility account

The board will hear public comment at the 6:30 p.m., Aug. 27 meeting on a plan to move $100,000 from a pre-school fund for safety, technology and building improvements, Finance Director Jill Van Roekel said.

Farm bureau grant

The board thanked the Scott County Farm Bureau for a $3,000 grant to buy equipment to expand the agriculture science courses in the North Scott FFA program.

Powerschool

Board members agreed to pay $27,131.35 or $8.50 per student to the Grant Wood Area Education Association to provide Powerschool, a website for students, teachers and parents to share assignment and other information.

North Scott physical therapy contract

Board members hired North Scott Physical Therapy, 811 E. LeClaire Road, Eldridge, to provide athletic training services this school year for $11,140.

Personnel changes

NSP Publisher

his week, The North Scott Press joins newspapers across the U.S. that are speaking out against the drum roll of "the news media is the enemy of the people" from our nation's leaders. This nationwide campaign was begun by the Boston Globe, which is trying to band together editorial writers across the country to support a campaign of protecting press rights.

Though we are miles removed from the nation's capital, we are not immune. Words of hate have consequences when the community press, whose articles are believed when they report facts in the local community, is lumped together with the national media which is accused of reporting "fake news."

Here in Scott County, for example, a reader told me I was part of the problem last year after I printed a column quoting our esteemed former Republican congressman, Jim Leach, which lifted up civil discourse Leach says is lacking in the current administration.

"I don't want to support your lifestyle," the reader said.

A friend who was editor of a weekly in northern Iowa made statewide news a while back when an assailant with a gun confronted him in his office. Luckily no harm came of it, but it's a constant reminder.

Editors everywhere have their own stories of intimidation.

Though I feel generally safe in my community, ours is a dangerous profession. In 2017, 262 journalists worldwide were imprisoned and 48 were killed, according to the Committee to Protect Journalists. Now for the first time in my 47 years here, groups that The North Scott Press is a part of are sponsoring seminars on security training for reporters – "active shooter preparation and response" – after five staff members of the Capital Gazette in Annapolis, Md., were killed in cold blood on June 28.

The International Society of Weekly Newspaper Editors (ISWNE) invited editors to call out the "fake news" phenomenon this week, but not everyone agreed.

"No thanks. We agree with the president on this," wrote an editor in South Carolina. "This is much to do about nothing," replied an editor in South Dakota.

Most editors, however, are on board.

"It's an attempt to undermine all of us and to discredit a free press that dares to ask questions of public officials. His comments rain down on all of us, not just CNN and the larger media outlets. Truth matters. Facts matter. A free press matters," wrote an editor from Georgia.

"Our plan is to tackle the phrase 'fake news,' reminding people that there is nothing fake about the high school sports we cover, the 100th birthdays we share, the school plays we promote, and the city government meeting that we go to every week where left and right politics don't come into play," wrote an editor in Kansas.

When Linda and I had naming rights for the community room at the Scott County Library in 2003, we chose "First Amendment Room" to underscore the Amendment's five freedoms which make America exceptional: 1. Speech; 2. Press; 3. Religion; 4. Assembly; and 5. Petitioning of Grievances. Quotes supporting the freedoms are on the wall, including the Ben Franklin gem atop this column.

My colleague, Reed Anfinson from Benson, Minn., a past president of the National Newspaper Association, puts it this way:

"Persistent degrading of America's press leads not only to the very real possibility of violence against reporters, it also gets more people supporting governmental authority to 'put us in line.'

"It was Feb. 17, 2017, less than a month after President Donald Trump was sworn into office and had taken an oath to defend the Constitution of the United States that he began calling the nation's press 'the enemy of the people.'

"In a Tweet he said, 'The FAKE NEWS media (failing @nytimes, @NBCNews, @ABC, @CBS, @CNN) is not my enemy, it is the enemy of the American People!"

"'When you look at history, the first thing that dictators do is shut down the press,' Republican Arizona U.S. Sen. John McCain said to "Meet the Press" host Chuck Todd Feb. 19, 2017. 'And I'm not saying that President Trump is trying to be a dictator. I'm just saying we need to learn the lessons of history.'

"At a rally in Pennsylvania, Aug. 2, Trump singled out the men and women of the press. Pointing his finger at the television and newspaper reporters covering the event he called their organizations the 'fake, fake, disgusting news' and called reporters 'horrible, horrendous people.' His animosity incites his crowds to turn on the press with angry words, profane gestures and threats of violence."

The president should quit hurling insults, but he won't. That's like asking a leopard to change its spots. So each of us is left to control the one thing we CAN control, and that is OUR RESPONSE. So I ask you, dear readers, PLEASE take no delight when the president bashes the press. That's the only thing that will make it stop.

Simple idea, big results

North Scott Night Out unites, remembers and celebrates

Then 2,000 people do anything in Scott County, it's news.

Lancer Stadium draws as many or more for high school football.

The Moonlight Chase brought 1,247 participants and many more spectators for the July 14 twilight run through Eldridge.

More than 3,200 kids show up each day at North Scott Schools.

When 2,000 joined hands and raised them together on the Eldridge-Long Grove trail, Aug. 7, there was no football game, foot race or compulsory attendance. Ominous clouds and nearby downpours provided a ready excuse for folks to skip their community's first Night Out observance.

But that didn't happen.

Instead, moms, dads, kids and grandparents walked a path familiar to some, but wholly new to others. The trail connecting Long Grove and Eldridge itself is a testament to the communities' civic pride. It was built with a state grant that required a $62,000 matching appropriation from each town. So Long Grove's 900 or so residents and Eldridge's 6,000 residents pitched in to build the path that gets used every day.

And I mean every day.

When I went out to shoot weather photos in January, I saw tracks through the drifts before each city's plows cleared the path.

On Aug. 7, more than 2,000 residents stopped what they were doing to join the trek down the path and create that long line celebrated in the drone video widely seen on social media.

Laura and Sue Klever heard about the event at their Park View Lutheran Church. "I love anything that brings the community together," Laura said.

David, Katharine Gus and Clark Mulfinger showed up, "to support our community," David said.

Laura Wilhelmi carried daughter Ayla down the path, with son Lincoln nearby. "I guess we'd normally be eating dinner right now," she said about 6:30 p.m., as the line began to form. "We really enjoy this community and felt it was important to be part of this."

Organizer April Rus seemed dazzled by the unending stream of neighbors who felt the same way.

"I'm still beaming. The attendance really outweighed my expectations. Our mini mission is communication equals community. This community really came out," she said.

Next up, the North Scott Community Enhancement Project plans more community gatherings and fundraising to cover projects and student scholarships.

Rus and friends launched the North Scott Community Enhancement Project, a neighborly group that joins the deep Scott County network of service clubs, churches, veterans groups and others that routinely prioritize community over self. The Project was looking for a community-wide event

On the Record

by Mark Ridolfi

when Long Grove Mayor Mike Limberg suggested the Night Out gathering along the trail.

Elsewhere across the nation, thousands of communities hosted Nights Out with community picnics in parks honoring police, firefighters, paramedics and other first responders.

North Scott's first Night Out honored them, along with students remembered since their untimely deaths. Chalk memorials honored Francis Nass, who died March 21, 2017 from a seizure disorder; Jacob Fenn, in a July 3 ATV crash, and S.J. Madden, in a Feb. 14 collision that left his vehicle overturned next to this same trail.

Yet this gathering on the trail remained a celebration, not a wake. Caleb Bowe strummed guitar as he walked, belting out sing-a-longs. "I would walk 500 miles," he sang to folks strolling by. Pat and Lora Direickx carried participants in their Pride of the Wapsi wagon up and down First Street, hollering and waving to familiar passersby.

In the middle of the long line, Eldridge Mayor Marty O'Boyle and Long Grove Mayor Mike Limberg held hands and beamed incredulously as more and more people joined them on the line.

"I can't believe it," Limberg told me more than once.

In addition to serving as mayor and owning his own IT business, Limberg is a leader among Scott County Republicans. O'Boyle is as active in the county Democratic Party. I suspect their ideological gaps are wider than the length of the trail.

But on Aug. 7, these two partisans held hands high in salute to community pride and service. No one else I saw considered politics when grabbing the hands of their paighbors

The crowd on the trail that day represents about half the number of Long Grove and Eldridge residents who voted in the last presidential election. I suspect most adults on the trail Aug. 7 will vote in the Nov. 6 general election as well.

Before, and after that day, they will continue standing together as Scott County residents with pride in their community, thanks for their first responders – most of whom are volunteers – and kind remembrances of teenagers who should have been arm-and-arm among those who lifted hands heavenward.

A letter to my baby as she starts kindergarten

Dear Sweet Baby Girl,

OK, so maybe you aren't quite a baby anymore. Every time I blink – you get bigger. And every time I pause for a moment, you are using bigger words (like loquacious ... what?!) and learning empathy and doing math and solving problems. So, while I know you aren't technically a baby anymore, I'm taking a moment to reflect on what the past six years have meant to me.

How we got here so fast is a mystery – but I do know that we managed to pack a million precious memories into the past six years, and that alone brings me comfort.

Kindergarten marks the beginning of brand new friendships, creating new memories outside of your family, the concept of homework (which I have a strange feeling you will actually enjoy), eating lunch at school, riding a school bus and the start of a new and exciting chapter of your life. A wonderful world awaits you my sweet girl, but that new beginning also closes a chapter of the baby years. And just typing those words is enough to make me curl up in a ball and cry.

You have brought so much meaning and joy to my life, and while I tell you that every day, I don't know that you can fully grasp the concept just yet about just how much I love you.

When you were just a newborn baby, we moved to a new city. You helped me adjust to the newness of a place where you (and your dad) were literally all I knew. We went on a lot of adventures, just the two of us – you were my little (and only) sidekick. You gave my life purpose, and your smile and laugh made me feel like everything was going to be OK. And so it was.

When you were just 14 months old, we found out that you would become a big sister (times two!) and you were there. You were with your dad and me in the ultrasound room when the doctor said the words, "So there are two (babies)." You were blissfully and joyfully unaware while tearing apart the room during the moment when I first heard those words. You were there when we excitedly learned that "Baby A" was a girl and "Baby B" was a boy. And you were there when your dad and I sped off to the hospital in the middle of the night to give birth to your brother and sister 10 weeks early.

You were there to visit your brother and sister in the NICU, and you would sit and pretend to nurse your baby doll while I tried to figure out life as a mom to three. You didn't miss a beat - you took your role as doting big sis seriously, and I found comfort in knowing that you loved the new title. You were there when the twins came home from the hospital, and you were there through all the late nights, the early mornings, the moments when I thought I wouldn't survive and the moments when I celebrated even the smallest milestones. You were there as the twins grew from babies to toddlers to preschoolers, and you added "best friend" to your big sis title along the way.

We discovered the world anew, together. You helped me settle into my role as "mom," and you always made sure I felt loved. We went for bike rides and walks and played Snow Monster at the park; we had dance parties and baked cookies and read book after book and colored picture after picture and have laughed until we've cried.

We reveled in these long stretches of childhood bliss. I've lived vicariously through your accomplishments. I watched as you ran your heart out in a road race and when you learned how to add and subtract. I watched you tackle your fears by dancing on stage at your ballet recital despite the nervous tears. You've given me the chance to relinquish some of my own childhood memories by watching yours.

You're silly, shy, loyal, driven and as sweet as they come. You get nervous when the attention is on you (I can relate to that). You ask me a million questions every single day, and if there ever was a pause button -I would press it right now and never let go.

These six years have been filled with the highest highs – and some challenging lows. And now, kindergarten is here – all too soon.

Kindergarten is the start of a brand new chapter of your life, one that extends beyond your family. But I hope that home will always be your safe place – and will do everything I can to keep it that way. And for now I want you to go with these life lessons (and don't worry, sweet girl, I will do my best to hold back my tears until I get to the car on the first day of school).

My wish for you as you embark on your new journey:

BE YOURSELF: If someone doesn't like you for YOU, that is their loss. I hope that you unlock the creativity inside of you, and express your personality in an artistic expression that speaks truth for you.

DON'T SAY YOU'RE SORRY: Only say you're sorry when you have done something that merits an apology. And when you have done wrong, you can apologize and people will believe that you genuinely mean it.

SAY NO: Say no when someone wants you to do something that goes against what you know to be right. When you are asked to commit your time to something that you really don't want to do, just say NO. Time is our most valuable asset – choose to spend it wisely.

BE A GOOD FRIEND: I hope you find friends who laugh at your silly jokes, who let you into their secret clubs and who you can be yourself with.

SMILE, LAUGH and DON'T STOP VIEWING THE WORLD WITH AWE: This world is so beautiful – smile every day, laugh every day, live every day. Don't be afraid to try new things and to stretch yourself to your limit.

ALWAYS TELL THE TRUTH: Even when it would be easier to lie. The truth will set you free. The truth is also much easier to remember.

DON'T BE AFRAID TO FAIL: It's OK to make mistakes; only then will you learn. Only then will you discover new insights about yourself.

STAND UP FOR WHAT'S RIGHT: When you see someone being treated unfairly, don't be afraid to speak up. I hope that your heart is moved with empathy and stirred to action.

And above all else ... LOVE WITH ALL YOUR HEART.

You're going to do amazing things. I am already SO incredibly proud of you.

Welcome to the 2018-19 school year!

As summer is coming to a close, I know our students, parents, and staff are getting excited for another school year to begin. I am sure most of you are like me and wonder where the summer went. We are blessed to live in a community where education is highly valued and supported by all. As always, it is a privilege to be able to serve the North Scott Community School District as superintendent

We have had a very busy summer getting ready for the start of school. The high school auditorium has been remodeled, and we are very excited to show the auditorium to the entire North Scott community. All of our buildings have had a number of projects. Neil Armstrong has new landscaping in front of the building, John Glenn's hallways have been updated; all of our elementaries had security cameras added. These projects represent just a few of the many projects completed this summer. I would like to thank the maintenance and custodial staff for doing a great job getting everything ready for the start of the school year.

Our district continues to focus on improving its curriculum and offerings to students. We had a large number of staff working on curriculum this summer. I appreciate the time our dedicated teachers are willing to put in to improve the education of our students. We have expanded our one-to-one computer per student to the fifth grade. I look forward to seeing how this enhances student learning at the elementary level. Even though our budget is very tight, we continue to work hard at improving every opportunity offered to the students.

The North Scott Community School District is a special place because of the support from all of our communities, parents, and staff. Even though I hold up our facilities and curriculum to any other school district, it is our staff and community that make the difference. I would personally like to thank everyone for being part of North Scott School Community Schools. I know we will have another great year.

GO LANCERS!

National Night Out a 'WOW!'

If I had to sum up our National Night Out remembrance chain event on last Tuesday evening with only one word it would be, "WOW"! The turnout of people who participated in the event was estimated at over 2,000 despite the weather which had just produced a downpour of rain in Eldridge.

Mayor Marty O'Boyle and I rode a bus from Sheridan Meadows Park all the way up to Long Grove and we were both amazed at the amount of people that had lined the bike path to take part in this nationwide night of camaraderie with law enforcement, as well as our North Scott night of remembrance of our students we have lost. It was emotional to see so many people united for our cause. We live in a great community and when you really look at the word community, you will find unity.

It was heartwarming to see the bike path lined up with our elders, our toddlers and every age in between. The many organizations were identified by their matching shirts, the sports teams and cheerleaders in their uniforms, and the tsunami of parents in their North Scott t-shirts forming a sea of humanity. They all came out in unity to show the families of those we have lost that this community mourns with you, each of us in our own way. But we also stand with you and though we grieve, we also celebrate those lives that touched so many hearts in this community. This was evident by the many emotional messages that I read which were written in chalk up and down the bike path. Although the evening was short the memory of it will last for a very long time.

I would like to thank the many organizations and individuals who supported us in our efforts. This was truly a result of great teamwork. A special thank you to April Rus and the North Scott Community Enhancement Project, Scott County Sheriff's Office, Eldridge Police Department, Eldridge and Long Grove Fire Departments, Eldridge and Long Grove Public Works, Eldridge and Long Grove Lions Clubs, North Scott Optimist Club, North Scott School District, North Scott Press, Quad City Times, Integrated Solutions, White Roofing Company, Mayor O'Boyle, Pat and Lora Dierickx, Dale and Jill Grunwald, Joe Zrostlik, my wife Patricia, and everyone who participated in making this a successful event. I would also like to thank Tri City Drone Services for their donation of time and effort in the filming and creating the video.

I am proud to be a part of such a great community. Several people have stated that they were glad to have participated in the event and would like to see us do it again. We are already thinking about next year. Great events such as the Bix 7, RAGBRAI, Floatzilla, and even Tug Fest all started out as a simple idea, but have since blossomed into the events that they are today. It is not my intention to compare the events, but rather to show that we can build on the foundation of our own North Scott event. The sky is our limit.

What do conservatives stand for?

Editor:

Only two choices?

Entertainment news and shock jocks are raking in millions of dollars convincing their viewers and listeners they are either liberals or conservatives.

I am a "fiscal conservative" and a "social liberal," as are many of my friends. I believe there are just as many Democrats in the pockets of special interests as Republicans. Our tax dollars are funding the mirage of power and prestige created by pols who've become no more than puppets at the end of strings dangling from the fingers of a few billionaires.

I remember when conservatives were patriots. They loved America and proudly served in the military. Serving, like voting, was a duty not a choice.

Conservatism once supported free trade rather than the harmful results and lost jobs and revenue resulting from a scatterbrained trade war.

Conservatism once stood for family values and would never support taking infants from parents and confining them in cages. These children have been emotionally scarred for perhaps their entire lifetimes.

Conservatism once supported reducing deficits. Dwight Eisenhower was the last Republican president to leave office with a surplus. America now has and will have, for years to come, the largest deficit in history.

Conservatives once united with Europe in defense against Russian interference in free world politics.

Conservatives would never have praised murderous dictators who have attacked America and European democratic systems.

Voting for Democrats this mid-term is the only way to send a message to the Family Values Party. Not to put Democrats in charge, but to send a message to both parties that it's time to get back to bipartisan politics focused on the American worker, families, infrastructure, healthcare, environment, education and reclaiming the fact that America truly was once "Great."

North Scott runners eye state meet berths

By Scott Campbell

NSP Editor

OK, let's just put it out there. Why mince words? If everybody's talking about it, what's the big deal? Let's put it down in black and white for all the world to see, and then sit back and enjoy the ride.

Make no mistake about it. North Scott's cross country teams are ready to roll, and if the 2018 season doesn't end in Fort Dodge, then there's going to be a whole slew of upset Lancers.

With a stable full of returning thoroughbreds chomping at the bit, and with a new trainer holding the reins, the Lancers are primed to build on last season's success and rise to new heights.

"I think I would be very disappointed if both teams don't qualify for state," said coach Amy Knoche, who has shed the co-coaching moniker she shared with Carrie Lane (now the principal at Camanche) for the past three seasons. "On paper we should have a very strong team, and of course, I'm excited about this year."

Both the girls' and boys' teams return six of their top seven runners from a year ago, where they both finished second at the Mississippi Athletic Conference meet, but fell short of advancing to state.

That most likely won't be the case this year.

"I just think we have a very talented group of kids, and a good mix of upperclassmen and underclassmen," said Knoche. "They aren't just fast kids, but kids who are talented in other areas. We have good leadership, and they are well rounded. We all have high expectations."

With so many returning veterans, not much has changed in the Lancer camp, except for the fact that Knoche has become the voice of reason.

"My comfort zone is being behind the scenes and dealing with all the details," she said, "so I've been doing that for quite a while. Now, I have to talk to parents and talk to you (the media). I guess I'm more of a public figure."

Knoche has been part of the program for years, and assumed the co-coaching role three years ago when Lane took on additional responsibilities in the classroom.

"We have been co-coaching for years," she said. "At first it was a political thing, because Shane (her husband) was the (high school) principal, and that's why we did a co role. So in that regard, it's been an easy transition.

"Still, my role has changed. In the past Carrie did most of the talking at practices, and now I'm doing most of the talking. I'm being more vocal, and I don't know if the kids ever saw that part of me.

"But this is a great group of kids," she continued. "I genuinely enjoy being with them, and they make it easy for me. We're another year faster, another year stronger, another year more mature."

Boys are ready to roll

There will be no surprise attack for North Scott's boys' team, especially after last year's exhilarating second-place finish at the MAC meet, and a strong sixth-place finish at the season-ending district meet.

"I think we surprised a lot of the MAC schools last year, and I think we'll have a target on our back as far as the MAC goes," said Knoche. "Now, as far as the state's concerned, I think we're going to surprise a lot of people there.

"Our boys will be unnoticed by the state early on, but by mid-September they are going to be noticed, and you'll see us in the state rankings."

Knoche isn't just blowing smoke. She has the horses to back up her words.

North Scott returns six of the seven boys who ran in last year's MAC and district meets, including their top five place winners.

"Yes, it was disappointing that the boys didn't make it to state last year," said Knoche, "but when you look at it compared to two years ago, when they finished ninth in the MAC, going from almost worst to almost first, that's pretty good."

The Lancers know they have some unfinished business, and seniors Jackson Schrock and Gabe Jensen have been varsity mainstays for four years. They are primed to finish their careers in Fort Dodge.

Other returnees include senior Colin Wiersema and sophomores Max Adkisson, Chase Porter and Owen West.

"Let me tell you, Jackson has worked his butt off this summer," said Knoche. "He ran over 300 miles, and his motor just never quits. You have to tell him to relax and rest, and he still pushes himself."

Schrock, as he's been for the past two years, will be the Lancer leader, and right now it's Jensen, Porter and West who are waging a battle to see who will be the first to follow him across the finish line.

"Right now, those three are pretty interchangeable," said Knoche. "Max hasn't done much over the summer, but he's naturally gifted. He probably won't be in that No. 2 position right away, but maybe by the end of summer. Right now, Colin is faster than Max."

"Jackson is definitely are No. 1, but after that I think it will be a toss-up on any given day, depending on who's feeling good."

And there's a whole host of hungry stallions ready to prove themselves on the varsity level, and on the cusp of cracking the top seven are seniors Payton Dieckman, Zach Garrard and David Boetger, juniors Jake Blowers, Bryce Golden and Chris Tague, sophomore Will Dowda and freshman Luke Crawford.

"I really think that spots five through seven could be open," said Knoche. "Everybody is so close right now, and I think our lineup's going to change a lot.

"In the past, you could be an OK athlete and make varsity at North Scott. This year, kids are actually competing for spots"

And they all appear to put the team first.

"The thing about them is they all get along and have no selfish agendas," said Knoche. "They all want to do so well as a team, and they don't care if they're No. 7 that particular week. They compete and work well with each other, and want each other to succeed."

Lancer girls looking for redemption

It's no secret North Scott's girls ended the season on a disappointing note, as their fourth-place finish at the district meet kept them from making a return appearance at the state meet, and took a little shine off the luster of their runner-up MAC finish, where they were just two points from the title.

Boasting five girls who have finished their seasons in Fort Dodge, experience should not be a problem.

Senior Sommer Clydesdale has run in three state meets, while juniors Presley Case and Abbi Lafrenz have qualified the last two years, with Case finishing as high as ninth her freshman campaign.

Senior Chloe Engelkes and junior Zoe Warm were part of the seven-girl contingent that qualified in 2016. Engelkes didn't come out last year after tearing her ACL in soccer, and Warm battled injuries much of the season.

There's no shortage of experience, as Clydesdale, Case and Lafrenz, along with senior Katie Jackovich, junior Emily Kundel and sophomore Alissa Bockenfeld all ran varsity last year. Still, Knoche says there is still plenty of work to do.

"We do have five girls with state potential," said Knoche. "Right now? No. At the end of September? Probably."

Clydesdale as been battling a nagging hip injury and is a ways away from being at full strength. Case, who has been the Lancer leader for two seasons, has been concentrating on basketball, and hasn't had time to put in a lot of miles.

"Presley's first love is basketball, and that's great for her," said Knoche. "We all know it will take a while for her to get back, and it might be September before she's in the form that we want her to be in, and that she wants to be in. We're OK with that."

With Case working herself back into shape, the Lancers will most likely be led by Lafrenz and Jackovich.

"Abbi is looking pretty strong, and Katie has been working hard all summer, and I expect her to be in our top three," said Knoche. They have been doing a lot of road racing this summer and coming in with pretty comparable times."

Engelkes and Warm have also seemingly secured varsity spots, along with Kundel. Also looking good are sophomore Grace Sindt and freshman Ava Garrard.

"Grace is one who probably would've been on varsity lest

"Grace is one who probably would've been on varsity last year, but she twisted her ankle in early September and that put her out for most of the season," said Knoche.

The coach said she expects the girls to get off to a slower start, but that it won't take long for them to gain steam.

"I think our girls may show up ranked right away, and then drop off just because of how we're coming into the season," she said. "By the end of September, we'll be back."

The Lancers will open the season on Tuesday when they participate in the Mount Vernon Invitational.

Formidable firepower

Lancer spikers ready to challenge for MAC championship

By Scott Campbell

NSP Editor

Between getting married, going on a honeymoon and spending time in the gym with her team, it's been a busy summer for North Scott volleyball coach Allie Miguel.

Now it's time for the real fun to begin.

Coming off a 23-9 campaign that saw the Lancers finish one small step away from a coveted state tournament berth, expectations are running rampant in the North Scott camp as Miguel begins her sixth year at the helm.

Fueled by the return of a formidable front row, which features four of the top five hitters from a year ago, North Scott appears primed to make a run at a Mississippi Athletic Conference title, and yes, snare that elusive state tourney bid.

VOLLEYBALL

Oh, how things have changed. After suffering through a rough four-year stretch where the Lancers compiled disappointing 29-89 credentials, Miguel — formerly Schwiebert — has the Lancers heading in the direction.

After last year's turnaround campaign, which marked the fourth most wins in school history, and with just three seniors on the varsity roster, the Lancers are built for success, now and in the future.

"I've been looking forward to this season for a long time," said Miguel. "We have a lot of potential, and a lot of firepower.

"This group of girls is so much fun to hang around with, and we have so many returners back who are awesome leaders. We go in the gym, we laugh and we work hard. Going to practice is awesome when you have girls that will give it all they got and have fun doing it."

That word, "firepower," comes up a lot in conversation with Miguel, and rightfully so. North Scott's recipe for success hinges on the return of four starters who are absolute beasts at the net.

When you throw senior Bailee Kroeger — who has been battling injuries and champing at the bit to show her stuff for four years — into the mix, it's clear that the Lancer front row is loaded for bear.

"I'm most excited about our versatility, our firepower and the big wall we can put up at the net," said Miguel. "We have lots of experience in that front row with (juniors) Kendal McNaull, Emma Powell, and Grace Boffeli, and (senior) Emma Morgan.

"There's a lot of varsity experience there, and they've been awesome leaders in the off-season. They've worked really hard and it's exciting to see them put the ball down and also get some big blocks."

The 5'11" Powell led the team in kills a year ago with 271, followed by graduated senior Alexis Hayes (245), the 6'1" Boffeli (172), the 6'0" McNaull (159) and the 5'11" Morgan (84).

McNaull (70) and Boffeli (32) led the team in blocks.

As for the 5'9" Kroeger, Miguel is expecting a breakout season.

of injuries," said Miguel. "She struggled with concussions most of last season, and I'm hoping her senior season will be a time she can show everybody what she's been showing us in practice all the time."

With so many offensive weapons in her team's arsenal, Miguel has plenty of options when setting her lineup, and she's looking at a nine-girl rotation that will also feature some new faces.

McNaull will anchor the front row, along with Morgan and 5'10" freshman Ella McLaughlin. Boffeli and Morgan will wail away from the right side, while Powell and Kroeger will mostly fire away from the left side, with McLaughlin also seeing time there.

"Ella has done some awesome stuff in the off-season," said Miguel. "She's played some High Performance stuff this summer, and has been a real good addition to the front row. She has some good firepower and a good block. She's in the rotation."

When it comes to the outside, the Lancers have the luxury of being interchangeable, although Powell will almost always be on the left and Boffeli on the right.

"We played around with Grace being in the middle, which is where she's played the last couple seasons, but we moved her to the right side to see how it would go. She is so much more powerful from the right side, and it's been fun to watch her be in a better spot. She really puts some balls down there."

In order for the offense to click, someone needs to pull the trigger, and that's the one big question mark with this team.

"Our biggest challenge is replacing setter Hannah Grimm (who delivered 806 of the team's 903 assists)," said Miguel, "and those are definitely big shoes to fill. However, we're finding that we have some young girls who are willing to step up for that."

omore Taylor Robertson (5'7") have the inside track, although junior Sam Lee (5'7") could also find herself in the mix for playing time

"Taylor is trying to pick up things really fast," said Miguel. "If you had asked me last year, while watching Taylor as a freshman, if she would be our varsity setter, I'd have said no way.

"But she has put in so much work and is thirsty for knowledge. She's done a really good job and has gotten better as the summer progressed. Megan was our JV setter last year, and did a good job. All that we're missing is that varsity experience, but they are both getting better."

Defensively, the Lancers are in good hands. Powell and Kroeger will play the full rotation, and senior Maddie Allison (5'6") will be the team's lone defensive specialist, filling in for McNaull and McLaughlin.

Robertson and Loussaert will also see action in the back row.

"Our defense looks pretty good," said Miguel. "We have some girls stepping up and doing good things for us back there. Emma Powell is a digging machine in the back row, and Maddie has stepped up and done a really good job back there. We're excited for what we have."

Also vying for playing time are a quartet of juniors, including setter Lauren Han-

Season opener is Tuesday

North Scott will open the 2018 season Tuesday night by hosting Clinton. Coach Allie Miguel said that if her team wants to contend for the MAC title, they need to be ready to roll.

"Our MAC schedule will be challenging right off the bat, as our first three games are against Clinton, Bettendorf and PV. We'll have to come out with our guns blazing at the beginning of the season if we want that MAC title."

son (5'7"), outside hitter Adriane Latham (5'10") and defensive specialists Rachel Anderson (5'6") and Paige Blaskovich (5'7"). Freshman Grace Graham (5'10") could also see the court, although she'll also play with the freshman team.

With so much talent and depth, there's no doubt The Pit could be a hopping place this fall

"These girls want to be on top of the MAC, and we want to get to state," said Miguel. "This team has every ability to be able to make it there. They're working hard, and I think we're just as talented if not more talented than we were last year.

"I'm excited for another great year of Lancer volleyball."

After stellar run in DeWitt, NS grad leads Lancer golf program

By Scott Campbell

NSP Editor

There's a new but familiar face atop the scorecard of North Scott's boys' golf program, and he comes with a whole lot of course cred.

After leading Central DeWitt to back-toback state titles, 2006 Lancer graduate Collin Ellis is returning to his old stomping grounds to lead a North Scott program that boasts 27 players this fall.

Ellis, who was hired earlier this summer to teach language arts at North Scott Junior High, will be taking over the reins from former coach Tony Phillips.

"I graduated from here, and I've always wanted to come back here and teach," said Ellis, who spent the previous six years teaching in DeWitt, where he coached golf for five seasons as well as junior high football and basketball

"We live here in Eldridge, just a few blocks from the junior high, so I knew I wanted to eventually get back. It's good to be a Lancer again."

Ellis said he's always wanted to be a coach, and considers it an extra perk of being a teacher.

"It's a way to interact with kids in more ways than just the classroom, and that's definitely fun," he said.

didn't even play golf until after high school, but grew to love the sport and got the coaching job in DeWitt out of necessity.

He's now bringing that love back to North Scott, and he's excited about the group of young men he'll be putting on the course this

He ran a youth camp earlier in the summer, and practice started a week ago. The team's first meet was Friday, and the Lancers certainly seemed to get off on the right foot as they opened the season with a fourthplace finish at Friday's Muskie Invitational.

"First and foremost, I'm most impressed with the sheer number of kids that we have out this fall," said Ellis. "That's new to me, and obviously encouraging. We have 27 guys out, and that's twice as many as I typically had in DeWitt. That alone was really encouraging."

Ellis and assistant coach Zeb Hubner had a target number of 24 players, but decided that they could make things work with 27, and chose not to make any cuts.

"I worried a lot about having to cut people, just because golf is such a lifelong sport and I wouldn't want anybody to have to give it up," said Ellis. "We may have some kids that might be rotating a couple of days just so we don't overcrowd the course and practice facility, but we will make it work."

Ellis is impressed with the talent level he's inherited, especially a "really good core" of

"We had our first meet the other day, and we took six seniors, which was awesome," said Ellis, "just because those guys have some experience. However, it looks like quite a few young guys are going to be in the mix for playing in those top six positions down the road.

"Competition is good, and it's nice to have guys battling each other a little bit and putting the pressure on each other to perform."

Pleasant Valley was easily the class of the 12-team field — which consisted of all Mississippi Athletic Conference schools, plus Iowa City High and Iowa City Liberty by firing a collective 301, followed by City High (353), Bettendorf (357) and the Lanc-

The Spartans placed four players in the top six, with all breaking 80. North Scott senior Mitchell Temperly finished 12th after carding an 84, while fellow senior Reese Sommers finished with an 85.

Rounding out the Lancer scoring were seniors Carson Youngquist (93), Owen Long (97), Keaton Murphy (97) and Peyton Wat-

"Early on, and I'm going by our tryouts and the first meet, but I think Mitchell and Reese are going to be those two cornerstones of the team," said Ellis. "We've practiced so little, that I really don't know who will be the next four, six or eight guys.'

Ellis and his team haven't had a chance to talk about goals for the season, other than to go out and compete well.

"We don't know where we're at as far as how we're going to look compared to rest of the MAC," he said, "but we're just talking about getting better every day and competing with ourselves rather than being worried about what everybody else is doing. That's been our focus so far.'

So far, things have gone well, and Ellis is looking forward to the season. The Lancers will next be in action on Monday, when they host the annual Lancer Invitational at Glynns Competing teams include all of the MAC schools except Burlington, as well as Western Dubuque.

"I'm just excited for the season," said Ellis, who with his wife, Chelsea — a teacher in DeWitt — is expecting their first child in October. "Getting used to a new school, system and procedures will take a little bit of time, but the easy part is getting out there and teaching and experiencing the season together with all the ups and downs of the game of golf.

"I really love the attitude the guys have. It's a really fun group, and they seem to talk about everything and anything. Quite a few of them are friends, and so far they're staying late and coming early. That's been exciting, and that makes me thing the season will be a lot of fun."

Football scrimmage set for Friday

North Scott will unofficially kick off the 2018 football season Friday night with a preseason scrimmage against Burlington in Lancer Stadium.

The combined freshman and sophomore teams will take the field at 5 p.m. for a controlled 50-minute scrimmage.

Residents receive Medicaid cards

Residents on Medicare will soon be getting a surprise letter from the U.S. Government: a new Medicare ID card.

In April, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid (CMS) began mailing new Medicare cards to every person on Medicare. The mailings occur in waves, and Iowa is in the wave of new cards that are currently being mailed.

The new Medicare cards were created in order to protect Medicare members' identities. The new Medicare cards will no longer have the Medicare member's Social Security Number listed, but instead will have a new Medicare number. Even though the Medicare cards have changed, no changes will be made to a member's Medicare benefits due to this

"About 59 million Medicare members have been or will be affected by these changes nationwide," said Carolyn Dannatt of Mississippi Valley Associates in Davenport. "With a big change like this, people are going to have a lot of questions. That's why it's so important to communicate the facts about this new process."

Other states will receive their Medicare cards in waves until April 2019. There will be a transition period when individuals can use both their old and new card through December 2019. However, it is recommended that members destroy their old Medicare card via a shredder or scissors as soon as they receive their new Medicare card.

With the confusion come opportunities to mislead those currently on Medicare. Scammers are taking advantage of this situation by calling Medicare members and asking for personal information in exchange for their new Medicare numbers.

"Medicare members should be cautious of any phone call they receive regarding their new cards," said Dannatt. "CMS will not call and ask you for your information. If you receive a suspicious call, hang up and report it to your local insurance agent.'

City of Eldridge & Long Grove: Grain Bin Clearance Guidelines

Thinking about building a grain bin?

If you're planning to build or move a grain bin, either on your property or for someone else, you need to be familiar with lowa's law on required distances from overhead electric lines. This law was put in place to provide protection from the hazard of contacting overhead electric lines to anyone working around grain bins with augers, elevators, or other equipment.

The drawings inside this brochure show the specific clearance requirements related to permanently installed augers and portable augers. There must be at least 18 feet between the top of any grain bin and any overhead electric lines. These distances were developed by the American National Standards Institute. Figure 232.4(b) can be found in the 2017 Edition National Electrical Safety Code (NESC). As your electric service provider, we're responsible for ensuring that these specifications are met. In fact, in any situation where minimum clearance requirements are not observed, the utility may refuse electric service.

So if a new grain bin is on your list of projects, please give us a call. We will work with you in developing a site plan for your project.

We're your partner in farm safety.

At work or at play, stay safe outdoors when electricity is around. Here are some tips:

Keep clear of power lines.

- · When working beneath power lines, use wooden or fiberglass ladders instead of metal
- Never place a ladder where it can fall into a power line.
- When carrying ladders, augers, or other tools, look up to make sure contact with overhead lines is avoided.

2. Never try to move an electric line.

- Don't attempt to raise or move power lines. Call your utility for assistance
- If you see a downed power line, call the utility immediately. Don't go near it.

3. Check out your equipment.

- distance away from water.
- Power tools should be properly grounded. Use only heavy duty extension cords rated specifically for outdoor use.
- · Outdoor electrical outlets should have ground-fault circuit interrupter protection and have weatherproof covers.
- 4. If you are driving a tractor or other vehicle that comes in contact with an electric line...
  - · Try to back away from the line.
  - If you are unable to back away, stay put! · Have someone call your local utility to
  - de-energize the line. · If you must leave the tractor, jump clear,
  - putting both feet forward at once, and avoid any contact with the ground and the vehicle at the same time
