Scott County sheriff Tim Lane recently swore in three new deputies, including a former special education teacher, an Iowa National Guardsman, and a factory assembler who will join his wife on the county's force.

Lane, and sheriff's Major Shawn Roth, welcomed the trio into the Scott County sheriff's "family.'

'We talk a lot about family. We do serious work, but you become part of a bigger family," Roth told the new recruits, surrounded by relatives for the Aug. 25 ceremony at the sheriff's patrol station in Eldridge.

He also had some advice for families.

"If they stop talking, give them a hug. They may not want to talk about it now, but they will. Or call us. We're family. We can talk," he said.

Lane welcomed the new deputies to a growing department, and introduced county supervisor Brinson Kinzer, who

Vendors kick in thousands

Student-built home firms bid low, and give back

By Mark Ridolfi

NSP Assistant Editor Donations from four businesses carved thousands off the cost of this school year's student-built home, project coordinator James Simmons told North Scott school board members Monday night.

Bids from Precision Air, Peterson Plumbing, ABC Supply Co., and Kipper's Carpentry will reduce material and labor costs under bids the school board approved Monday.

In July, the board encouraged Simmons' suggestion to bid labor and materials separately, and seek donations whenever possible.

He expects donations to ultimately reduce costs by $50,000.

"All told, from July 1 to now, we're at $300,000 in build costs, and we were at $350,000,"

Board member Tracy Lindaman commended his re-sults. "James,

ABC Supply, of Davenport, is providing roofing materials essentially at half price, Simmons said. The company's bid of $3,500 will cover about $7,500 worth of material, he said.

Eldridge carpenter Peter Kipper agreed to provide two weeks of labor, plus $200 gift certificates to two students for tools, as part of his $3,500 labor contract.

Simmons said the deeply discounted labor cost included, "absolutely out-standing" instruction.

"He stays with them start to finish. This guy should be a high school teacher," Simmons said.

The ABC and Kipper donations make the entire cost for the roof $7,000. "It should be far more than that," Simmons said.

"This is my fourth year teaching kids how to roof a house. I've been dealing with youth for years. I love that age group," Kipper said.

He got his start as a building trades student at Moline High School, class of 1982. "I've got 41 years of knowledge, and I love giving it to the building trade kids," he said.

Peter and Franziska Kipper moved to Eldridge "specifically for the North Scott district," he said. Franziska passed away earlier this year. Their children, Sam and Sophia, attend White Elementary.

Kipper expects to be on a rooftop with students in about two weeks.

"The trusses arrive this week. I expect it will take the kids a couple weeks to get them up and sheet it," he said.

Board members approved contracts Monday that include free equipment and discounted labor for this year's student-built home in Eldridge's Grunwald addition.

Enrollment flat, but more kids in seats

The district's weighted enrollment to the state should stay about the same this school year, even as open enrollment drew nearly 100 students to the district.

Superintendent Joe Stutting said state aid is calculated on student numbers and needs. Pre-schoolers attending half days, for example, count as half a student position. Special education students can count more than double, depending on needs.

"If you think about enrollment of resident kids, it's a flat enrollment," he said. "But we didn't expect law changes that we'd get 98 kids in open enrollment."

The legislature allowed year-round open enrollment, and lifted restrictions on Davenport students wanting to leave their district. Stutting said open enrollment students are bringing about $1 million in state funding to the district.

LANCER PRIDE AWARD

Board cheers district supporters

Board chairman Joni Ditmer introduced monthly Lancer Pride awards and bestowed them to athletic booster club director Lynn Kilburg, high school counselor Anastasia Nikolopoulos, and Armstrong kindergarten teachers Carolyn Lewis and Karree Hodge.

The awards recognized those who "live out the North Scott district vision, mission and values, and this is a way to do that," Ditmer said.

Kilburg has been "the backbone of the athletic booster club for years," Ditmer said. "He's willing to do whatever it takes to support the club. If you go to events, you see him there." Nikolopoulos "goes above and beyond in everything she does," Ditmer said. "She takes on more than she probably should with her willingness to help all students in need." She also serves on a statewide youth suicide prevention board.

Lewis and Hodge were recognized for innovative classroom instruction, specifically, staging a wedding of the letters Q and U for their kindergarten students. The pair donned their own wedding dresses for the marriage of the two letters.

"They developed a fun, engaging way for students to remember how Q and U go together," Ditmer said.

North Scott has limited open enrollment only when classes are full.

The board on Monday declined one open enrollment request from a Davenport seventh-grader, and another from a DeWitt 11th-grader.

"We're up kids we're actually educating overall. But counting kids for our budget, we'll be flat," he said.

More propane buses

The district will buy two new propane buses this school year, making propane the fuel for 25 of the district's 39 buses.

Board members approved seeking bids this month for vehicles they expect to purchase in November.

Transportation director Luann Baetke said diesel buses get 4.4 miles per gallon, and cost about 54 cents a mile to operate.

Board objects to carbon pipeline plan

North Scott school board members officials formally objected to plans for carbon waste pipelines from Iowa ethanol plants across a portion of the school district.

The board sent a letter asking the Iowa Utility Board to keep Wolf Carbon Solutions' pipeline at least two miles away from any school.

Stutting said a parent alerted him to the concern.

"The company really hasn't done its due diligence about safety," Stutting told the board. "It's considered a public utility even though it's ADM's private pipeline," to carry ethanol plant waste for underground disposal in Decatur, Ill.

The pipeline plan plots a mile-wide path where Wolf representatives are negotiating with landowners. Stutting said that could put the pipeline within a mile of the district's Donahue, Long Grove, Princeton and Park View schools. "So that's why we oppose any closer than two miles to a school," he said.

School board member John Maxwell owns a dairy farm within the path. He also is a Scott County supervisor who also objected.

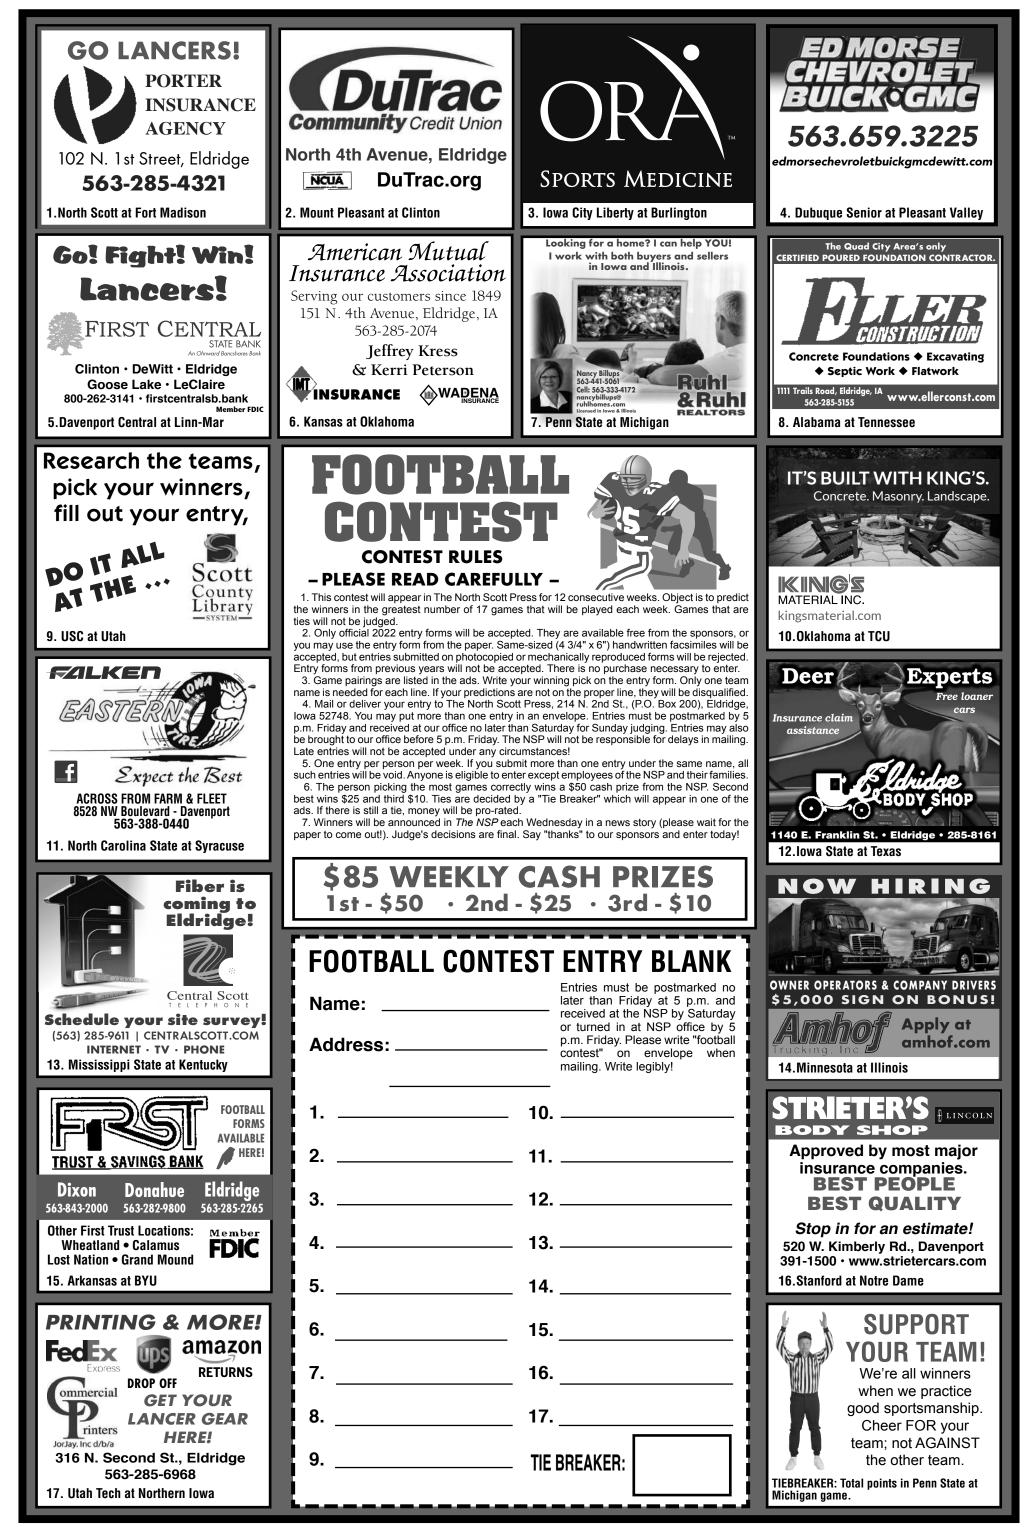

He warned of leak threats. "We know it follows the ground and sucks oxygen out of the lungs of an animal or human," Maxwell said. "We looked at it at supervisor level and thought it was pretty callous of them to go through and have no regard to safety."

Full text of the letter:

"Members of the North Scott Community School District Board of Directors have been informed of the Wolf Carbon Solutions US LLC regarding the proposed CO2 pipeline that would extend throughout Scott County. Our school district has a junior and a senior high school in Eldridge. We also have five elementary schools in the north part of Scott County in the following cities: Donahue, Long Grove, Park View, Princeton and Eldridge. We are concerned for the safety of our students and staff at all of our buildings should this permit be approved and the pipeline built.

^aA CO2 spill would be hard to identify by odor or visually and as far as we know, Wolf Carbon Solutions has not developed a unique odor for detection. Additionally, they have not developed a dispersion model. A failure of this pipeline close to a school could be devastating.

"As the School Board of the North Scott Community School District, we are opposed to the Wolf Carbon Solutions CO2 pipeline coming within two miles of any one of our school buildings. We took formal action on this letter on Monday, Oct. 10 at our meeting."

Annual discipline report shows differences across grade levels

By Mark Ridolfi

NSP Assistant Editor

Insubordination, disrespect and tobacco cause the most discipline reports at North Scott High School, while technology violations top the junior high list.

Discipline report totals for the 2021-22 school year show that 76 of the 176 discipline reports at the high school involved defiance issues or tobacco.

In the junior high, 81 of 152 discipline reports involved a technology violation, defiance, insubordination, physical aggression without injury and disrespect.

Of the 315 elementary schools reports, 197 involved physical aggression without injury, disruption, or bus referrals.

School board members reviewed the reports at the Sept. 12 meeting.

The latest North Scott school district discipline reports reflect a more consistent application of standards across elementary, junior high and high schools.

Superintendent Joe Stutting said administrators revised reporting practices after finding big discrepancies, especially between junior high and high school standards.

"A year ago, the numbers were so different. One thing principals did was get consistent about what is being documented in Power school. Last year, the junior high had a category five times the same high school category," Stutting told board members meeting Sept. 12.

Building principals said the report counts each transgression, not just the worst behavior arising in an incident.

For example, if high school students are caught smoking and fighting, "Then they'd both be recorded," high school principal Shane Knoche said. "If we see a fight, then find out bullying has been happening, we put both in.'

He noted that new vape detectors in bathrooms should make a dent. The school reported 19 tobacco and 16 drug incidents last school year.

Technology violations top the junior high report. Certain search terms trigger an alert, then staff determines if a discipline report is warranted. "You'd be surprised what filters don't catch," junior high principal Chad Jones said.

Elementary reports showed 111 incidents of physical aggression without injury.

'It's when they're angry or upset with each other. Rarely does it ever get where it becomes really aggressive or punches. It's more like they're pushing and shoving," Armstrong Elementary principal Tim Green said.

Glenn Elementary principal Erin Paysen said each discipline report triggers an intervention.

"When these things pop up, we'll start to notice maybe that a student needs some one-on-one assistance, maybe a couple of conversations with the principal, talk about body control, ability to cope. We do intervene and help them build those skills up," Paysen said.

was a special education teacher. Law was raised in Basco, Ill., and holds an MBA and master's degree in curriculum and instruction from Western Governor's University. He also has a bachelor's degree in interdisciplinary studies with an emphasis in behavioral sciences from Western Illinois University. Hobbies include playing guitar, riding motorcycles, martial arts/fitness training, aviation and spending time with his wife, Erin, and his 20-month-old son, Merrick.

"Being an older person, sometimes you might feel limited in what I can do in life. I don't feel that way here," Law said at the ceremony.

Kobe Ahrens was born in Bettendorf, and graduated from Bettendorf High School. He earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Iowa, with a major in criminology law and justice, with a minor in military science.

He was a member of Iowa Army ROTC, commissioned into the Iowa National Guard 185th CSSB and is currently a second lieutenant specializing and branched in military intelligence. The youngest of the new deputies, Ahrens said he was no stranger to Eldridge.

"Only a couple years ago I was riding out here to the soccer fields for practice," he recalled.

New deputy Jeremy Johannes joins his wife, Samantha, who became a Scott County deputy 53 weeks ago.

Jeremy Johannes is from Belvidere, Ill., and a graduate Belvidere North High School. He built and welded trailers from 2014 to 2018, and eventually moved to Davenport and worked for John Deere. After three years at John Deere, Jeremy went to work for J.T. Cullen, in Fulton, until his hiring with the Scott County Sheriff's Office.

He and Samantha have two boys, Lane, 5, and Mason, 7.

All three new deputies are off to the Iowa Law Enforcement Academy.

Sheriff Lane welcomed back two new deputies who just graduated from the academy as part of their class' leadership team.

Deputies Paul Pridemore and James Raabie will be assigned full-time to the jail, due to a shortage of correctional officers, Sheriff Lane said.

Lane also commended deputies Carlos Delgado and Alex Gries with a crimefighter award. The pair collared a sex offender just an hour after the Iowa Department of Corrections alerted deputies he was missing. They found him hiding on his father's rural county property.

County earns 35th consecutive financial award

The Government Finance Officers Association bestowed its 35th consecutive certificate of achievement for excellence in financial reporting to Scott County for its latest annual comprehensive financial report.

The association also bestowed its 28th consecutive annual recognition for the county's latest annual budget report.

Just three counties are among the 24 Iowa government units honored with the certificate of achievement for publishing, "an easily readable and efficiently organized comprehensive annual financial report," county executives said in a press release.

Supervisors credited county budget director David Farmer, treasurer's office financial manager Megan Petersen, auditor's office business manager Wes Rostenbach, and county administrator Mahesh Sharma.

Supervisors also recognized these staff members for award-winning work on this year's budget:

Pam Brown, office administrator, sheriff; Chris Berge, ERP/ECM budget analyst; Amanda Orr, ERP/ECM budget analyst; Roland Caldwell, auditor operations manager; Lori Elam, community service and mental health region CEO; Chris Mathias, planning and development director; Renee Luze-Johnson, administration executive assistant; Deborah Dierkes, administration executive assistant: Amy Thoreson, health department director; Sara Skelton, recorder's operations administrator; Amber Sullivan, conservation senior administrative assistant; Megan Petersen, treasurer's finance manager; Kathy Walsh, attorney's office administrator.

Cooper vs. Stoltenberg for House District 81

Stoltenburg backs governor's voucher program for private schools

What experiences will make you a good legislator, and how will you make a difference in the statehouse?

"I am a prior business owner and have managed several businesses. I have been involved in non-profit organizations and volunteered many hours in our community. I have worked on many campaigns and helped on legislative issues. But more important than that, I genuinely care about the people I will represent. It's the people's right to have a voice in their government at every level, local, state, and federal. The people deserve to be represented rather than deep-pocketed businesses and lobbyists. I will listen to those I represent and work hard on solutions to serve them better.

What are your priorities for legislative service?

"One of the first priorities would be education. I would also like to work on medical freedom, lowering property taxes, making adoption more affordable, and protecting the lives of women and the pre-born.'

The legislature's support of public education has been generous? Sufficient? Lacking? What do you support?

"I think legislators have done an excellent job this year balancing the $8.209 billion state budget. Schools have received a generous 2.5-percent increase, and state universities and community colleges have received an increase of $12 million. Education costs make up 54 percent of our entire state budget. We need more accountability for where our tax dollars are spent, so we know it is going toward teaching and providing for students needs, and paying teachers, rather than administrative costs."

School vouchers: Gov. Reynolds has vowed public funding for private school vouchers. What do you support?

Gov. Reynolds was proposing establishing Education Savings Accounts for 10,000 students, including 5,000 students at 400 percent below poverty level, and 5,000 students with IEPs or special needs. Those education savings accounts would follow the individual student, not an institution.

'Iowa pays about $7,500 per student to the school. This proposal would have taken $5,400 of the $7,500 to pay a school of the parents choice. Parents know the best environment their children learn in. "The money could also go to educational therapies like tutoring, cognitive skills training, or software. The public school would still get to keep the $2,100 difference without having that child in the school. This allows those who are at a disadvantage to have the opportunity for an education their children need. This proposal also creates competition for public schools, which will help them strive for excellence, and be more accountable with our tax dollars.

"The only part of the bill I did not agree with was some of that $5,400 would go to rural schools that may not be in the district, and have no cost related to that child."

Rural development: Carbon pipeline and solar panel firms are seeking lowa farmland for industrial and commercial development. How will you as an elected legislator respond to this latest energy investment in Iowa farm fields?

"I have been doing research on the carbon pipeline that is wanting to come through Iowa. The first issue I have is how they will come in? Will they work with Iowa farmers, or will they try to use eminent domain to take farmers land? I am opposed to the carbon pipeline companies using eminent domain to take people's land.

"I am not sure I would call this "energy investment," as they are taking carbon emissions, pressurizing them into a liquid, and then pumping them thousands of miles across the country, to then pump them into the ground. So, there is NO investment, just money to be made in our tax dollars, by the companies transporting the carbon dioxide. Transporting this liquid and then pumping it into the porous ground is very dangerous, especially if the pipes were to break or explode because of the high pressure needed to pump the liquid through the pipeline and into the ground.

"As I research the cost of these developments, one must wonder if any of these developments would exist if it were not for the excessive funding of our tax dollars.

"These experiences and others have prepared me well to serve the public as a state representative. I will listen and learn how I can best serve residents of HD81. For me, this is a public service project, not a third career of my work life.

"I think my backgrounds in newspaper journalism and corporate communications at Genesis Health System helped me maintain and expand my natural curiosity about how organizations and systems work. Curiosity will help me during the learning curve to become an effective representative of HD81."

What are your priorities for legislative service?

"Representing HD81 to the best of

The legislature's support of public education has been generous? Sufficient? Lacking? What do you support?

"It appears that public schools and public school educators are being targeted and disrespected by the governor and many Republican legislators. This thought is supported by an insufficient funding of Iowa schools to offset rising costs; openly questioning the motives of teachers and what and how they teach; and, the extremely unpopular idea to funnel public schools dollars to private schools. I support public funds for public schools and so do a wide majority of HD81 residents I have visited.

"Also, as a person who reads a lot and has written or contributed to seven books, I will not support any attempt to limit reading materials in school libraries. Some of the books making the threatened lists nationally are classics. Parents can decide appropriate reading materials for their own children but should not be allowed to make the same decision for other parents.

"I have yet to have someone who says schools should ban the teaching critical race theory (CRT) explain what constitutes CRT. Most people would consider CRT to be history. Cleansing history is a dangerous road to make a single step upon."

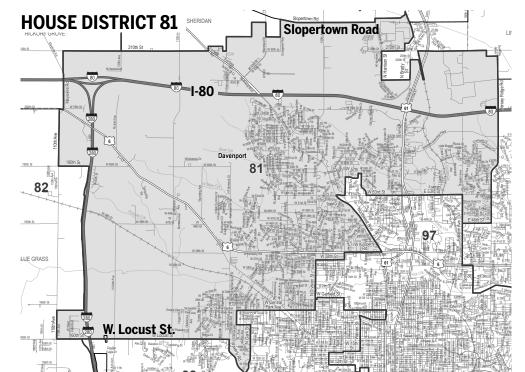

Rural development: Carbon pipeline and solar panel firms are seeking lowa farmland for industrial and commercial development. How will you as an elected legislator respond to this latest energy investment in Iowa farm fields?

"I think Iowa needs to be thoughtful and careful about any new pipeline projects. Does the benefit outweigh the potential risk? Iowa is a leader in renewable energy coming from wind fields scattered across the state and should continue to look at clean, renewable energy. At this point, I think there is less safety and environmental risk from solar projects than pipeline projects.

"I think we need to look at state recreational areas and state parks to invest in future as Iowa tries to lure more residents and businesses. It is disturbing to me that state park lakes I swam in now have routine water quality warnings. This is usually the result of chemicals used in fields and runoff from those chemicals. Improving Iowa's environment is possible working with agriculture to reduce use and runoff.

"Iowa has one-time, COVID-19 recovery dollars, which could be used for a 'one time' investment in the Iowa DNR.

"Reproductive freedom: Iowans should e able to make reproductive decisions right for them. This should include le-gal, safe, confidential access to abortion. The surgical abortion procedure is statistically much safer than carrying a child to birth, especially for minority women who may have barriers to vital pre-natal care for mom and child."

Donations totaling $14,000 from the Scott County Regional Authority are improving Eldridge volunteer firefighter equipment.

Isle of Capri casino revenue disbursed by the Scott County Regional Authority in 2021 funded the purchases.

A spring 2021 grant for $10,000 helped fund four sets of turnout gear.

A fall 2021 grant of $4,000 helped cover a new hose.

Fire chief Keith Schneckloth said the contributions are essential to the fully volunteer department.

Mommsen vs. Pence for House District 70

Eldridge Dem brings union experience

Kay Pence grew up in Donahue and brings experience organizing for unions, and volunteering on Partners for Scott County Watersheds projects. Pence, and her husband, Mike, celebrated their 47th anniversary this year. They have three sons and six grandchildren.

She holds a bachelor of arts degree in business administration from Marycrest University, and earned an MBA from St. Ambrose University. She worked 27 years as a telephone technician before working full-time for her union.

"I grew up in a large family in a small community of Donahue. We all knew and cared for each other. The kids all played together. When someone needed help, we didn't ask what their politi-didn't ask Kay Pence their political party was. We helped.

"I'm as worn down as you are by today's political divisiveness. We all want to go back to the sense of community when you weren't afraid to talk to your neighbors and we all worked together for the betterment of the community.

"I spent my career bringing people together and it is a skill I will bring to the legislature. As your candidate for the Iowa House, I've spent the summer and fall reaching out to you and listening to your concerns. My number one priority is looking out for you. Not just the rich and powerful special interests that influence so many of today's lawmakers."

The legislature's support of public education has been generous? Sufficient? Lacking? What do you support?

"The Republican legislature's support of public education is lacking in two important ways: underfunding and respect for teachers. Republicans capped supplemental state aid to remain below rising costs. They eliminated teachers' collective bargaining rights and their voice at work. I will vote to remove the SSA cap, restore collective bargaining rights, and oppose vouchers.

"Republican extremists accused teachers of having a sinister agenda, and my opponent piled on by proposing cameras in the classrooms with fines for teachers. Book bans and jail time are regularly threatened. Good teachers are leaving, and who blames them? I will work tirelessly in support of our public schools."

School vouchers: Gov. Reynolds has vowed public funding for private school vouchers. What do you support?

"I am firmly against vouchers. Public dollars are for public schools."

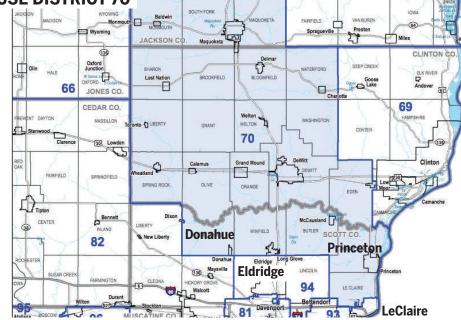

Rural development: Carbon pipeline and solar panel firms are seeking lowa farmland for industrial and commercial development. How will you as an elected legislator respond to this latest energy investment in lowa farm fields?

"Republican legislators turned their backs on constituents by caving to deep-pocketed special interests. They flip-flopped on the eminent domain moratorium. I support private property rights AND good jobs. Let's take the threat of eminent domain off of the table and allow the parties to negotiate as equals.

"Republicans also let the voters down by not establishing minimal state regulations regarding hazardous pipelines with precautions for schools, hospitals, homes, nursing homes, CA-FOs, wetlands or other sensitive areas.

"As for solar projects, minimal state regulations should restrict removal of precious topsoil and require that panels on farmland be set high enough to allow for grazing, vegetable crops or native prairie underneath. Farmers should have the freedom to diversify. Iowa can lead in clean energy, green jobs and protecting farmland for future generations."

HOUSE DISTRICT 70

Republican incumbent seeks fifth term

Norlin Mommsen is a DeWitt-area farmer and once sold ag supplies as well. He served on his county's soil and water district commission. He is seeking his fifth term and serves on House agriculture, education and natural resources committees, and is chairman of the agriculture and natural resources budget committees.

"I have been involved in agriculture all my life. Growing up on the farm, participating in 4-H, attending Iowa State University, and presently farming the family century farm, this has given me a good understanding on what makes Iowa work. To round out my experiences, I was a member of the Clinton County Justice Coordinat-Commission, ing Clinton County Soil and Water teer, along with many other community activities.

"My goal is to take this experience along with all the great knowledge from the constituents of House District 70 to Des Moines and make Iowa a great place for families and individuals to live, work and play. Quality of life issues are my No. 1 priority at the capitol. First, I believe childcare must be addressed. The inability to find affordable daycare is hindering some Iowans' ability to be employed. Another high priority is to help develop our local foods industry. The consumer wants to know where their food comes from, and Iowa agriculture has a great story to tell. We want Iowa to be the place our children and grandchildren and others want to spend the rest of their lives."

The legislature's support of public education has been generous? Sufficient? Lacking? What do you support?

"The legislature's support of education has been very appropriate over the years. Many want to talk about only the supplemental state aid schools receive, but that is less than half of the funding schools receive. There are many funding streams that schools receive. When the total funding is added together, it amounts to an average of over $16,000 per student. When you look at the total general fund budget and combine K-12 and secondary education funding, the total amounts to over 55 percent of the general fund budget."

School vouchers: Gov. Reynolds has vowed public funding for private school vouchers. What do you support?

"The governor by advocating for school vouchers for private schools is attempting to give Iowa students more educational choices. I believe it is extremely important students are given more choice due their individual needs. Anytime there is tax money used, I believe there needs to be accountability as to how and what the money is spent on. Also there needs to be a system of determining if this additional choice is improving the education of our children. A voucher program would be an expansion of state programs that spend over a $100 million on public schools already."

Rural development: Carbon pipeline and solar panel firms are seeking lowa farmland for industrial and commercial development. How will you as an elected legislator respond to this latest energy investment in lowa farm fields?

"Right now in Clinton and Scott counties, solar and pipeline projects are very hot topics. This is one area the legislature is falling behind. Right now, there isn't a coordinated policy on how the landowner is treated. Every individual project is different, solar vs pipeline vs windmill. There needs to one process no matter what the project is. One of my first priorities this next session is to work with the Department of Agriculture along with the different energy investor organizations to develop a statewide policy on these alternative energy sources and their impact on our communities and our greatest asset in Iowa, our soil.'

Passionate volunteers engage with the Wapsi

By Delaney Farwell

NSP reporter

Friends of the Wapsi volunteers come together to help support the Wapsi River Environmental Education Center and encourage local engagement, preservation of natural resources, and spreading awareness about the flora and fauna of Scott County.

Dave Murcia, the center's director, says that the organization's main mission is to support the Environmental Education Center's programs anywhere they may be needed. They help with events like the Monarch Festival, feed the birds of prey in the center, and host the center on weekends.

The organization financially assists the center as well. The Friends recently helped fund a couple of new and exciting projects for the center.

"I just got them to fund a virtual reality digital typography box. So in support of education towards watersheds, they really can supply a lot of items. In fact, the largest item they've most recently funded was animal enclosures for our new nature center," he said. Murcia says the Friends of the Wapsi are an integral part of the functioning of the education center. "Our Friends group plays a vital and important role because they actually host our nature center. Our nature center is hosted on Saturdays by them," he said. The organization has provided many opportunities to its members and the local community. Joy Sheeley, the secretary of the Friends of the Wapsi, enjoys volunteering with the organization because "it's just a chance to get involved and do something to support environmental education because I think that's really important," she said.

Sheeley said the organization allows her to use her strengths and interests to her advantage. It has been a chance for her to meet new people, and help out with events.

"In particular, I like to sew so sometimes they need some things made for the organization. And so I've made butterfly nets and covers for the bird carriers and that kind of thing. I also got to know some great people and have enjoyed working together with them," she said.

Murcia values the organization because it allows him to work closely with community members. He also enjoys how each of these people he works with have different strengths that they can use to make the Center and Friends flourish.

"They come from all walks of life so I enjoy working with these people. These volunteers have all kinds of skills and abilities and knowledge and for that matter, different types of education that they bring here. And it's really nice to hear the subjects, topics, concerns, and issues in the environment locally here where these people live," he said.

Both Murcia and Sheelev said their favorite event that the Friends puts together is the Monarch Festival that happens every year around September. This year, it was Sept. 10. It has been going on for four years and is a local favorite for people of all ages.

Sheeley enjoys watching the children do the crafts and attempting to catch the butterflies with their nets. Murcia says that every year they capture monarchs and evaluate them for parasites. The monarchs are then tagged and let go, so there is a huge educational component for those who choose to come.

Murcia said the Monarch Festival would be much more difficult to do if it weren't for the Friends. "They had a very important role at the event and volunteered at different stations, craft stations, art stations, the gift shop, they actually offered lunch for the public to come to. They all worked as a team. It was very fun and rewarding to see a group of all volunteers committed to an all day event, and we saw over 300 people at that event," he said.

ELECTION

A record 28,971 inactive voters could decide Scott County races

The 2022 midterm election finds Scott County with twice as many inactive voters than 2020, thanks to Iowa's election law reform.

This week's message to the county's 28,971 newly inactive Democratic, Republican and no-party voters: Cast a ballot or you'll likely be purged from the registration list.

That's the teeth in the voter registration crackdown enacted by Iowa's Republican legislative majority: Use it or lose it. The latest Scott County registration totals for Oct. 1 show 28,971 voters deemed inactive by Iowa's 2021 election law. That's 22 percent of the county's 131,629 registered voters. In 2020, Scott

On the Record by Mark Ridolfi

County entered the election with 10 percent inactive among 131,111 registered voters.

In 2018, the county had 9.7 percent inactive among 126,392 registered voters.

So what's different?

More voter registrations purged now

Before 2021, an Iowa registered voter became inactive by missing two general elections, and by having mailed notices returned as undeliverable.

Then, the Republican legislative majority made a registered voter inactive after missing just one election and a follow-up mailer. Miss two elections and your registration is cancelled.

A cancelled voter may always reregister through the DOT, auditor's office, or even on Election Day, if they bring proof of identity and residence to the poll.

Scott County covers parts of 11 different state legislative districts on this year's ballot. The accompanying table shows active registration in each of those districts.

GOP retains most active voters

In 2020, active registered Democrats dominated four of the 10 legislative districts on the ballot in Scott County. No-party registrants outnumbered Dems or Republicans in the other six. Active GOP voters dominated none.

This year, Republican active voter registration totals top six of 11 legislative districts in the county. Democrats dominate four, and no-party, just one.

This October, Scott County's noparty active registrations dropped 16.7 percent compared to 2020.

Democrat active registrations dropped 15.7 percent.

Republican active registrations went down just 4.9 percent.

Historically, Republicans have had the lowest active registration totals in the county, and this year is no different. With the election just four weeks away, Scott County had 35,745 no-party active, registered voters; 34,416 Democrats and 31,607 Republicans.

That leaves no-party with the biggest group of inactives: 14,763, which is more than inactive Democrats and Republicans combined.

No-party casts deciding ballots

Those no-party folks have cast deciding ballots in our county's famously close countywide races.

Republican county board chairman Ken Beck beat Democrat Jazmin Newton by 68 votes, or .04 percentage points.

Joni Ernst won her 2020 U.S. Senate race, but lost Scott County in 2020 by less than two percentage points to Democrat Theresa Greenfield.

Democrat Rita Hart's 5,000-vote Scott County margin wasn't enough to cover her six-vote loss in 2020 to Rep. Mariannette Miller-Meeks.

Scott County data affirms that no single party can win an election alone.

Source: Scott County auditor registration totals for Oct. 2, 2022 Bold = most active registered voters

In 2020, Democrats had 40,817 active registered voters. President Biden won Scott County in 2020 with 46,926 votes, or 51 percent of the vote. Someone had to join those active Democrats to give Scott County wins to state- and districtwide losers Greenfield, Hart and Biden.

Candidates defy easy partisan labels

Whoever wins in Scott County will need crossover votes from those no party voters, active and inactive.

Whatever wave – red or blue – that washes across the country Nov. 7, Scott County's next elected leaders will need a wider hue of support.

That's because the issues in many races aren't red or blue. Those relying on convenient party labels to cast ballots will need some help, especially with supervisor candidates.

Republican Ross Paustian has criticized the supervisors' current GOP majority for not dropping the county tax rate. Paustian was a state representative who joined the GOP majority vote to use state tax dollars to replace local property tax funding mental health. At the Oct. 3 Farm Bureau candidate forum in Eldridge, Paustian criticized the GOP incumbents for not passing that full rate cut on to taxpayers.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

He also called the second floor added to the juvenile detention center, "a waste of taxpayer dollars."

Three incumbent Republican supervisors voted for that second floor. So did Democratic incumbent Brinson Kinzer.

Kinzer is running alongside Democrats Jazmin Newton and Joseph Kelly, who say the county's planned juvenile detention center is too big.

Strict partisan ideology won't guide straight-ticket voters – red or blue – at this local level.

Look again at the active registration numbers. Iowa's no-party registrants have the clout to influence almost every local race, if they show up.

STILL WRITING Some things changed; not all

Since Linda and I sold the business Sept. 1, some things have changed; others have not. Linda is retired. I, too, have shed the responsibilies of ownership, but am still doing things I like – writing this column and doing volunteer work for Rotary, including club and district newsletters

"Zero Bullies for All Kids," with the book "Who Am I?" and the panda bear, "Yin," to kindergartners. Read about this terrific new program on page 3B.

In the next weeks, we'll be observing World Polio Day to create awareness of the global campaign to eradicate this once-dreaded disease, and we'll be connecting with Rotarians to celebrate the work of our Rotary International Foundation whose mission, in short, is to do good in the world. Then, on Nov. 18, the North Scott club, now 102 members strong, will hold its big "North Scott Rotary Rallies for Youth" auction to raise funds for these, and other, projects. Watch for details. These are the stories I love to tell.

Editorial made clear: Bystanders will be held accountable for evil deeds

Editor:

I want to congratulate Bill Tubbs on the excellence of his recent editorial, "U.S. and the Holocaust: Human nature doesn't change; we should not be shocked." It is a niece of editorial journalism worthy of being published in the NY Times, the Washington Post, and the Atlantic! This editorial made an important connection between what took place in Germany during the period from the run-up to the Nazis assuming power through the early years of Nazi rule and what we are witnessing now in our own nation. This is NOT comparing today's situation in our nation with the full-blown Holocaust which took place in the 1940s, with its mass executions, but it IS comparing what is transpiring in our nation today to what transpired in Germany as the seeds of persecution and genocide were planted; comparing it to the time when, if people stood up and spoke out, the Holocaust could have been nipped in the bud. As a student of the Holocaust and someone who teaches courses on the Holocaust at St. Ambrose University. I am thrilled that this editorial has brought attention to the role played by everyday Germans who stood by and enabled the Nazis to move forward with their planned atrocities.

There is a term for such Germans: Bystanders. Bystanders made up a large portion of the populations of Germany and the nations occupied by the Germans, and beyond the borders of Europe. Indeed, the Ken Burns documentary focuses on how so many in the U.S. also were Bystanders. Through the lens of history, the silence and inaction of such Bystanders define them as accomplices to the crimes of the Nazis. As Bill Tubbs so clearly points out, while the cancer of the lethal bigotry of White Supremacists, Neo-Nazis, and Christian Nationalists continues to grow exponentially in our nation today, if we, like so many people of Germany in the 1930s, chose to stand idly by allowing this hatred to spread uncontested and opposed, we will, and should, be held accountable for allowing the evil deeds born of their hatred to take place. Shalom. Salaam. Paz. Pax. Paix. Peace.

Impressions by Bill Tubbs

Because the Rotary Club of North Scott has been quite active lately, the latter has been no small thing. In addition to the weekly fellowship meetings with great speakers, in just the last two weeks. members presented Student Dictionaries to 264 fourth-graders, rode in the homecoming parade, welcomed junior high students at the door on a Friday morning to give encouragement and support, hosted 146 youth from after-school programs for an afternoon at Pride of the Wapsi Pumpkin Patch, toured the new North Scott YMCA, and held meetings to prepare for a 2023 trip to our international service project in Kisoro, Uganda.

I have not been personally involved with all of these, but you get the idea. And today (Oct. 12), we will be in the North Scott schools again, introducing president Josie Cochuyt's program,

Why I am a friend of the Wapsi have always been drawn to places "off the beaten path." The Wapsi River Environmental Center certainly fits that definition. While other parks in Scott County are located within proximity to major roads, the way to the Wapsi Center takes you on winding roads through communities such as Maysville, Donahue, and Dixon. I enjoyed hiking the trails at the Wapsi Center knowing I could be guaranteed a quiet rendezvous with Nature. I stayed with family and friends at the cozy Kestrel Cabin, tucked away in the woods near a trailhead, and had taken several naturalist-led workshops. Since I enjoyed the Wapsi Center so much I decided to become a member of the Friends of the Wapsi. There are several levels of financial support when you join the Friends group, but I wanted to do more than donate money. With current staffing, the Wapsi Center depends on volunteers. The greatest ongoing need is for individuals to staff the Eco Center on Saturday mornings. There is a training session to go over the required duties, which includes feeding the three owls their daily diet of rodents. While some might get a bit squeamish at this, I enjoy it, especially when younger visitors are present. Their reaction ranges from "Cool!" to "Yuck!"

Volunteers assist the naturalists with the programs held for the public. During the COVID pandemic, through social distancing and requiring masks, the staff was able to continue offering these programs. I was comfortable with these guidelines and volunteered for as many of these programs as I could. I continue to do so as well as host at the Eco Center at least one Saturday a month.

The Volunteer of the Year Award is given out based on the number of volunteer hours donated. I was honored to be Volunteer of the Year for 2021 and 2022. I volunteer my time to the Wapsi Center because I believe in its mission. I have traveled to many places around the world and feel that the Wapsi Center is a very special place.

This summer, I earned my Master Conservationist Certificate through the Iowa State Extension Service. I feel the knowledge I gained will add to my role as a volunteer at the Wapsi Center. I am really looking forward to the opening of the new Eco Center, which will be a state-of-the-art facility. In the meantime, I hope you will come out to the Wapsi Center to see what all it has to offer.

County Attorney Walton endorses Caleb Copley to be his successor

Editor:

It has been an honor and privilege to work as a Scott County Attorney for the past 34 years. Having spent over half my life working for this office, I have a keen interest in its future.

On Nov. 8, the voters will have the opportunity to elect the next Scott County Attorney.

Iendorse Caleb Copley for this position. I have worked with Caleb since he was an intern. He volunteered for as many court appearances as possible, including jury trials.

I was so impressed I offered him a job immediately upon his graduation from law school. His enthusiasm and work ethic are exemplary. He demonstrates sound leadership skills daily.

After working in the County Attorney's office, he took a position with the U.S. Attorney where he prosecuted dangerous criminals at the federal level. Thankfully, he agreed to return to the Scott County Attorney's office where he continues to prosecute serious crimes.

He has participated in multi-agency programs involving law enforcement and citizens to improve the criminal justice system.

Changing technologies and environments require new skills and approaches to the duties of the County Attorney.

I believe Caleb Copley is the person to lead the Scott County Attorney's office into the future. He will without a doubt have my vote on Election Day, and I hope he has yours, too.

Two whose knowledge, character stand out

Editor:

Of the outstanding Democratic candidates in the approaching elections, I have chosen two for special mention.

Kathleen Figaro embodies a typical American success story: her Portuguese family set out to find a better life in the United States but only got as far as Haiti, where they remained for a generation or two.They then came here, where they worked hard and were able to send their talented daughter to college. Kathleen was graduated from Princeton and then excelled in medical training at Yale and New York Presbyterian Hospital. Here, in Bettendorf, she lives simply: going to church and helping parishioners and neighbors when they have health problems. In these times of great medical challenges, she's just what we need to guide us.

Mike Franken is running against Chuck

Grassley. All three of us began life as farm boys and then found success in different fields: Grassley in politics, Franken in the U.S. Navy and I in education. I have often disagreed with him, but Senator Grassley served us well during the early part of his career.

Recently, however, he has performed very badly: supporting Donald Trump, the great destroyer of American values, and breaking long-kept rules in naming three biased and prejudiced Justices to the Supreme Court.

Franken served for 36 years and rose to the rank of Admiral in the navy, and also has had experience in government. His knowledge and character are precisely what we need midst this swarm of hazards we face within our country and abroad. Donald C. Hawley

LETTER TO THE EDITOR Nepotism and crappy results for Hawks

Editor:

The Hawkeyes are experiencing a LEADERSHIP issue which is part of a much bigger systems problem that can be traced up the chain to athletic director Gary Barta.

We are paying two coaches millions of dollars to coach young men whose brains aren't fully developed. (That occurs at about age 25 for males.) So I completely take the blame off Spencer Petras like I have all season. When these boys aren't producing the results we should be getting, it's not their fault; they are doing is Gary Barta not stepping in and saying we're done? We're done with the nepotism; we're done with crappy results. We're done with putting Spencer Petras in front of the media after every lousy game and letting him take the heat.

Where's Brian Ferentz? Why isn't he in front of the press? Sorry, I digress. So here's the sticky icky part.

Barta won't do this because WE, the fans, are still putting money in the SYS-TEM. It's a sold-out show. As long as the money machine is still rolling along, he doesn't have to. And that's a hard pill to

Not proud of direction Iowa is headed

Editor:

Businesses are attracted to states that have a reasonable tax base, but also fund quality public education, infrastructure, clean water, natural resources, healthcare, affordable housing, drug addiction and mental health programs, law enforcement, investment in renewable energy, youth programs, and quality, affordable childcare.

In Iowa, federal relief monies and the budget surplus will be depleted. When the newly passed tax cuts are in full effect, they will not accrue enough revenue to fund agencies, programs and services, resulting in further underfunding, followed by defunding. Businesses will not invest in Iowa.

Present gun laws are responsible for the appalling increase in gun suicides. If the Gun Amendment to the Iowa Constitution is passed on the November ballot, it will enshrine the Republicans' irresponsible and unethical gun laws.

Governor Reynolds' sending state troopers to the border was a political stunt. If Reynolds and other Republicans were truly concerned about fixing the migrant problem, they would have contacted Republican federal legislators, including Grassley and Miller-Meeks, to introduce bipartisan legislation addressing our broken immigration system. Fixing the problem through law, instead of partisan blaming, benefits Iowa.

Revnolds and the Republicans have used a lie to restrict voting rights. The voter laws now make voting more difficult for the handicapped, elderly, first time voters, parents with young children, and those working multiple jobs.

The proposed abortion ban interferes with women's medical treatment, and it will further burden underfunded law enforcement and Iowa's judicial system.

We should not be proud of the direction our state is headed. Quoting Reynolds, "If I can get the (tax) rates competitive, watch out." Indeed, we will - all the way to the bottom

Editor:

In 1998, voters in Iowa overwhelmingly (85.5 percent) approved adding "and women" to Article 1 of the Iowa Constitution. It now reads:

"Rights of Persons – Article 1: All men and women are, by nature, free and equal, and have certain inalienable rights – among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty, acquiring, possessing and protecting property, and pursuing and obtaining safety and happiness."

Poll after poll and year after year, voters are clear: they overwhelmingly support reproductive freedom and Roe v. Wade. When voters have real information about abortion bans, they're enraged by the GOP effort to overturn those rights.

Despite this overwhelming support, over the last few decades we've seen a direct assault on the freedom of Iowa women to make their own healthcare decisions and of all Iowans to exercise their rights to privacy and self-determination. This is incredibly alarming.

Although there are other examples, there is none so clear as the 2018 Iowa Supreme Court decision regarding the extended waiting period. The 2018 Iowa Supreme Court determined the waiting period unconstitutional and stated that the "autonomy and dominion over one's body go to the very heart of what it means to be free."

This June, the Iowa Supreme Court reversed the 24-hour waiting period decision and abandoned the declaration of women's dominion and autonomy. Let's be clear: this is in direct violation of Article 1 of our Iowa Constitution.

Since my time in the legislature, there have been many attempts to undermine

'Unwarranted government intrusion'

Editor:

This is not the time to be flowery or poetic. In 1973, Justice Stewart Potter used these words in the Roe v. Wade decision, "to be free from unwarranted governmental intrusion."

I don't expect my local legislator, member of congress, or any other elected official to be involved in my annual physical. That is my personal and private business.

But it appears that women are not so lucky. Multiple state governments and courts have come to the conclusion that women, and just women, are not smart enough, rationale enough or capable of making medical decisions alone or with just family and/or HER doctor.

Now there are timelines, roadblocks and total bans on a specific medical procedure. Which we all know is abortion. This woman cannot possibly understand or know what she is doing? YES, she can. SHE has for thousands of years. SHE does not need anyone's help, guidance or medical services.

This "unwarranted governmental intrusion" is championed by a minority of people (way too many are men) who simply do not trust women. This minority opinion is now THE opinion of one political party: the Republican Party. The party of "small government," save for women, pregnancy and abortion.

I am not 100 percent sure, but it is a safe bet that practically every Republican candidate running for office in the United States supports banning abortion with minimal to no exceptions or roadblocking it to where it becomes close to impossible.

The state will determine when SHE gives birth. The STATE will decide how often SHE gives birth. The STATE has decided SHE is a vessel, cattle to be bred, HER lot is no longer HER own.

Welcome to "The Handmaid's Tale."

Nothing Bohannan has said or done remotely approaches accusations in ad

Editor:

The latest commercial attacking Christina Bohannan, our Democratic candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives, claims that electing Ms. Bohannan would advance a lawless agenda, leading to indiscriminate death and destruction.

Really? The attack is all too similar to the governor's latest ad, steeped in fear and racism, and, sadly, just as specious. Indeed, there is nothing Ms. Bohannan has ever said or done that remotely approaches the accusations made in the commercial.

Clearly, if elected, Ms. Bohannan will endeavor to do positive things for the residents of southeast Iowa and the rest of the country. By comparison, Rep. Miller-Meeks' voting record suggests her only real mission is to oppose whatever Democrats propose, regardless of whether it makes the country better.

It's also time for Senator Grassley to retire, or, more aptly, for the voters to retire him. The latest indication that his age (89) has finally caught up to him was the ridiculous claim that IRS agents would attack small businesses in Iowa in a never-ending effort to find and punish tax cheats. This was almost as bad as his claim that the Affordable Care Act would lead to death panels.

Enough already! Let's elect retired Admiral Michael Franken, someone who has served honorably and doesn't view the U.S. Senate seat as a personal fiefdom.

Restoring decency to Iowa politics starts with electing decent candidates: Christina Bohannan, Mike Franken, and Deidre DeJear.

CROSS COUNTRY

Lancers ready for MAC meet

Nik Davis cruises to title in DeWitt; girls capture team championship

By Scott Campbell

NSP Editor

The miles have been put in. The mental toughness has hopefully been instilled. After another lesson about how every point matters, North Scott's cross country teams appear primed for the postseason.

After an inspiring performance at the regular season-ending Jim Hetrick Invitational in DeWitt on Thursday, coach Amy Knoche's troops now have their sights set on the final races of the season.

Up first is tomorrow's Mississippi Athletic Conference extravaganza at Crow Creek Park, followed by the Class 4A district meet on Wednesday (Oct. 19), and most likely that will be held at Crow Creek as well.

"I feel good about where we're at heading into the final two meets," said Knoche. "Pleasant Valley is definitely going to be the favorite at MAC, and then it will be everybody else fighting for second and third. I'm hoping we're part of that top-three conversation.'

After a narrow one-point championship effort at DeWitt, the Lancer girls could very easily be penciled in for a No. 2 finish, while the boys will be in a dogfight with Bettendorf, Central DeWitt and Davenport Central to see who will finish behind the Spartans.

"Realistically, second place is a good spot for our girls to be," said Knoche. "PV is sitting ranked No. 2 in the state right now, and they are just so strong. The fight will be for second, and I think we can go get it.

"I think it's doable for our boys to get third. Bettendorf has just been barely nipping us all year, and if we could pull one off and get them, that would be awesome. We've consistently just been ahead of Central and DeWitt, and I think we'll hold par for that. PV and Bettendorf will most likely be the top two teams, but I'd like to say we'll put up a fight for it."

The Lancers were definitely in fight mode at Grace Lutheran Camp on Thursday, as the Lancer girls edged Clear Creek-Amana (67-68) for the 3A-4A crown, while the boys finished third, just three points behind CCA and six points behind Bettendorf.

"We talk all the time that every point matters, and it came down to one point for the girls," said Knoche. "We know what it feels like from districts last year, when we were on the other end of it.

"Going into the home stretch, just bringing that point to the front again, we know these last couple of meets in the season are important, and if there's somebody close to you, you have to go get them. They did that."

It was a total team effort for the Lancers, as junior Peyton Madison and senior Bailey Boddicker finished sixth and seventh, just 12 seconds apart. Senior Katelyn Knoche used a strong kick in the final 400 meters to claim 14th, while senior Hattie Hagedorn (28th) and sophomore Kate Blodig (37th) rounded out North Scott's scoring contingent.

There's something to be said for winning a title when facing adversity, and that was the case for the Lancers as their usual No. 4 runner, Ella Riniker, Sometimes, the gods of golf just don't smile in your favor, and on those days, you have to push through, find a way to smile, and live to play another day.

That's the way things played out for North Scott senior John Dobbe at last weekend's state golf meet in Cedar Rapids.

It was a classy atmosphere when the best of the best took to the Elmcrest Country Club course Friday morning. An opening round 87 took Dobbe out of medal contention early, but Saturday's round of 76 moved him up 18 spots on the leader board, and he wrapped up his stellar Lancer career with a 45th-place finish.

He was just the fourth Lancer to ever compete in the state tournament.

"I didn't really think about any of the history behind North Scott golf," said Dobbe. "I just knew to do my own thing and trust what I was doing. All the stats and records didn't really affect the way I thought about going to state, and I thought that it was just another tournament.

'Going into Friday, I was really excited to put up a good number and show what North Scott golf is all about. In general, I had a few bad breaks during the round, and it didn't go my way."

An uncharacteristic opening nine seemed to doom Dobbe. After being the only player to hit the green with

A triple bogey seven on the par-four 13th put him in a hole he couldn't get out of.

Unfortunately, it got worse, as he triple-bogeyed the par-five 15th, and then finished the back nine by going double bogey, bogey, bogey for a 12-over par 47.

He rebounded to card a 39 on the front side, highlighted by a birdie on the par-five second, but also finished his round with two double bogeys — on the seventh and ninth holes — along with a bogey on the par-three third. His opening round of 87, his highest total of the year, left him in 63rd place.

"I wasn't really able to turn it around until the second nine," said Dobbe. "Once I had some confidence in my game at that course, I was able to put a good number up coming in. It was pretty frustrating to make so many little mistakes."

Kindergarten classrooms across Scott County will be beneficiaries

The Rotary Clubs of Bettendorf, Davenport, Iowa Quad Cities and North Scott have joined forces to provide anti-bullying resources to all Iowa Quad Cities public school kindergarten classrooms.

Ninety-seven classrooms in the Davenport, Bettendorf, North Scott and Pleasant Valley community school districts will be the recipients of this new program.

The program is based on a book called "Who AM I?" which introduces children to Yin the panda bear. The story takes children on a journey of discovering who they are, and how they can share their unique gifts with others.

Through the story, Yin is reminded of all of his special qualities that make him who he is. The objective is to introduce the book, a stuffed animal version of Yin along with his backpack, and accompanying workbook for teachers and counselors.

The workbook is designed to provide support for children who may need additional social, emotional or behavioral support.

As the leadership of the four Rotary clubs discussed projects for which they might collaborate, they quickly decided that bullying in the schools was one topic that could use some help, and that by joining forces Rotary could make a big impact.

"This story can help kids who may be bullied learn how to stand up for themselves and communicate to others what they are experiencing and feeling," said North Scott Rotary Club president Josie Cochuyt.

Iowa Quad Cities Rotary Club president Mary Egger agrees.

"Working as a team, our clubs can make a huge difference by showing that kids with self-esteem don't need to bully," she said. "This can benefit those who are bullied and those exhibiting bullying behaviors."

The clubs will be working to get the books and supplemental resources into the schools beginning on Wednesday, Oct. 12, which is National Stop Bullying Day. The goal will be to see that all 97 schools receive their materials by the end of October.

"If this stops just one kid from being bullied in each district, it will be a success," said Bettendorf Rotary president Brian Goerdt.

Davenport club president Liz Zimmerman Waldman added, "Introducing Yin to kindergartners could save a lot kids a lot of heartache throughout their entire school life."

The Rotary Clubs of Bettendorf, Davenport, Iowa Quad Cities and North Scott have more than 300 members collectively on the Iowa side of QCA, and are affiliated with Rotary International, which has more than 1.2 million members in more than 33,000 clubs worldwide.

Living by the motto, "Service Above Self,' Rotarians believe in serving their local communities and the world at large in a variety of compassionate and impactful projects, helping millions of people around the globe live healthy and productive lives.

FOOTBALL: NORTH SCOTT 55, CLINTON 7

North Scott's stingy defense held Clinton to a measley 29 yards of total offense Friday night, and the only River King points were scored on an interception. It took Clinton quarterback Addison Binnie (2) 18 carries to accumulate 24 yards, thanks in part to the play of Lancer seniors David Borchers (left) and Connor Kruse. NSP photos by Scott Campbell

Playoff berth within reach

Postseason fate will be decided Friday in Fort Madison matchup

Perhaps those early thoughts about North Scott's postseason demise were a bit premature.

Two weeks removed from the sting of back-to-back losses that most likely stopped the Lancers' streak of six straight district titles, all seems well with the world heading into the final two weeks of the regular season.

There's no better medicine than a pair of lopsided wins.

While they hope their best football is still ahead of them, the Lancers have rebounded nicely since that nightmarish 20-16 loss to Iowa City Liberty three weeks ago, and Friday night's feel-good 55-7 thrashing of Clinton was just the latest indication that coach Kevin Tippet's boys are destined for the postseason.

For all intents and purposes, North Scott's playoff ticket could be punched this week when the Lancers make the long trek to Fort Madison for a matchup that will most certainly determine the district runner-up, and automatic postseason bid.

Liberty seemingly wrapped up the district title with a 49-0 win over previously undefeated Fort Madison last week, and will finish the season with games against Burlington and Clinton.

North Scott will host winless Mount Pleasant in the regular-season finale next week, so it doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out this week's matchup with the Bloodhounds is for all the playoff marbles.

CLASS 4A DISTRICT 3

	District		AI
Iowa City Liberty	3	0	6	1
Fort Madison	2	1	6	1
North Scott	2	1	5	2
Burlington	2	1	5	2
Clinton	0	3	1	e

"I think we got better," he said. "We had fun, we had a lot of kids play, and they all played hard. Wins are hard to come by, so we'll enjoy this one tonight, and then get back to work.

"We have film on Fort Madison, and they were undefeated heading into tonight. Next week is a big game, and we just have to be us. We have to be physical, and we have to take care of the football.'

The Lancers were all of the above against the over-matched River Kings, on what was a cold October night in Lancer Stadium.

After a sluggish start, which saw them score on their first possession, miss the extra point, and then drop a touchdown pass and lose a fumble on their second drive, the Lancers used 35 second-quarter points to build a 41-0 halftime cushion, which translated into a running clock for the final two frames.

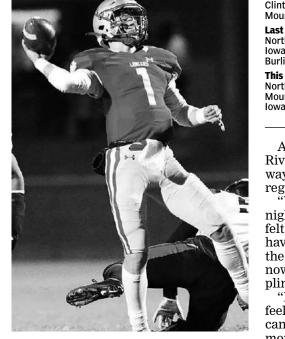

Aside from the opening few minutes, and first two possessions, this one was a mismatch in every possible way, and it could've been even more lopsided.

After totally dominating the visiting River Kings in almost every conceivable way last week, the Lancers seem to have regained their mojo.

"We were clicking on all gears tonight," said senior David Borchers. "It felt good to get another win, but we still have two more games. We have to keep the ball rolling. We're playing good right now, but there are still a couple of discipline things we have to take care of.

"Next week is big, but as a team, we feel good about who we are, and what we can do. After tonight, this gives us more motivation."

Tippet still wasn't ready to concede that the Lancers are where they need to be, but he likes the direction his team is trending.

ter following the death of his grandfather earlier in the day, led the Lancer attack with two rushing touchdowns and a pair of scoring strikes to senior Cole Jennings.

A Gerardy-to-Jennings 15-yard pass put the Lancers on the board, and Jennings was wide open on North Scott's second possession only to have the 45yard pass bounce off his wrist.

After that, it was all North Scott.

Gerardy made it 13-0 with a 23-yard scamper just 35 seconds into the second quarter, and the play unlocked the scoring floodgates.

North Scott parlayed Adam Link's interception into a 24-yard Gerardy-to-Jennings strike 87 seconds later, and the final three scores of the half came on junior Colton Voss' 50-yard jaunt on a reverse, Gerardy's two-yard run, and senior Dylan Marti's 57-yard race up the middle with nary a River King in touching distance.

"I was wide open a lot tonight," said Jennings. "I should've had the second touchdown earlier, but I just missed it. The pass was right there, and hit off my 54-yard dash around the right side with 9:02 left in the fourth.

"We knew all week that their kicker was a little different than most," said Kilburg. "We knew it was going to be a little squib kick, and that our blockers had to pick them up earlier.

"There were great blocks on the right side. I cut it to the middle, and there was just one guy to beat. It was a huge hole, and I couldn't believe it. Everybody else made the hole. I just had to hit it."

Tippet considered the play one of the best of the night, especially since it's believed to be the first in his 16 years as head coach.

"I liked the kick return, and I liked the reverse," he said. "I don't think we've ever had one, and sooner or later the odds are going to catch up with you. The kids really blocked it well, and Drew made a nice cut and outran everybody else. That was a lot of fun.'

Tippet pulled his starters in the second half, and the Lancer reserves had themselves a heyday. Clinton's only

LANCER VOLLEYBALL

Ready for Prime Time

Epic battle with PV ends in loss; Lancers still maintain mojo

NS spikers host Assumption in Thursday's season finale; draw favorable postseason path

By Scott Campbell NSP Editor

Consider them tournament ready!

The pairings are in and the résumé is almost complete. With a possible top-two Mississippi Athletic Conference finish still to be determined, North Scott is already primed for the postseason.

In a week filled with momentum-building efforts, and really, only one slight hiccup that did nothing to tarnish their season-long shine, the Lancers again proved themselves worthy of their No. 2 state ranking, and all the benefits that come with it.

While Tuesday night's (Oct. 4) thrilling (if a loss can even be called that?) five-set setback at the hands of No. 3 (5A) Pleasant Valley was a mere speed bump on the regular-season road, the Lancers maintained their No. 2 standing in Thursday's Class 4A rankings.

Less than 24 hours later, they were rewarded with what appears to be a barely-break-a-sweat path to state with the announcement of Friday's regional pairings, and the good news kept on coming when they cruised to the team title at Saturday's Clear Creak-Amana Invitational by taking care of business with wins against No. 5 (3A) Union, No. 11 (3A) Mid-Prairie and No. 10 (4A) Clear Creek-Amana, along with Iowa Valley and Central DeWitt.

North Scott returned to the friendly confines of The Pit Monday night and capped a busy seven-day stretch with a 25-14, 25-7, 25-13 sweep of Davenport North, and that set the stage for Thursday's regular-season finale

Lancers finish first, second or third in the MAC standings, and that placing will partially be determined by what played out last night (Tuesday) when Assumption and Pleasant Valley squared off.

A Spartan win would basically assure them of wearing the MAC crown, but an Assumption victory would change things considerably.

If the Knights upset the Spartans, they could win the title outright with a victory over the Lancers, but if the Knights take down PV, and the Lancers are victorious on Thursday, the three state powers would each enjoy a slice of the championship pie.

Oh my! What fun times we live in, and no matter what plays out on the court this week, there is absolutely no doubt that the Lancers are ready to roll.

North Scott will take a glitzy 30-4 record into Thursday's finale, and then enter postseason play on Thursday (Oct. 20) as the No. 2 seed overall, and the top seed in their six-team region. The Lancers will host the winner of a Tuesday matchup between Keokuk (9-13) and Fort Madison (2-17), and have every intention of hosting the regional final on Tuesday (Oct. 25).

Looming on the other side of the bracket are No. 2 seed Oskaloosa (15-9), Burlington (18-13) and Mount Pleasant (6-22). No one else in the regional field is ranked in the state's top 15.

The Lancers are in total control of their own destiny on just about every level, and after coming out victorious in 23 of their last 25 games, IGHSAU officials deemed them fitting of the No. 2 seed, especially considering the lone losses in that stretch were to Pleasant Valley and 4A No. 1 Cedar Xavier.

Oh, that match with the Spartans! Talk about a barnburner.

Played in front of the season's biggest crowd, and deservedly so, it was an epic battle between two of the top teams in the entire state. The atmosphere in the PV gym was electric, and the caliber of play off the charts.

At the end of a more than two-hour tussle, it was the Spartans who came out on top with the 25-21, 19-25, 25-18, 23-25, 15-12 victory. It was Pleasant Valley's 12th straight win over the Lancers, dating all the way back to 2011.

Afterwards, the Lancers knew they let a golden opportunity get away, but also took the loss in stride.

"Obviously, it sucks to lose, but the girls went out and fought the whole match," said Lancer coach Taryn VanEarwage. "There were some things we could've changed, but overall, both teams went out and competed hard.

"You want to be part of those matches. You want to be pushed. You want to be challenged. You want to be uncomfortable, especially this late in the season. Was it a disappointing loss? Yes, but there are definitely a lot of good things to take from it."

You never liked to go out with a loss after playing such a long game, and competing really well," said senior Lauren Golinghorst, "but I think it will give us momentum heading into our next games. We have Assumption coming up, and they are another good team. I think this loss will motivate us even more.

The Lancers had no reason to hang their heads after this one. From front-to-back and side-to-side, incredible defense was on full display on both sides of the net.

SCOTT'S TAKEAWAY

This was a great high school volleyball match, and some of the plays were truly unbelievable. As I said in the story, it's a shame anybody had to come out on the losing end.

In what was a pretty cool moment, no matter how you look at, Spartan freshman Isabelle Kremer delivered the match-ending kill, and it was her 12th of the night. Kremer is the daughter of North Scott Hall of Famer Jeni (Schneckloth) Kremer, and there were plenty of North Scott residents in her cheering section, including her grandparents, Roger and Irene Schneckloth, and her aunts, Jill and Gina DeWulf.

I expect Thursday night's match with Assumption to be just as entertaining. If the Knights took care of business last night against PV, there will be huge MAC title implications at stake. There's no better way to end the regular season.

STATE GOLF: 'For him to get to state was a great accomplishment'

Lancer coach Collin Ellis, who was with Dobbe every step of the way on the tidy and cozy Elmcrest layout, agreed.

"It was a tough round for John," said Ellis. "He slid a birdie putt by and missed a short comebacker for par and that kind of derailed him a bit. Every bounce seemed to go against him, and he ended up in some tough lies. It just wasn't his day."

Saturday was a new day, and Dobbe finished his Lancer career in more than respectable fashion.

Again starting his round on the 10th hole, he played his opening nine, nine strokes better than the previous day, with a three-over par 38 that featured seven pars. He matched that total on the front nine with just three bogeys, and his final round 76 was much more to his liking.

"It was pretty easy to flush my round on Friday, and come back Saturday with a good heart," he said. "With Ellis' support this week, he told me it's another 18 hole tournament the next day, and just worry about the shots in front of me.

"That really helped me have the confidence to put my own shots together and play golf the way I know best. The second round came easily. I was getting up and down a lot, and had some good misses."

"John's attitude was different on Saturday," said Ellis. "I think he played a bit tight on Friday, trying to be too perfect. The pressure of the state tournament just does that to a lot of guys. I mean he's probably been thinking about that round for four years, so it can be tough to calm the nerves and loosen up.

"Saturday he just went out and played. He seemed more relaxed and had a better outlook. It's easy to get stuck in a negative mindset, but on Saturday he was able to overcome it."

Afterwards, Dobbe was grateful for Ellis' support, and the Lancer coach was just as appreciative for the youngster's contribution to the Lancer golf program.

"I had a really fun time with Ellis this weekend," said Dobbe. "It was nice to wrap up my career at North Scott with him by my side, and I kind of took it for granted having such a good relationship with him.

"The relationship was so good because the trust started so early on. The memories that I have made throughout the last four years couldn't be replaced because of the friends I have made through teammates and competitors as well."

"John has made a huge impact on North Scott's golf program," said Ellis. "He has helped to change the culture around the program, and has played a big role in its upward trajectory.

"His influence won't stop this year. He has already imprinted that competitiveness on our young guys. I've watched the kid grow as a player and as a teammate for four years, and it's been a pleasure to get to see him develop into the young man he is.

"For him to get to state was a great accomplishment and a credit to him, his family, his teammates, and everyone that has supported him," continued Ellis. "I'm excited for him to graduate and move on to his next endeavor. I'm confident he'll be successful in whatever he chooses to do."

was unable to finish the race.

"I felt pretty good throughout the first part, but that last mile I could feel my whole body stiffen up, and that hurt pretty bad, especially finishing," said Madison, who turned in a 20:16 clocking. "I thought we did really well. We all ran the best races that we could."

It marked the third straight race that Madison finished ahead of Boddicker, who is just now getting back to full strength after running with a foot injury.

"It's never easy passing a teammate, just because we're so close," said Madison. "When we do pass each other, we just always try to encourage each other to stick together and finish together."

Boddicker was reading from the same playbook. "I feel pretty good about my race,"

"I feel pretty good about my race," said Boddicker, who jumped out to an early lead before settling in for a top-10 finish. "My foot is getting better, and it didn't slow me down. I felt strong the whole race, and it really helped having Peyton beside me. We pushed together, and I felt good today.

"It doesn't bother me when she passes me. I like how we work together. We are on the same team, so when we finish back-to-back, it's getting the same points for the team. If she can get someone, and get more points for us, that's fine."

Knoche wasn't surprised by Madison's effort.

"Peyton is trending in the right direction," she said. "She's tough, and she just goes out and competes."

Katelyn Knoche and Hagedorn weren't satisfied with their effort, but are both confident moving forward.

"My time is not what I wanted, but I was happy with where I placed, and that I had a strong finish," said Kaitlyn. "My legs were the most tired that they have been all season, and I just had to push through it.

"I'm really excited for the MAC meet. I think we have a shot at placing really well, and then at districts, I think we have a shot at making it to state. We have tough competition, but if we have everyone running and healthy, I think we can get it."

Hagedorn was running in just her fourth race of the year after suffering a knee injury in the season's first meet. She's back to full strength, and is looking forward to the next two weeks.

"I think I definitely could have done a little bit better," said Hagedorn, who finished in 21:51. "I wanted to get under 20 and get my PR, but that didn't happen, and that's OK. I felt really strong at the beginning, and then slowly tapered off. I tried to sprint again, but I was a little dead.

"I'm 100 percent back from my injury, and I'm excited for conference and districts with my team. I think we can do a little damage there."

Coach Knoche liked the way her team assessed their efforts.

"I'm happy that they're never satisfied, and they want to get better," she said. "At this point in the season, times don't matter. It's all about competing, and how you race. I think they did that tonight."

Davis takes care of business

Nik Davis is determined to finish his senior season with a trip to the state meet in Fort Dodge, and the Lancer senior has plenty of momentum heading into the home stretch.

After changing his race strategy with a spur-of-the-moment decision, Davis easily topped the field and cruised to a six-second victory in the boys' race.

"I thought I ran well tonight," said Davis. "I went into the race knowing I was going to reserve some energy, and just pack run, but the start made me change my plan."

After being jammed up in the opening 100 yards, Davis took to the outside, grabbed an early lead, and said sayonara to the field.

"Running by myself was hard, because the only thing I can think about is how far the second place guy is behind me," he said. "But it's just a mental game, and that's what I've trained for. It was great having people on the sideline screaming their lungs out at me. It really makes the race easier."

Coach Knoche was happy with the way Davis ran his race, and she liked the way he saved something for the final two weeks.

"Time-wise, it wasn't where he wanted to be, but to go out and get a win in a varsity meet is always something special," she said. "To do it, and not have to fun your fastest, is also good."

The other Lancers also ran well. Sophomore Yorty Hagedorn finished ninth, followed by senior Braeden Bohannon (20th), freshman Carter Unwin (23rd), junior Grant Peterson (33rd), sophomore Matthew Simmons (60th) and senior Alec Harris (65th).

Senior Braeden Bohannon finished 20th.

"Yorty had a really strong finish," said Coach Knoche. "He was sitting in the 15 range for most of the race, and to finish in the top 10 shows he has some grit and can finish a race out.

"The same thing with Braeden. He was just out of medal contention for most of the race, but had a good strong finish."

"I ran OK," said Hagedorn. "I started out slow, and I could've passed a few more people, but Braeden and Carter were there to push me at the end."

"I felt pretty good," added Braeden. "It was tough in the beginning, but when you settle into a pace it gets a lot easier. I was excited to race with my teammates, and I'm happy with my finish. I wish I would've caught the last guy, but it was a good finish."

VOLLEYBALL: Lancers go 5-0 at Saturday's Clear Creek-Amana Invitational

A testament to the team's season-long success, North Scott defenders stepped up their game against one of the state's hardest hitting teams.

Unbelievable digs were made routine. All-out hustle extended rallies time and time again, and sensational saves were a dime a dozen.

If you wanted offense, both teams delivered. They each misfired on only three serves all night, and they combined for a whopping 423 attacks, 129 assists and 133 kills.

At the net, Lancer sophomore Abbey Hayes (27 kills) and Spartan senior Halle Vice (22) seemingly matched each other swing for swing with ferocious, floor-splintering put-downs that brought gasps from the crowd.

Hayes was in a zone, and proved why she is not only an up-and-coming star, but also one in real time as well. When the Lancers needed a lift, Hayes was their go-to girl. Senior Nora Ralfs (27) and junior Emma Schermerhorn (24) combined for 51 assists, and the Lancers set Hayes an unbelievable 71 times. She misfired on only 11. Junior Kaci Johnson finished with 10 kills, while sophomore Emee Allard, who was back in the front row after injuring her finger two weeks ago, and junior Syd Skarich, finished with nine and six respectively. As for Skarich, she was just as effective in the back row as she was the front. Senior Carley Bredar may have finished with a team-high 31 digs, but Skarich finished with 27, including several that were nothing short of eye-popping. The crowd certainly got its money's worth in this one, at least if the "ooohs and ahhhs" were any indication, and truly, it's a shame somebody had to walk off the court a loser. "It was super fun tonight," said Hayes. "We had a great crowd come out, and that really helped. I think we played our best, but we just came up a little short. I think we really got down on ourselves, and we couldn't get out of it, and needed to mix things up a little. "I think we're right there with them. I think this proves we're a really good team, and I'm really excited for the next few games. I think this will help us. Now we know we can play with anyone, and we know what our weaknesses are against the better teams."

riety.

If you wanted to read about it, you should've been there.

Suffice it to say the Spartans drew first blood in the opening set, but the Lancers counter-punched in the second by rolling to a 21-15 advantage, and then netting the winner on Ralfs' ace serve.

It was the Spartans who jumped to an early 11-5 lead in the third set, upped the lead to 15-8, and cruised to the 25-18 win. North Scott didn't wilt.

PV jumped to a 13-10 lead in the fourth set, and the Lancers finally grabbed their first lead at 17-16 on kills by Skarich and Hayes. Golinghorst and Allard kills gave North Scott at 21-18 lead, but the Spartans eventually knotted the count at 23 before Hayes and Johnson finished off the set with big hits.

North Scott seemed to regain the momentum heading into the decider, and kills by Golinghorst and Hayes, along with another Ralfs ace, gave the Lancers an earl 3-0 lead. It didn't last.

Three straight blasts from Vice put the Spartans up

"This won't slow our momentum," said VanEarwage. "This is going to make them hungrier. This will push them to want to get better, and find ways to be able to beat teams like that. We've done it. PV is just the one hump we haven't gotten over yet.

"We'll go back, watch film, and learn from this. I think it's just going to make us hungrier to go out and not let this happen again."

Lancers win another title

North Scott claimed its third tournament title of the season on Saturday by running through the field at the Clear Creek-Amana Invitational.

After opening with a 21-10, 21-10 of MAC rival Central DeWitt, they claimed wins over Mid-Prairie (21-16, 18-21, 15-8), the host Clippers (21-18, 21-12), Union (21-8, 21-16) and Iowa Valley (21-6, 21-6).

It was a big day for Skarich as she finished with a team-high 35 kills, and was a perfect 53-for-53. She also collected 28 digs.

Really, there's no way to adequately give a play-byplay, or even summarize highlights. There were just too many, including several of the "unbelievable" va4-3, and North Scott never led again as the home team built an 11-6 advantage before hanging on for the 15-12 win.

It was Pleasant Valley's 36th straight MAC victory.

"I think the difference is they were just a little more comfortable in the last set," said VanEarwage. "After starting off the fifth really strong, we got uncomfortable, and on points five through 10 we started hesitating and questioning what we were doing.

"Once we figured out that we were all right, and then the fight started. In the fifth set you just can't have that. You have to be super clean, and they just found ways to score a little quicker than we did."

"I think I'm a little disappointed, just because we worked so hard and didn't come out with the win," said Bredar. "I think overall, it was a great game. We pushed as hard as we can, and did some amazing things. There are things we can improve on, but overall, we did pretty good."

Johnson, who has had a hot hand of late, was also disappointed.

"Tonight was a lot different than our previous games," she said. "It was definitely more challenging. We fought really hard, and in the end we just pushed way too late. I am disappointed. I think we hesitated a lot, and that's what got them their little leads. When we finally decided to push, it was just a little too late."

Still, the Lancers feel good moving forward.

Hayes finished with 34 kills and 25 digs, while Johnson and Golinghorst finished with 14 and 12 digs each. Schermerhorn finished with 51 assists, while Ralfs dished out 38, and Bredar had a team-high 31 digs.

Hayes, Skarich, Ralfs and Bredar didn't play in the final match with Iowa Valley, as VanEarwage turned it over to the reserves.

A Senior Night sweep

Victory No. 30 came Monday as North Scott brought out the brooms for Senior Night and rolled to a 25-14, 25-7, 25-13 win over Davenport North. The victory effectively let the Lancers keep their momentum intact as the look ahead to Thursday's big matchup with Davenport Assumption.

Lancer coach Taryn VanEarwage made sure everybody got plenty of playing time, and just about everbody made a contribution.

Sophomore Abbey Hayes led the offense with nine kills, but senior Madolyn Lewis finished with six, while seniors Lauren Golinghorst (five), Maddy Kayser (four) and junior Syd Skarich (five) also contributed.

Senior Nora Ralfs dished out a team-high 14 assists, and also collected eight digs. Senior Ella Kuesel and junior Kaci Johnson also had eight digs, while senior Carley Bredar finished with seven.

score came when Addison Binnie picked off Kilburg's third-down pass and raced 85 yards to paydirt in the third quarter.

As one would expect, the Lancers dominated the stat sheet, and outgained the River Kings 385-27. Yes, you read that right. The visitors finished with just 22 rushing yards, and five more through the air.

Marti led North Scott's attack with 117 yards in just eight carries. Gerardy had 33 yards in three carries, and completed six-of-eight passes for 69 yards.

"You know, as tough as it was to play tonight, I know he's watching over us right now, and I was happy to go out there and get a win for him," said Gerardy, in referencing his grandfather's death. "Obviously, I was sad, but I got to see him one last time last night, so that felt good. This was a great win for us."

The Lancer defense was nothing but stingy, and overwhelming. Along with his interception, Link had a hand in nine tackles, including four for losses.

Juniors Nolan Engelbrecht and Isaac Foster were each in on six stops, while senior AJ Petersen had four solo tackles, one assist, and a pair of quarterback sacks.

"It was a lot of fun tonight, and a great atmosphere," said Link. "We switched up our defense a little bit, and put in a new scheme. Everybody executed and did their job, and it worked out well. We got a good win.

"Now, we have to stay focused, and as Coach Tippet says, put the blinders on and do what we have to do to get the win next week. I'm feeling good. We've had good back-to-back weeks of practices, and we just have to keep executing."

The Lancers are saying all the right things heading into Friday's matchup with Fort Madison.

"We have to stay focused and lock in every day in practice," said Kilburg. "We have to control what we can control. We've been practicing very well the last two weeks. I'd say we're back on track."

'I'm not sure if we're back on track, but we're definitely heading in the right direction," said Gerardy. "There's always room for improvement. Heading into next week, we have to clean up the little things, and the rest will take care of itself. I'm pretty confident.'

season, the Class 4A playoff picture is starting to come into focus, although things will be a lot clearer after Friday night.

North Scott has the inside track to finish as the District 3 runnerup behind Iowa City Liberty, and it's not out of the question for the Lancers to secure a coveted first-round home game when the playoffs begin on Oct. 28.

The six district champions and runnerups are all automatic qualifiers, along with four at-large teams. The two runners-up with the highest RPI (Ratings Percentage Index), which is based on a team's win-loss record and strength of schedule, as well as the district champions, will be awarded first-round home games.

After seven weeks, the Lancers are 12th in RPI, while Fort Madison, this week's opponent, is seventh. If the season were to end today, Liberty, North Scott, Fort Madison and Burlington would all qualify for the 16-team playoff field, but that is sure to change.

Request to Sell Food at City Park on October 8, 2022. Tim Klindt requested permission to sell food (egg rolls) at a City park on October 8th during the city-wide garage sales. His wife runs a business, Humble, out of their home in Blue Grass, which is licensed by the Scott County Health Department. Klindt stated they are try-ing to promote their business in Walcott. Rickertsen reported the City Attorney questioned if this would set a precedent and how would it affect other local busi-nesses. Following discussion, Council suggested Klindt contact local business owners that may allow a food truck on their private property and thanked him for attending. He requested permission to send the truck specifications to bidders. Mayor Kostichek questioned the need for a Spartan custom chassis, instead of a standard chassis. Kraft stated the Spartan custom chassis is comparable in price to a Freightliner chassis, but the Spartan sits over the engine which allows for a larger cab. Kraft was asked to obtain a quote on another chassis (Freightliner) for review at the next council meeting. Mayor Kosticheck questioned ap-plying for grants and Kraft stated they just missed a grant cycle but agreed they may be able to apply in the spring for the truck box. Walcott Historical Society. Holdorf stated it is IMEG's intention to replace a few street panels, as well as the two side-walk sections this fall and revisit it next year. Mayor Kostichek questioned the timeline on paving E. Lincoln Street, particularly at the east end of the project. Holdorf stated he hopes the paving will start in mid-late October. Mengler questioned the status of the future development utility plan study. Holdorf responded he would forward it to Stagg prior to the next meeting. Public Works Department Report. Stagg provided additional updates on the E. Lincoln Street project. • Dead and Diseased Trees.
