Eldridge finds 250 acres for industrial development

Council says annexation and rezoning leave town ripe for growth

By Mark Ridolfi
Managing Editor

Industrial development sites totaling more than 250 acres are coming together around Eldridge's south and west sides.

Council members Monday rezoned 114.2 acres in the city for I-2 general industrial uses.

The council also welcomed plans by other property owners to annex 118.62 acres into Eldridge for industrial development.

The action fueled enthusiasm for Eldridge's development prospects since Davenport's Eastern Iowa Industrial Center is about full, and Eldridge's own track record of expansion.

The rezoned land, "could be an industrial park, but it's very unlikely there would be one developer. It's more likely to be smaller developers, moving from east to west," said assistant city administrator Jeff Martens.

Council members unanimously approved the rezoning, less than 30 minutes after discussing Eldridge's hot development prospects.

At a committee of the whole discussion prior to the council session, council members say the town is ripe for prospects.

"Davenport is out of room. I think Eldridge is positioned very well," council member Brian Dockery said.

Industrial rezoning

The council unanimously supported rezoning 114.2 acres, bordered by South First Street and railroad tracks. That includes:

Six parcels owned by Arps and Krafts Farm LLC from light- to general industrial.

One parcel by Glendale Inc. from suburban agriculture to general industrial.

One parcel from RG Prime LLC from suburban agriculture to general industrial.

"Since the property owners are currently working together to market the properties in this area together, they would like them all to have the same industrial zoning designation," Assistant city administrator Jeff Martens wrote in a memo to the planning and zoning board.

The land includes property Neal and Chad Keppy received in a land swap with Davenport in 2018, Martens told the council.

The general industrial, I-2 zoning, "is designed primarily for manufacturing, assembling, and fabricating activities including large scale or specialized operations whose external effects will be felt to some degree by surrounding districts. Less restriction is placed upon outdoor use and storage," according to

Four-legged fair chick comes home to Eldridge

Gary Kaasa says bird has forever home

Something looked funny, then felt funny when Gary Kaasa lifted the hatchling from its Mississippi Valley Fair incubator.

Kaasa has handled thousands of chicks over two decades at the fair, and in countless classroom demonstrations throughout Scott County.

But this four-legged hen is a first. "They say it's one in 10 million. I'd say one in 50 million," he said.

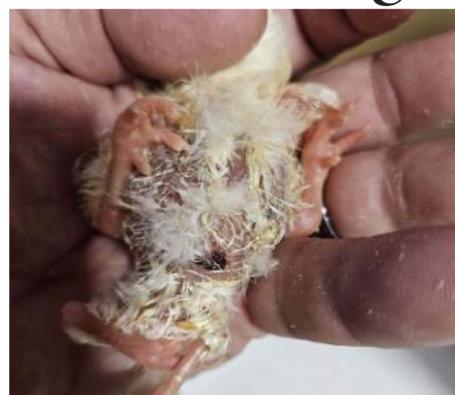

Kaasa said some online research found a four-legged bird at a Nebraska fair in 1995.

A Pennsylvania farm shared Facebook posts of Ripley, a four-legger who lived long enough to lay eggs, but died within a year.

Kaasa conducts the fair hatching display for Kent Feeds. He initially thought this bird might not last long.

"But he's running, he's eating, looking very well. I think this one will live as long as any other," Kaasa said.

Perhaps longer. Kaasa said the bird will "undoubtedly spend the rest of his life at our place," just east of Eldridge.

Gary Kaasa counts four clawed-feet on this tiny bird.

4-1 vote kills plan for roundabout

Plans for Eldridge's first roundabout dead-ended at Monday's council meeting.

On a 4-1 vote, council members Ryan Iossi, Brian Dockery, Dan Collins and Adrian Blackwell declined the city engineer's recommendation to seek a state design grant for a roundabout at Fourth Avenue and East LeClaire Road.

The roundabout was one of four the city's engineering firm recommended on LeClaire Road from U.S. 61 to Fourth Avenue. Zach Howell, of Shive Hattery engineering firm, and city administrator Nevada Lemke introduced the four-roundabout plan at a July 8 council committee discussion.

A looming deadline for the design grant prompted Monday's vote.

Only council member Scott Campbell voted yes for the grant.

"I talked to more than 50 people. Most would rather have a roundabout than a stop light. I think we need to rely on our experts," he said. "I'm not in favor of roundabouts anywhere else but Fourth Avenue," he said.

Campbell said his father was injured last weekend at a lighted intersection in Cedar Rapids. "If there was a roundabout, then it would have been at 15 miles per hour and not much damage."

The rest of the council disagreed. "I'm not in favor of roundabouts. I don't recall the council asking for them," Brian Dockery said.

Ryan Iossi said roundabouts might

Ava picks the Naval Academy

Long Grove student was accepted by Air Force, Navy and Merchant Marine

Ava Duncan of Long Grove, a graduate of North Scott High School, was inducted into the Naval Academy Class of 2028 on June 27, marking the beginning of six challenging weeks of basic midshipman training during Plebe Summer.

Approximately 1,200 candidates are selected each year for the Academy's "plebe" or freshman class, and each student is required to participate in Plebe Summer. During this time, plebes have no access to television, movies, the internet, or music and restricted access to cell phones. They are only permitted to make three calls during the six weeks of Plebe Summer.

The pressure and rigor of Plebe Summer is carefully designed to help plebes prepare for their first academic year at the Naval Academy and the four years of challenge that awaits them. As the summer progresses, the new midshipmen rapidly assimilate basic skills in seamanship, navigation, damage control, sailing, and handling yard patrol craft. Plebes also learn infantry drill and how to shoot 9 mm pistols and M-16 rifles.

Other daily training sessions involve moral, mental, physical, and professional development and team-building skills. Activities include swimming, martial arts, basic rock climbing, and obstacle, endurance, and confidence courses designed to develop physical, mental, and team-building skills. Forty hours are devoted to the instruction of infantry drill and five formal parades.

Founded in 1845, the U.S. Naval Academy today is a prestigious four-year service academy that prepares midshipmen morally, mentally, and physically to be professional officers in the naval service.

More than 4,400 men and women representing every state in the U.S. and several foreign countries make up the student body, known as the Brigade of Midshipmen. In 2024, U.S. News and World Reports rated the Naval Academy as the #1 public school, #3 national liberal arts college, #5 undergraduate engineering school. Midshipmen learn from military and civilian instructors and participate in intercollegiate varsity sports and extracurricular activities. They also study subjects such as leadership, ethics, small arms, drill, seamanship and navigation, tactics, naval engineering and weapons, and military law. Upon graduation, midshipmen earn a bachelor of science degree in a choice of 26 different subject majors and go on to serve at least five years of exciting and rewarding service as commissioned officers in the U.S. Navy or U.S. Marine Corps.

The Brigade of Midshipmen is comprised of approximately 4,400 students from every state in the union and a handful of international students. Last year the Naval Academy received over 14,000 applications for the Class of 2027. For more information about the Naval Academy, please go to our website usna.edu and Facebook page.

Judge turns down benefits for fired Eldridge staffer

Ruling offers details on clerk's city hall work

By Clark Kauffman
Iowa Capital Dispatch

One of the City of Eldridge workers fired during an investigation into the utilities board is not entitled to unemployment benefits, a judge has ruled.

State records indicate Jody Coffman was hired in May 2012 as the city's full-time utility billing clerk and was responsible for preparing employees' reimbursement requests for submission to the city's Electric & Water Utility Board.

Coffman was fired in May of this year, which led to a public hearing before Administrative Law Judge Sean Nelson on her application for unemployment benefits.

According to Nelson's written findings, some of which aren't entirely clear or fully explained, Coffman at some unspecified point in time "started a rumor in the office that disrupted the employer's snow removal operations that day."

Coffman also was alleged to have submitted employee reimbursement requests to the board without the required receipts.

According to Nelson, Coffman also refused to comply with a directive to transfer to another employee her duties related to sales tax assessments. In addition, Nelson found, the city conducted or received some sort of "audit" - Nelson's decision doesn't indicate who conducted the audit or why - that revealed Coffman had "lied" about the timing of the city's receipt of an unspecified piece of equipment, which meant that the equipment was accounted for in the wrong fiscal year.

In late March, Nelson found, the city placed Coffman and other employees on leave as part of an investigation. The city, according to Nelson's ruling, "could not find some computers and believed the equipment was misappropriated along with funds that were also missing."

The city, Nelson stated, "suspected widespread violations among staff and members of the utility board." Coffman and some of the other people interviewed as part of that investigation, Nelson found, "were not cooperative with the investigation."

On May 22, 2024, Lemke fired Coffman and "several other employees" based on the results of the investigation, Nelson stated.

In ruling that Coffman was ineligible for unemployment benefits, Nelson cited her refusal to surrender her duties related to the assessment of sales tax. "This is misconduct," Nelson found. "The past acts revealed by the investigation show that (Coffman) had a pattern of acting in an insubordinate way."

Court records indicate Coffman has not been criminally charged with any wrongdoing. However, former Eldridge Electric & Water Utility former employee Jacob Rowe is currently facing criminal charges of unauthorized use of a credit card, second-degree felony theft, unauthorized computer access to confidential records, tampering with records, and conspiracy to commit an aggravated misdemeanor.

According to police records, Rowe was ordered to turn in all city equipment when he was placed on leave in March, but he retained possession and control of utility records and other information. He allegedly modified a document entitled "clothing allowance" and then modified or deleted files from a city-owned computer, disabled various operating systems, deleted email communications on his city-owned email account and deleted work-related text messages.

Police allege that an analysis of those actions concluded the "deletions were excessive, consistent, unusual and in violation of Iowa law requiring preservation of public records."

Police records state that an internal affairs investigation confirmed Rowe had submitted an expense reimbursement request for a purchase made at Dillard's from the store's "pajamas and robes" department. The investigation reportedly confirmed that the purchase was for men's underwear.

According to police, the city administrator calculated the unauthorized use of city money included $900 in clothing expenditures. The theft charge is tied to two city-owned laptop computers, a separate hard drive and an iPad, all allegedly in Rowe's possession and worth an estimated $2,800.

An arraignment in the case is scheduled for Thursday.

ELDRIDGE: Property owners west of town collaborate for annexation

Other uses, with a council-approved permit, include concrete and asphalt mixing plants, grain storage, meat packing and metal work.

The owners of Rivald Farms, are eager to market four parcels of rural land between Davenport and Eldridge on the northwest corner of Slopertown Road and 140th Avenue.

"The Kay family has indicated that they would be open to an annexation of these parcels into the City of Eldridge if the Mayor and City Council are interested," assistant city administrator Jeff Martens wrote to council members.

During a council committee discussion, staff and council emphasized development opportunities.

"Some farm owners want to work together to market properties," Martens told council members Monday. "Davenport is getting filled up. They see that development coming north into Eldridge."

"I suggest we talk to other property owners and see if we can get a bigger chunk, so we can protect ourselves for future development in that area," Martens said.

"If we don't, Davenport will," council member Ryan Iossi added.

Council member Brian Dockery agreed.

"I would welcome them into the city of Eldridge. We should look further to the west," Dockery said.

Davenport continues to grow north. Dockery said Bettendorf long-term plans include annexation to Utica Ridge Road.

That leaves Eldridge expansion to the west.

"We'd be fools not to do it," he said.

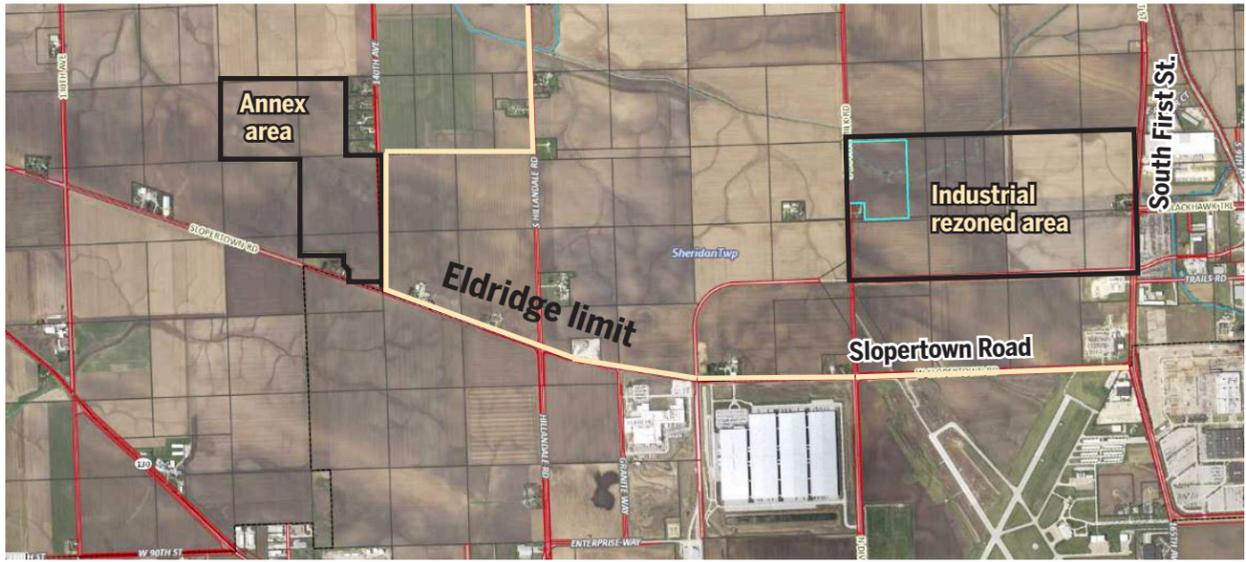

Martens said he would draft an annexation invitation letter to other property owners south and west of Eldridge. "Tax wise, I think it would be better for them," he said.

Eldridge has a much lower tax rate, and no stormwater utility fee, Dockery said. "When they develop, it will definitely be cheaper," in Eldridge, he said.

Council limits QC Chamber contract

Eldridge council will give the Quad Cities Chamber of Commerce one year to justify a major dues increase it requested in a five-year contract.

The city has one year left on a four-year contract that escalated to $10,200.54 this year.

Property owners are asking Eldridge to annex the property to the west of city limits.

On south First Street, other property owners asked the city to rezone farmland for industrial development.

The chamber proposed an $11,311.17 increase, followed by 8-10 percent annual increase through 2031, topping out at $16,665.57.

The price is based on population. "The increase will rebalance the public private contributions to one-third public sector and two-thirds private sector," Lemke wrote to council members.

"Specifically for the City of Eldridge, the QC Chamber receives and distributes requests for information from National Site Selectors and project developers, markets our developable properties, and coordinates conversations with landowners, developers, project coordinators, and other stakeholders," Lemke wrote in a memo to council members.

Assistant administrator Jeff Martens advised considering a one-year membership. "I haven't been here long enough to say it's a good value for the dollars. The staff is great and they do good work," he said. "RILCO came to us on their own. Lots of small developers come on their own. I'm not sure I'd recommend five years."

"I'm not certain we're getting our bang for our buck," Campbell said. He suggested a one or two-year agreement.

Council member Dockery said Eldridge may not have the same interest as the Quad Cities Chamber. "My experience with them is they are interested in mega projects. I'm not sure we're interested in mega projects," he said, recounting the Caterpillar outcome in Mount Joy.

Dan Collins agreed. "Mega projects can stay in mega towns. We'll go after the little guys."

Council reconsiders Arsenal support

Eldridge council members are ready to end the city's $5,000 annual contribution to the Rock Island Arsenal Defense Alliance.

The alliance is seeking $7,500 next year. Council members praised the U.S. Defense Department installation, but agreed that lobbying the federal government is not a city priority now.

"I've always questioned the benefit," council member Brian Dockery said.

For at least a decade, Eldridge councils have helped fund the Arsenal Alliance, which is a Quad City Chamber of Commerce affiliate that is supported by the largest of the Quad-Cities and both counties.

Dockery noted the Arsenal markets its vacant industrial space to private firms. "The Arsenal is bringing in industry now that competes with us for sites," he said. "I don't agree."

Other council members agreed. "I don't think spending taxpayer dollars on lobbying fits anywhere," Ryan Iossi said. "Do we start giving money to John Deere and other big companies to lobby? The fact it is lobbying, I can't swallow that."

"It's not our responsibility to fund a lobbyist," Scott Campbell said.

"I don't see the benefit to Eldridge," Dan Collis said.

Adrian Blackwell said Arsenal jobs benefit the entire region. "Some of those people reside in Eldridge," he said.

Dockery said the city could renew support if job losses are imminent.

Mayor Frank King said Arsenal representatives visited with him in June, and left him impressed with the manufacturing capability. "They've made themselves really more valuable. With that much capability, I don't see how they could shutter the Arsenal," King said.

"We can't lobby for every business with a citizen in Eldridge."

About $2K for regional transit study

Council members supported an estimated $2,000 contribution to a regional transit study.

Davenport and Bettendorf are leading a request to the Iowa Clean Air Attainment Program for a grant to fund the study.

Further review on purchasing policy

The council will take a longer look at a 14-page draft policy that would set new, higher monetary thresholds to authorize purchases before council consideration.

All agreed the city needs a clear policy. But the higher limits disturbed some council members mindful of recent history.

"Spending limits are way too high," Brian Dockery said. He favored the use of pre approved city credit cards for all transactions.

Collins agreed with the use of credit cards, a practice he manages at his workplace. "We use it at Grand Haven and I think we should be the same," he said. He said the limits, "seemed a little high for me."

The draft allowed department heads to authorize some purchases under $10,000. The City administrator had authority up to $15,000. Anything over $15,000 required a council vote.

Adrian Blackwell welcomed the draft

ELDRIDGE: Council relents on West Lincoln Road speed limit

and acknowledged the “past missteps of the city,” detailed in the last audit. “I’m OK with the dollar amounts being proposed. I think we have to trust our employees and those they report to. I don’t think we need a lot of micromanagement on this,” Blackwell said.

Dockery said he’s focused on accountability, not trust.

“Don’t get me wrong. I have all the faith in our employees. But I have a responsibility as all of you do to go over every penny spent,” he said.

City administrator Nevada Lemke said the audit advised the policy, which she drafted after reviewing similar policies in other towns.

The policy crafted, “to promote efficiency, transparency, and fairness in procurement of goods and services,” establishes local preference rules, competitive bid procedures and other transactions. It was recommended in this year’s audit.

All agreed to review revisions that reduce spending authority.

City ceases business signage

The city of Eldridge will be getting out of the commercial signage business.

Council members agreed to end the city service of buying and installing directional signs on LeClaire Road and elsewhere, pointing the way to a nail salon, golf course, motel and retirement community.

Assistant city administrator Jeff Martens said public works crew provided the signs for years and charged about $70 each.

“It became a maintenance issue for city staff,” which was behind in fulfilling requests, Martens told council members. The signs were easily damaged by traffic and plows.

He said businesses will be referred to the Iowa Department of Transportation which helps fund similar signs for some businesses on U.S. 61.

Council members directed Martens to notify the businesses, and bring a former resolution for the council to pass.

35 mph on West Lincoln Road

Council members relented a bit on their Lincoln Road speeding crackdown.

On the third and final reading of the new 25 mph limit, the council voted to limit it on East Lincoln from First Street to the U.S. 61 overpass.

The limit would be 35 mph west of First Street to Buttermilk Road.

Council member Brian Dockery suggested the compromise after city staff and council members heard citizen complaints about the 25 mph limit passed twice by the council.

The crackdown came after residents showed up at council to complain about the peril of navigating Lincoln Road on foot or bicycle to get to the First Street trail.

The new limit passed 4-1. Council member Adrian Blackwell voted no, preferring the 25 mph.

Social host ordinance

The council passed the second of three readings establishing penalties for Eldridge parents who allow underage drinking parties at their homes.

The owners of properties hosting underage drinking will be fined $500 for the first offense; $750 for the second; and $1,000 for the third.

Nuisance repeat offenses

The council passed the second of three readings amending city law to hold repeat code violators subject to civil penalties.

Residents cited three times in a year for overgrown lots, failure to shovel snow or any other property code violations could face “standard civil penalties.”

That’s $750 for the first offense, and $1,000 for subsequent offenses.

Hickory Creek Pond design

Council members held off authorizing a $44,900 design contract with Shive Hat-tery for a feasibility review and preliminary design of a dam and pond west of the Eldridge soccer field on Buttermilk Road.

The proposal would determine pond size based on dam height and slopes, stormwater detention and recreational needs, among other factors.

Council member Brian Dockery advocated for soil borings to determine if fill would be needed to build the dam.

“Soil borings will be critical. It’s an enormous expense to import clay,” said Dockery, who is an executive with Riverstone, the operator of quarries throughout the Midwest.

City engineer Zach Howell said he would bring a revised proposal back to council.

ROUNDBOUT: Most council members say residents prefer traffic lights work at other Eldridge intersections, like South First Street and Lincoln Road, where he is developing a commercial lot. "I don't think retrofitting roundabouts on LeClaire Road is what we need," he said.

Blackwell suggested Scott Park Road and East LeClaire Road as a better roundabout location. "From the feedback I'm getting, I haven't heard anything positive," he said. "A stoplight is proposed," at Fourth Avenue and First Street. "Let's just do that."

Dan Collins also voted against the Fourth Avenue roundabout grant request. "I don't think a roundabout surrounded by two stop lights is a good thing for Eldridge. I talked to many people. They've been negative online."

Brian Dockery said the intersection needs a new signal, not new concrete.

"It's not in my nature to rip out perfectly good concrete," he said.

Dockery made a motion against the grant, prompting the 4-1 vote.

In public comments before the council meeting, Amhof Trucking owner Matt

Amhof cautioned against roundabouts. His firm at 651 N. Sixth Ave. regularly sends semis through the Ninth Avenue and LeClaire Road intersection. That was among the roundabout locations suggested by the city engineer.

"They are a hassle for normal length trailers and trucks," he said. "We have trailers up to 100 feet."

He said a roundabout would be an obstruction. "We don't want to tear up the roundabouts. We don't want to bump into cars," he said.

Later in the meeting, police chief Andrew Lellig said he responded to calls at Amazon. "Two times I assisted with a jack-knifed semi," that shut down Division Street. "I don't want to see our main artery closed down," he said.

Council rejects funding for First Street

Design work to smooth south First Street will have to wait.

Council members voted down an $89,500 proposal by Shive Hattery to design and bid for resurfacing of about 2.2 miles from North Scott High school south to the city limits.

The firm proposed recycling the existing surface, and topping with a three-inch hot-mix asphalt overlay, including the gravel shoulders.

Four council members said the city has more urgent priorities for that kind of cash.

Dockery suggested signaled crosswalks on First Street at Sheridan Road and Pinehurst Drive. He also suggested the South 14th Avenue and LeClaire Road intersection, which is seeing much more truck traffic and should be straightened.

Ryan Iossi said First Street resurfacing should wait until the Lincoln Road intersection is widened. "I question the timing. Let's wait to get feedback on Lincoln Road," he said.

Only council member Adrian Blackwell supported the First Street resurfacing design work. His motion to approve the contract failed for lack of a second.

Iowa DNR seeks online help to report deer killed by virus

By Jack O'Connor
Iowa Capital Dispatch

The Iowa Department of Natural Resources is asking hunters and landowners to report deer that died from a hemorrhagic disease outbreak via a new online reporting tool.

DNR officials hope the tool will give them a better understanding of how the disease works as well as the impact of weather on the disease and if deer are adapting to it.

Chris Ensminger, a wildlife researcher at the Iowa DNR, said the department has struggled to monitor previous outbreaks as there was no place for people to report diseased animals.

"One of the things that we've struggled with is all the reports were just strictly word of mouth," Ensminger said. "We decided that we needed to get a tool out there that the public could access directly and report directly."

A person reporting a dead deer on the DNR's website will be asked for contact information, the number of dead deer, the location of the carcass and whether the carcass was near a body of water.

In addition to the reporting tool, the DNR has also released an annual dashboard to track the disease. Since the end of July, there have been nine reports of outbreaks across eight different counties, totaling 21 dead deer.

The severity of outbreaks differs from year to year, Ensminger said. There were intense reports of outbreaks of epizootic hemorrhagic disease (EHD), also known as bluetongue, in 2012, 2013, 2019 and most recently in 2023. Ensminger said this year is not expected to be particularly deadly.

The disease comes from a virus that is spread by the bite of tiny flies. While these flies bite humans, the virus is not known to affect humans.

Deaths between July to September, multiple deer carcasses, carcasses near bodies of water and the dead deer looking healthy are signs of the disease that people can recognize, Ensminger added.

While deer populations generally recover from an outbreak in two to three years, help with recovery may be needed in counties with declining or low deer populations, according to the Iowa DNR.

Ensminger said while the discussions around the disease seem dire today, the future outlook is promising as researchers believe the deer herds will become more immunized to the disease as time goes on.

"The outlook on EHD in the short term can be pretty bleak because a farm owner or landowner could walk out there and find 30 dead deer and that's really devastating for today," Ensminger said. "However, the long-term prognosis is actually pretty good. We will probably go through this and come out on the other end with a stronger more resistant herd."

Leaders of state's new Division of Special Education announced as AEA law rolls out

Regional leaders have experience within AEA

By Robin Opsahl
Iowa Capital Dispatch

In the upcoming school year, six new leaders will oversee Iowa's Area Education Agencies as a part of the Iowa Department of Education's division of special education following the implementation of a 2024 law making major changes to the state's special education system.

Previously, Iowa's AEAs, the regional agencies providing special education and other assistance for Iowa school districts, had internal staff with accountability and oversight duties. But the 2024 law making funding changes to the AEA system, alongside increasing minimum teacher salaries and paraeducator pay, moved these responsibilities to the state Department of Education under the reestablished division of special education.

Education Department Director McKenzie Snow said in a report to the Iowa Board of Education Aug. 1 that Dr. Barbara Guy was selected to serve as the division administrator of state accountability and student supports, at the lead of the centrally located team, while Dr. Angelisa Fynaardt will serve as acting division administrator of regional continuous improvement and compliance working with regional-based teams through the nine AEA regions.

Amy Thoms-Starr, Ivan Gentry, Lisa Glenn, Molly Elston and Seth Piro have also been selected to serve in senior leadership roles as regional special education directors, according to the department news release.

Most of the division staff have prior experience at AEAs. Fynaardt has 13 years of experience as special education director at Great Prairie AEA. Several of the regional directors also previously held leadership positions at the regions where they will be working, including Thoms-Starr at Central River, Gentry at Green Hills and Molly Elston at Prairie Lakes.

"Collectively, these experts represent over 150 of years of expertise in special education across Iowa and represent parents, families, advocates, peer educators, special education teachers, principals, school districts, special education directors, AEA, special education directors and more," Snow said at the meeting.

Snow said the division will be tasked with implementing accreditation and accountability measures including providing finance and data analysis, providing student evaluation and placement, helping develop curriculum and instruction and resolving complaints. The department plans to hire three more Regional Special Education Directors, in addition to other leadership staff, according to the release.

The law, signed by Gov. Kim Reynolds in March, was one of the most controversial pieces of legislation to move in the 2024 session. In Reynolds' original proposal, the division was much larger, with planned staffing of 139 state employees funded by $20 million moved from AEAs.

In addition to giving more oversight power to the state education department, the law also created a new funding formula for AEAs and school districts that will go into implementation over two years. In the second year of implementation, 90% of school district's special education funding will go to AEAs while 10% of those funds will stay in school districts for discretionary use. Additionally, all general education and media services funding currently going to AEAs will go to school districts on the second year of implementation.

Reynolds said the changes were needed to ensure the best outcomes for Iowa students with special needs, and that the Department of Education oversight was crucial. A report released by the Guidehouse consulting firm found that Iowa spent more on special education per pupil than the national average, but that Iowa special education students scored lower than the national average on National Assessment of Educational Progress tests. Critics of the plan panned the report, saying it was misleading.

"This legislation intends to resolve these issues," Reynolds said at the bill signing. "It shifts funding to school districts, empowering them with local control to decide how best to serve their students and improve education outcomes without disrupting services or dismantling the system."

Davenport police arrest Eldridge councilman on 1st OWI charge

Davenport police arrested Eldridge council member Adrian Blackwell, 12:02 a.m., Wednesday July 31 on a first offense charge of operating a vehicle while intoxicated after an officer reported that he ran a red light at Gaines and River Drive in Davenport.

A Davenport police officer pulled a vehicle over at Ripley Street and River Drive, and said Blackwell, "showed signs of alcohol impairment," including an odor of alcohol, according to the police report.

The report included preliminary breath test showing 0.161 percent blood alcohol concentration. Iowa law prohibits driving above 0.08 percent.

The Scott County jail booked Blackwell at 12:54 a.m. and he was released on $1,300 bond at 3:44 a.m.

Blackwell waived a preliminary hearing. An arraignment is scheduled for Aug. 29.

In a phone interview with The NSP, Blackwell said it was, "an unfortunate circumstance."

"I appreciate the support I've gotten from a community I love, and will continue to serve," he said.

Summit chastises Republican lawmakers against carbon pipeline

By Jared Strong

Iowa Capital Dispatch

Summit Carbon Solutions castigated a group of Republican state lawmakers who oppose the use of eminent domain for its project, saying their arguments are "perplexing" and unsupported by a majority of the Legislature.

The company, which seeks to build a sprawling carbon dioxide pipeline network in five states, made the remarks this week in response to multiple requests for state regulators to reverse their decision to issue Summit a permit to build in Iowa.

The groups that have filed reconsideration requests with the three-member Iowa Utilities Commission predict that the challenges will fail and that the issue will be decided in court. There were eight reconsideration requests filed by conservation groups, landowners, counties and the Republican Legislative Intervenors for Justice, (RLIJ) a group of about 40 state lawmakers.

Sen. Mark Lofgren, R-Muscatine, and Rep. Bobby Kaufmann, R-Wilton are the only Scott and Muscatine county legislators among them. They believe it's improper for Summit to use eminent domain on unwilling landowners.

Summit, in its response to the lawmakers' request for reconsideration, said the request "represents an improper attack by a minority of the Legislature on actions taken (or not taken) by that body," according to IUC documents filed by Summit's attorneys.

The Scott County Farm Bureau AITC Committee will be hosting the 2024 RiverBend AITC Celebration on Tuesday, August 27 at Rolling Meadows Event Center in Eldridge, IA. The AITC Committee is having this event to Thank our Education Partners, Sponsor Partners, and Volunteer Partners for their continued support of the RiverBend Ag in the Classroom program. With the support of our River Bend Ag in the Classroom partners, we hosted 958 3rd grade students from Davenport Schools last year for two days of interactive learning stations at the Mississippi Valley Fairgrounds. Throughout the rest of the 2023-24 school year, we connected with 1,110 students in 54 classrooms each month. That means our Scott County area students are experiencing STEM-based lessons to learn about local agriculture. Growing the awareness of agriculture has been a priority program for us, and it takes Partners to make it happen.

Farm discrimination payments hit $2 billion

By Jared Strong
Iowa Capital Dispatch

Tens of thousands of farmers or would-be farmers who say they suffered discrimination when they applied for assistance from the U.S. Department of Agriculture will get one-time payments that total about $2 billion from the federal government.

That includes 30 Iowa recipients awarded a total of $3,726,200. Payments were awarded to people in every state and three of its territories, but residents of Alabama and Mississippi alone received almost half of the money.

More than 43,000 people will be paid, U.S. Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack said. The payments range from $3,500 to $500,000, depending on the circumstances and effects of the discrimination.

“While this financial assistance is not compensation for anyone’s losses or pain endured, it is an acknowledgement,” Vilsack said.

The payments are the result of a program — the Discrimination Financial Assistance Program — created by the Inflation Reduction Act of 2022 that was meant to aid farmers, ranchers and forest landowners. President Joe Biden said it was the result of his promise “to address this inequity when I became president.”

The USDA received more than 58,000 applications from people who claimed discrimination based on race, color, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, religion, age, marital status, disability and retaliation for “civil rights activity.”

Vilsack could not immediately say what type of discrimination was most often indicated by the applicants, but the bulk of the payments went to farmers in southern states with higher percentages of Black residents.

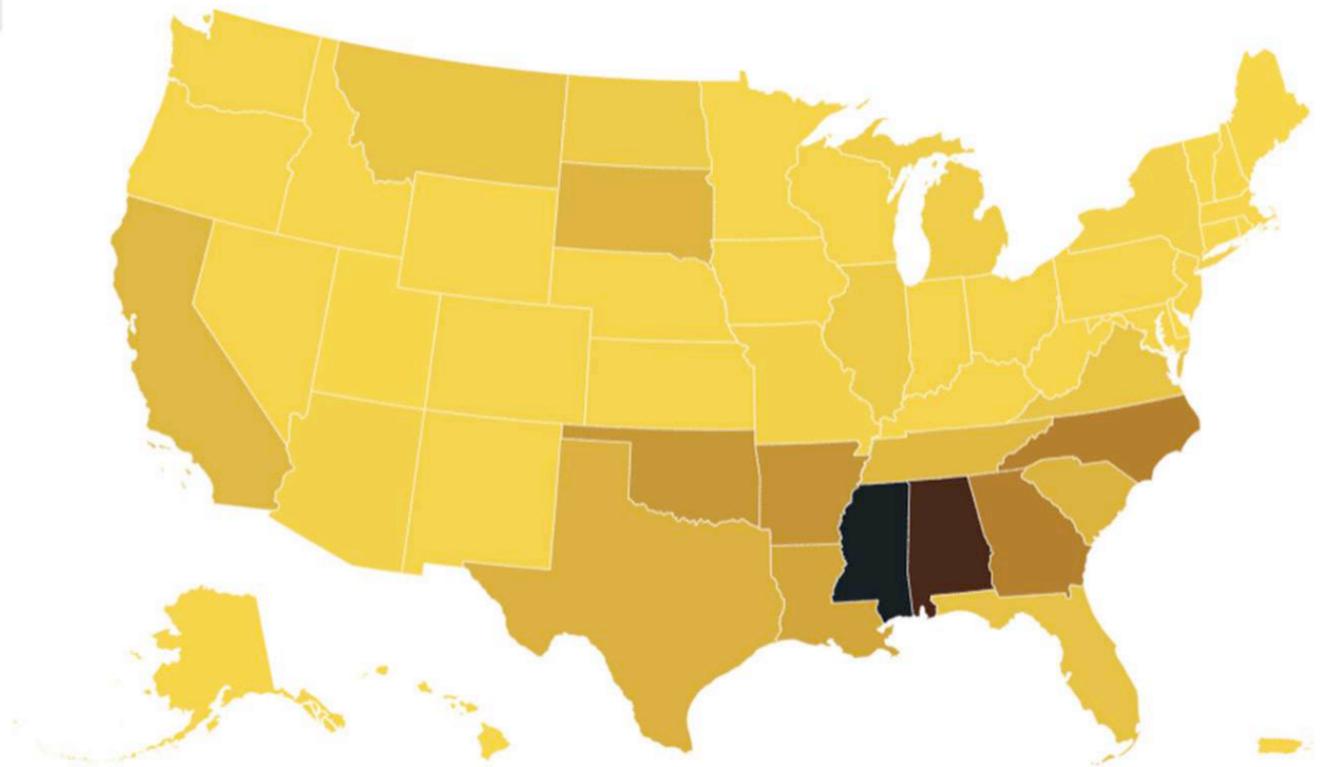

Vilsack said the discrimination resulted in loan denials, loan delays, higher interest rates and an overall lack of assistance.

“We’ve made significant strides in breaking down barriers to access, and my hope is that people will begin to think differently about USDA, so that we can better serve all who want to participate in agriculture in the future,” Vilsack said.

Specifically, Vilsack said the department’s Farm Service Agency, which administers farm loans, now has a more diverse leadership and loan assessment processes that rely less on human discretion.

“While this financial assistance is not compensation for anyone’s losses or pain endured, it is an acknowledgement. My hope is that this will ensure that many farmers can stay on their farms, contribute to our nation’s food supply, and continue doing what they love. I am also immensely grateful to USDA’s many partners in this effort, including the organizations who helped spread the word and offer technical assistance to applicants. This process, and the information contained in the applications, will help USDA as we fine tune our efforts to make USDA programs accessible, inclusive and equitable to all.”

Hungry, hungry 'hoppers jumping in Iowa farmfields

Iowa State University Extension and Outreach

July 29, 2024 -- Grasshopper activity in field crops has picked up recently, and these jumpy insects and their defoliation have caught the attention of crop scouts and agronomists across the state. Grasshoppers tend to thrive under dry conditions, and although most areas have received adequate moisture in 2024, consecutive drought years have likely led to higher than usual populations. This article discusses identification, scouting and management of grasshoppers in corn and soybeans.

Identification and Life Cycle

There are several species of grasshoppers in Iowa, but two common species found in field crops are the redlegged grasshopper and the differential grasshopper. Redlegged grasshoppers are the smaller of the two, growing to 1 ¼ inches long. They have yellow-green bodies and bright red on the hindlegs. Differential grasshoppers are up to 2 inches long and dark yellow or olive green, with black chevrons on the upper part of the hindlegs. Nymphs of each species look similar to the adult except they do not have fully developed wings. All grasshoppers have large hindlegs for jumping.

Injury and Scouting

Grasshoppers feed and cause injury on many plants, including corn, soybeans, and alfalfa. They can attack most growth stages of these crops, so the onset of injury is dependent on environmental conditions each year that impact insect development, planting activities, and crop growth.

Grasshoppers generally consume leaf tissue of older corn plants, leaving the midrib, and they may feed on ears of corn by chewing through the husk. They may also clip silks. On soybean, nymphs chew irregular holes in tender leaf tissue. Older nymphs and adults can consume all leaf tissue except the tougher veins. Grasshoppers may also chew through soybean pods and destroy seeds (Photo 4). Nymphs and adults chew irregular holes in alfalfa leaves, and they are typically found feeding on the newer alfalfa growth.

Grasshopper injury is typically worse at field edges, especially near grassy or weedy areas like fencerows, waterways, and ditches. Grasshoppers often move into fields when grasses or weeds are terminated. Injury is typically worse during warm, dry summers, and outbreaks are more likely after consecutive dry years.

Scouting for grasshoppers involves looking for defoliation or estimating the number of grasshoppers per square yard. Estimating numbers is difficult because they are highly mobile insects. A sweep net can be useful to capture grasshoppers, but there is no established threshold based on sweep samples. See the Management section for recommended thresholds to use.

Grasshoppers usually do not need to be managed in field crops, but agronomists have been concerned about the large number of small nymphs that are present, because this likely means feeding will continue for quite some time.

Managing grasshoppers

Natural enemies -- There are several species of pathogens that normally keep grasshopper populations in check during wet years. If you start to see dead or sickly-looking grasshoppers that likely indicates activity of these pathogens in the field that may contribute to control of the population. This disease is often called "summit disease" because it changes the behavior of grasshoppers to find a high point prior to death. Spores are spread once grasshoppers begin to decay.

What is being injured? Is pollination complete? An insecticide might be worthwhile to protect pollination if grasshoppers are present in the field, silks are being clipped to within ½ inch of the ear tip, and pollination is not yet complete. To minimize the impact on ear development, an insecticide might be worthwhile if grasshoppers are present and a considerable amount of defoliation is occurring above the ear or if there is injury to ears.

Location of infestation -- In all crops, a border or localized treatment might be a good option if grasshopper populations and injury are restricted to a particular area or the border rows. This could save on application costs and unnecessary insecticide use on the entire field.

Timing of application -- Keep in mind that some insecticides have a lengthy pre-harvest interval that needs to be considered.

DEFINITIONS

- Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) -- The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.
- Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG) -- The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.
- ppb -- parts per billion.
- ppm -- parts per million.
- pCi/L -- picocuries per liter
- N/A -- Not applicable
- ND -- Not detected
- RAA -- Running Annual Average
- LRAA -- Locational Running Annual Average
- Treatment Technique (TT) -- A required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.
- Action Level (AL) -- The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.
- Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG) - The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.
- Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL) - The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.
- SGL -- Single Sample Result
- RTCR - Revised Total Coliform Rule
- NTU - Nephelometric Turbidity Rule

GENERAL INFORMATION

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water posed a health risk. More information about contaminants or potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. ELDRIDGE WATER SUPPLY is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>.

COLIFORM ASSESSMENT

During the past year, we were required to conduct Level 1 assessment to determine the cause of bacteria in our distribution system. Corrective actions have been, or will be taken to address these issues. If a health concern is present, you will be notified.

A Level 1 assessment is a study of the water system to identify potential problems and determine (if possible) why total coliform bacteria have been found in our water system.

OTHER VIOLATIONS

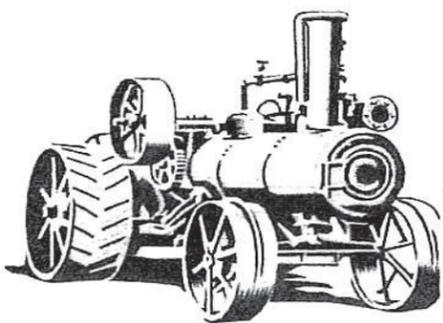

In September 2023, we failed to monitor for Lead and Copper. Adverse health effects, if any, are not known. Monitoring procedures have been corrected to avoid future violations.

SOURCE WATER ASSESSMENT INFORMATION

This water supply obtains its water from the dolomite of the Silurian aquifer. The Silurian aquifer was determined to be slightly susceptible to contamination because the characteristics of the aquifer and overlying materials provide moderate protection from contaminants at the land surface. The Silurian wells will be slightly susceptible to surface contaminants such as leaking underground storage tanks, contaminant spills, and excess fertilizer application. A detailed evaluation of your source water was completed by the Iowa Department of Natural Resources, and is available from the Water Operator at 563-285-4841.

CONTACT INFORMATION

For questions regarding this information or how you can get involved in decisions regarding the water system, please contact ELDRIDGE WATER SUPPLY at 563-285-4841.

Paris Olympics has a North Scott connection

Enjoy the dog days of summer while they last – these precious days before school and after other activities when time stands still. Grass is green and grain is yellow and families are sneaking in vacations before our season of busy-ness cycles all over again.

As for me and my summer, it has been only a fraction of what I'd hoped for due to my physical limitations. I've completed a 36-session cardiac rehab program at Genesis-DeWitt but issues linger and another heart procedure is scheduled. The goal is to again be able to take a walk around town with Linda or go to events in larger venues like the John Deere Classic or a Major League baseball game, a state softball tournament, the Mississippi Valley Fair, or a Rotary Convention where walking long distances is required.

Impressions
by Bill Tubbs

For now, those are off the table, but I've enjoyed watching Lancer baseball and softball games and trips to Whitey's. The national political drama on TV has partially filled the gap, and we have state fair highlights on Iowa PBS and the Democratic National Convention ahead.

The Paris Olympics has been a treat. Cameras take us right to the action, and the production quality is more than I can understand. The winner in the men's 100-meter dash was decided by only five-thousandths of a second and the top four finishers were within .03 of a second. I would call that a tie, but we do have devices that parse numbers that small, and the results are accepted.

Coverage of swimming events blows me away, too. Cameras give us a view from above, take us under water, and post results instantly. Winners accept the medals without controversy and how many times did you see athletes from competing nations embrace in a show of good sportsmanship and international friendship? Isn't that what it's supposed to be about?

Iowa Olympians

I thought it was cool that no fewer than five former Iowa State men's basketball players are competing on Olympic rosters – and then I looked a little further. The list of athletes with Iowa connections is longer than you think. Some 26, of which 11 have connections with Iowa and eight with Iowa State. (ISU's five men's basketball players is second only to Kentucky, which has six.)

The list of athletes with Iowa connections is at right, but there is another that has thus far escaped under the radar, and he has a North Scott connection!

Freddie Crittenden, 30, is a two-time first team All-American who competes in the 110-meter hurdles. He was born in St. Louis, grew up in Michigan and ran for Syracuse University. He is married to former Lancer honor student and star athlete Tor Hawley, Class of 2012, and the couple lives in Arizona, where Freddie trains in Phoenix.

After receiving her bachelor of arts degree in elementary education from the University of Iowa, Tor graduated from the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at Arizona State University. Her wedding writeup, in the Dec. 21, 2022, NSP, said she was employed as an attorney at Davis Miles McGuire Gardner PLLC in Phoenix, and was also the owner of torhawleycreative, a lifestyle photographer.

Freddie's degree from Syracuse was in public health. He was employed as program director at G Road, an inner-city non-profit outreach organization for youth.

Tor's dad, John Hawley, was a longtime teacher, junior high principal, and coach of girls' tennis and basketball at North Scott, who accepted a position in the Rock Island School District two years ago, but continues to reside in Eldridge with his wife, Kimberly. She is the sister of Brenda Warner, wife of NFL MVP quarterback Kurt Warner.

John's dad, Donald C. Hawley, is professor emeritus of languages at the University of Northern Iowa. He lives in Eldridge and has been a frequent writer of letters to the editor in The NSP.

Janet and Earl Oelerich

My first two years at The NSP, in 1971-73, the voice of Janet Oelerich was among the first we heard every day. That's because the only office we had was the 12x12 rented space in the back of the Oelerich Accounting Office, across the street from Eldridge Coop headquarters. Jan was always there helping her husband, Earl.

In 1973, The NSP found a new home, but our friendship with the Oelerichs continued and became an every day occasion when the Moonlight Chase came on the scene in 1985 and the Oelerichs' office was race

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Trump makes himself clear on dictatorship

The next presidential election may be our last unless we choose a Democratic president – Kamala Harris. The alternative will be a dictatorship of Donald J. Trump, a felon and a liar.

Vladimir Putin is planning on and hoping for a dictatorship.

Donald Trump admires Putin because he is all powerful in Russia. If anyone dares do anything or say anything against him, he has them jailed and ultimately assassinated.

Trump's style of leadership, through threats and intimidation are like Putin's. He has said that if you vote for someone other than him you may never have an opportunity to vote again.

This is how he projects what he will do on his opposition. He cannot be trusted and we should be able to see right through his lies, but unfortunately even though he continues to use the same tactics, there are those who listen to all the disinformation his MAGA party reports.

Even though he has been found to be a white supremacist, other races want to believe his deceptions and believe he cares about them.

If you are not a multi-millionaire that can support his campaign, he believes that the middle class and poor are losers. His plan 2025 to promote fascism in America by destroying education, banning books, destroying trust in all educated authorities, including doctors, lawyers, and scientists is detrimental to progress. An example are his lies and intimidation of Dr. Anthony Fauci, an authority on infectious communicable diseases. Trump refused to provide masks, gloves and gowns to help reduce the spread of Covid during the early days of the Covid epidemic which led to 1 million deaths in this country. Instead, he told those infected with Covid to drink bleach, which led to more sickness and death.

Trump said he didn't believe in global warming. He still denies that the increase in destructive storms is caused by global warming and says that he will increase drilling and use of fossil fuels when he is president. He asked his followers to go to the Capital and "fight like hell" on Jan 6, 2021, to overturn a fair and free election. He insisted on tearing voting machines apart and recounting the votes, which did nothing but increase the cost of the election. No fraud was found! He still refuses to say that he will accept the result of a fair Presidential election this year.

If Trump is elected, he will get rid of Social Security and Medicare. He will not support labor unions, educational programs, childcare programs or infrastructure improvements. His only interest during his prior presidency was to reduce taxes for the very wealthy so they would support his presidency. Economy was the only area he focused on and he increased the national debt. This time he says he will put tariffs on all imported goods which will increase the cost to consumers, so instead of giving cost of goods relief to consumers it will do exactly the opposite.

Alternately the Democrats plan for our democracy is for wages you can raise a family on, affordable health care for all, world class public schools, reproductive freedom, equality for women, free and fair elections decided by voters, and a fair tax plan for all. The most important thing is to retain our democracy, so the people can vote, and negotiate to hold their legislators accountable. We all need to participate in our government!

JoAnn Goodall
Eldridge

We have only ourselves to blame

Crime, corruption, hate and immorality, but God will save America; not because of our righteousness, but because of our sins. Yes, God will save our once great nation, but for the sole and expressed purpose of giving us one last chance to repent.

Our Founders were in consensus, believing that our Constitution was written for a Christian and moral people and that it would not work for those who were neither. Satan's mighty forces are laboring unopposed to destroy both the soul and spirit of our nation.

Rush Limbaugh warned of a nefarious ploy titled, "The dumbing of America," as subversive activity is often masked and takes many forms. Totalitarian police-state regimes, for example, cannot survive without a permanent underclass of poorly educated, unskilled workers in need of government subsistence - thus the reason for the third-world invasion of our borders and the fact that true American history is no longer taught; for that would instill love of country, reveal God-given liberties and plant the seeds of national pride.

In the early days of American education, every school was expected to instruct in basic knowledge of literature, mathematics, geography, history and politics, with great emphasis on morality, wisdom, virtue and religious faith.

In those days, students lined up in a single file. Upon entering, each boy would bow to show respect and take a seat. The girls would curtsy and do the same. They would then fold their hands, bow their heads and recite The Lord's Prayer; followed by the Pledge of Allegiance. Remaining time was invested in the reading and studying of the Holy Bible. All in preparation for becoming good, well-rounded citizens.

I think it is safe to assume that our Founders would never have envisioned nor tolerated the perversion, woke propaganda and drag queen indoctrination so prevalent in society today.

Cultural rot has paved the way for much of America's destruction.

Former Russian dictators Vladimir Lenin and Nikita Khrushchev have both vowed to destroy America and conquer her from within. First, the family nucleus must be destroyed, our history erased and rewritten, student indoctrination must be so thoroughly complete as to affect a radical transformation of beliefs and all norms of an existing God-fearing society demonized and negated.

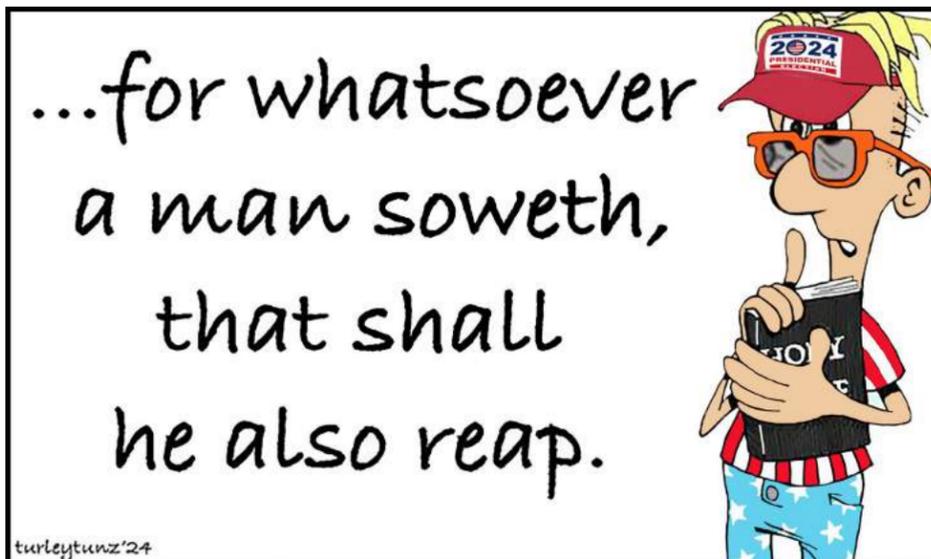

Then, after several generations of feeding us small bits of socialism at a time, they will bury us.

President Biden has taken note and is plunging us ever so deeply into an unprecedented, radicalized future. The moment he swore to uphold and defend the U.S. Constitution, he canceled the 1776 Project designed to restore honesty to the teaching of American history. Sadly, Obama's stated goal to fundamentally transform America is rapidly coming to fruition.

As Biden/Harris continue to repeal the great American dream, how many of us today truly comprehend what is happening? Have we become so naive, dumbed down and disjointed as a nation that our country's sacred documents and the freedoms they represent no longer resonate and are now regarded as nothing but antiquated relics from the past? Have we lost both our sanity as well as our soul? As apathy reigns and vigilance wanes, "We the People," have only ourselves to blame.

Yes, ours is a constitution written for both a Christian and moral people and, as senior statesman Benjamin Franklin so wisely stated, "Gentlemen, we have given you a Republic, if you can keep it."

May God be with us and give us peace. For Freedom, God and Country,
John C. Pischke

Vondran and Project 2025 are threats to democracy

Iowa House District 94 Republican Rep. Mike Vondran is a Christian nationalist and a threat to our freedom and democracy.

Vondran and the Republican party have embraced Project 2025 and started to pass it into law here in Iowa. Re-electing Vondran would be dangerous, especially for women and children.

Vondran voted to strip women and girls of their reproductive healthcare choices and care with zero regard for their lives - just because he can. He supported 10-year-old sex abuse victims being forced to carry babies to term, and legislation that could lead to birth control being banned.

He legislated taking women's healthcare rights away just to show them that he can. He wholeheartedly supported the anti-freedom, "don't say gay" bill despite knowing the harm it would cause to children and parent's rights.

He voted to divert over $250 million in tax payer dollars to private Christian schools. This fiscally irresponsible legislation harms Iowa children.

It is obvious that Vondran is confused about what freedom and democracy are. Even worse, maybe he just doesn't care.

Just compare Project 2025 to the legislation Vondran supported in his first term. Republican Mike Vondran has done harm to Iowa District 94.

Real Republicans should be appalled by Vondran's support for big government and fiscal irresponsibility. Vote Mike Vondran out of office. Take our democracy back.

1984: NSHS launches first TIGER bicycle ride

Aug. 7, 1974

• The Eldridge Jaycees were planning to hold a fundraising kickoff event for a proposed community center in town. The club had pledged $10,000 for the establishment of the facility. It was hoped a community center would be able to provide meeting rooms, a place for young people to meet, and a banquet and dancing facility.

• Recent North Scott grad Tony Edwards was gearing up to participate in the Iowa Shrine Bowl in Des Moines, featuring the best football players in the state. In the fall, Edwards would attend Luther College, where he had received a nearly full-ride scholarship.

• A 14-year-old Dixon boy was lucky to be alive after breaking his neck in a diving mishap. James Steiger had been swimming with friends in the Wapsi River near Dixon and jumped off the High Rock River Bridge, landing on a sandbar in shallow water. The boys reportedly had not realized how much the water had receded in the past few weeks. Steiger was hospitalized at University Hospitals in Iowa City, and his recovery was expected to take several months.

• The Jack Reese family of Dixon had a bit of a surprise when a cement truck accidentally ended up in their yard. The driver of the truck failed to properly make a turn upon entering town but was able to steer the truck between a power line pole and a fire hydrant. There were no injuries, and no damage to the home.

• Jeff Miller and Jeff Suiter tied for Most Valuable Player honors, awarded at the annual baseball potluck dinner. Suiter was also named third-team all-district.

Aug. 8, 1984

• Several North Scott area communities were getting ready to welcome cyclists from across the state, as the first-ever Tour Iowa's Greater Region (TIGER) bicycle ride was set to take off from North Scott High School, enroute to Cornell College in Mount Vernon. Approximately 500 cyclists were expected to take part in the ride, which would also travel through Donahue and Dixon before going through Tipton. After a night in Mount Vernon, the route would head north to Anamosa, before tracking back through Lost Nation and Grand Mound and ending back in Eldridge.

• There would be three candidates for three open spots on the North Scott School Board, as incumbent Jane Miles joined Jack Hill and Gus Youngberg on the ballot. Jim Tank had already announced he did not plan to run for reelection after 12 years on the board.

• Darrel Pennel of Eldridge was surprised to be chosen to join Marie and Donnie Osmond on stage during a concert at Palmer Auditorium.

Marie pulled Pennel from the audience and asked him to help her sing the Patsy Cline tune, "Crazy." Luckily, he knew most of the words. "I was shocked that she chose me," said Pennel. "I wasn't really scared. I was just surprised." Other performers at the concert, held in conjunction with the Miller High Life Quad Cities Open, included the Gatlin Brothers Band and Herve Villechaize.

• Myron Keppy of Durant showed the grand champion market beef steer at the Mississippi Valley Fair. The 2,700 pound "Old Yellow" was later bought at auction by Walcott Trust & Savings Bank for $109 per hundred pounds. Ten years earlier, Keppy's brother, Loren, showed the grand champion steer that was also bought by the Walcott bank.

• Herold and Inez Meyer, formerly of rural Walcott, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in style, taking a ride in the same 1928 Dodge Victory Six sedan they drove on their honeymoon trip to California in 1934. Bernard Frye, a cousin, restored the car for the occasion.

Aug. 11, 1999

• A 75.4 percent majority of stockholders of S/M Service Company in Walcott voted to merge with River Valley Cooperative. The merger would be completed by Sept. 1 if RVC shareholders approved a change in bylaws at the Aug. 25 annual meeting.

• North Scott alums Lori Osterberg and Lea Twigg Rains were inducted into the Iowa Girls' High School Softball Hall of Fame, the first time two players from the same school had been inducted in a single year. The induction took place during the state softball tournament in Fort Dodge.

• There were three candidates for three open seats on the North Scott School Board, as Steve Abney joined incumbents Jack Hill and Dennis Strobbe on the ballot. Board member Joanne Hammes, who had served on the board since 1987, announced in July that she would not run for reelection.

• Kent Hartwig and Joe Goodall returned to the North Scott Fine Arts Auditorium for a presentation of the comedy "Greater Tuna," sponsored by Friends of North Scott (FONZ) Theatre.

• The North Scott softball team placed third at the state tournament. They opened action with a 7-0 win over Charles City, followed by a heartbreaking 1-0, 14-inning loss to Des Moines Lincoln. They then defeated Sioux City East 3-2 in nine innings. Pitcher Anne Hamilton and catcher Bridgette Davis were named to the all-tournament team, as well as first-team all-MAC. The team amassed a 50-5 record for the season.

• Members of the Scott County 4-H County Council included: Adrienne Hermiston, Laura Dierickx, Dana Petersen, Melissa Baetke, Blair Gruenhagen, Kiera Looney, Lisa VanDenBerghe, Daniel Weber, Crystal Timmerman, Jana Hemphill, Liz McDonnell, Carrie Claussen, Rachel Grunwald, Tracy Kuhl, Kandi Gay, Kevin Berg, Chad Havill, Natalie Miller, Lisa Ramm, Chris Saito, Ryan Schaefer, Marie Schurr, Sara Wegener and Kendra Wulf.

Aug. 12, 2009

• Scott County residents John and Claudia VenHorst were set to be inducted into the Iowa 4-H Hall of Fame during the Iowa State Fair.

• Scott County purchased two hybrid vehicles to add to its fleet and help with a countywide goal of being "greener." The Honda Insight hybrids would be used by the Health and Planning and Development departments. "We're trying to watch our footprint on the environment and emissions," said Supervisor Jim Hancock.

• New staff with the North Scott School District included Tammy Smolenski, Sarah Koch, Bernadette Haas, Marji Martel, Laurie Smith, Bridget Robbins, Beth Ruffner, Kelly Lucier, Heather Easley, Brad Ward, Karyn Sindt, Whitney Elkins, Dion Ayers, Melissa Ruyter, Trisha Dempsey, Paula Nemmers-Skarich, Sarah Danner, Anastasia Nikolopoulos, Tony Stewart, Jennifer Kolwey, Joanna Link and Elizabeth Gross.

• North Scott baseball player and recent graduate Greg Daniels was named to the Iowa High School Baseball Coaches Association academic all-state team. Those honored had an average ACT score of 18, a grade point average of 3.99, were in the top three percent of their class, and were "of outstanding moral character."

• The North Scott wrestling team finished third during a camp at Luther College, going 8-2 in dual meet action against teams from Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Aug. 7, 2019

• Gregg and Cathy Mostaert of Long Grove celebrated their relationship with a spin on the Ferris wheel at the Mississippi Valley Fair. The ride held a lot of special meaning for them, as they rode it on their first date in 1988. Gregg later proposed on the ride in 1994. "We had our first kiss on that Ferris wheel," said Gregg. "I remember going to put my arm around her and I hit her with my elbow."

• Park View was looking for ways to improve public safety after more than 2,000 emergency calls had been placed in the community in the last two years. Deer Creek Apartment was the site of 280 of those calls. The Scott County Board of Supervisors was exploring a possible rental ordinance that would be reviewed by the Owners Association.

• Chloe Engelbrecht was crowned queen of the Mississippi Valley Fair. Other contestants included Kyrnan Liske-Rochholz, Clarah Buhman, Lauren Keeney, Grace Bjuström, Maureen Campbell, Sophia Pike, Victoria Maca, and Victoria Maca.

• Tina's Dance Studio held auditions for a production of "The Nutcracker," scheduled for December. Owner Tina Lindle said she was hoping to make the show a holiday tradition in the North Scott area.

• Sam Lee was a first-team all-state selection for the Iowa Girls' Coaches Association honor team. Ryann Cheek was a second-team selection.

Iowa nursing homes owe $10.7M in unpaid state fees

Executives for top debtor donated more than $293K to political campaigns

By Clark Kauffman
Iowa Capital Dispatch

Forty-nine Iowa nursing homes owe the taxpayers more than $10.7 million in fees the state has so far failed to collect, according to newly released records.

One for-profit company based in West Des Moines operates 18 care facilities that collectively owe the state $3.6 million in unpaid fees. The company's top two executives, meanwhile, have made $293,000 in political donations.

The state fees imposed on nursing homes, called Quality Assurance Assessment fees, are a mechanism that has been used since 2009 to artificially inflate the facilities' cost of doing business.

The increased expense enables the facilities to draw down more money in Medicaid reimbursement for resident care. Often, the increased Medicaid payments more than offset the cost of the fees paid to the state, resulting in a net gain for the homes.

By law, the care facilities are supposed to use that additional money to increase the pay of their front-line caregivers — which is why the fees are called Quality Assurance Assessment fees. It's a circular, but legal, method of increasing the revenue collected by nursing homes and has been approved by the federal government in Iowa and other states.

Last month, the Iowa Capital Dispatch asked the Iowa Department of Health and Human Services for a list of the Iowa care facilities that were behind in their payments, along with the amount owed by each facility.

On Aug. 1, DHHS provided a list of the facilities. It includes eight nursing homes now subject to sanctions for failure to pay, plus 41 other care facilities that are currently on what the state calls a "repayment plan."

Collectively, the 49 homes are $10.7 million in arrears on payments. Two of the 49 homes reportedly owe $1 million or more.

The company that appears to owe taxpayers the most is Accura Healthcare of West Des Moines. Eighteen of the for-profit company's Iowa care facilities are currently on payment plans with the state, and they now owe a combined $3,644,432.97, according to DHHS.

Campaign finance records show that since 2015, Accura Healthcare's CEO, Ted LeNeave, has personally donated more than $239,000 to GOP campaigns in Iowa and to the political action committee of the industry's main lobbying organization. That total includes $54,500 LeNeave donated directly for Gov. Kim Reynolds' campaigns, plus $76,000 LeNeave donated to Iowa Senate Majority Leader Jack Whitver of Grimes.

Since 2021, the president of Accura Healthcare, Lisa Toti, has made $36,000 in political donations in Iowa, including $16,000 contributed to Reynolds' campaign committees.

The Capital Dispatch was unable to reach LeNeave and Toti at their office on Aug. 2.

Fees should result in pay increases

What's still not clear is how many Iowa nursing homes are currently complying with the law that requires them to use their additional Medicaid money to increase the pay of front-line caregivers.

In 2022, the most recent year for which data could be found, DHHS reported that of the 379 Iowa nursing homes that were required to spend their new revenue on pay increases for certified nurse aides, 68 of them — or 18% of the total — failed to do so.

An additional 37 homes — or 10% of the total — failed to meet a different standard that required them to spend 60% of their excess revenue on compensation for all staff.

The Quality Assurance Assessment fee program was devised in 2009 as a way for Iowa to provide additional revenue to nursing homes. At the time, state lawmakers assured the public that the influx of new money for care facilities would be used to enhance the pay of nurses, certified nurse aides and other direct-care providers.

However, DHHS has acknowledged that while the legislation behind the program went into great detail on the calculation of fees and the manner which pay increases were to be handled, the law didn't give DHHS any enforcement power with regard to the pay increases.

Maureen Barton of DHHS said Thursday the department is "working diligently to ensure providers are adhering to repayment plans" on the fees that are imposed, and said DHHS has "made significant progress in bringing down the overall balance."

Barton said that when a facility falls behind in payments, the state sends "a demand notice" asking the facility to pay the entire amount that's due. If that doesn't happen, she said, DHHS can reduce the amount of Medicaid money flowing to the homes in an effort to offset the debt.

The department also has the ability to impose sanctions, she said, and can refer the matter to the Iowa Department of Revenue for collection.

In 2021, the Iowa-based QHC Facilities nursing home chain filed for bankruptcy and informed the court that it owed taxpayers more than $3.9 million in unpaid QAA fees that had accrued over a period of several years.

At the time of its bankruptcy, QHC

Facilities also owed the state and federal government at least $2.2 million for unpaid fines and advance payments collected for resident care.

Three months ago, Tabor Manor Care Center in Fremont County filed for bankruptcy, stating that it owed $1,169,257 in unpaid QAA fees that date back to 2019. (The state says the debt is closer to $999,000.)

IOWA CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATION

Grassley advocates for Olympic athletes

Feenstra bill would help poultry producers

By Jack O'Connor
Iowa Capital Dispatch

Iowa Sen. Chuck Grassley penned letters this week to SafeSport and USA Gymnastics demanding answers to why the agencies have done so little to protect Olympic athletes.

Iowa lawmakers also introduced bills aimed at increasing small-scale poultry processing, reducing paperwork for small businesses and preventing sexual assault on college campuses.

Here's what Iowa's congressional delegation was doing in the last week before a monthlong recess:

Grassley advocates for athletes

Grassley sent letters to the CEOs of SafeSport and USA Gymnastics demanding they take greater steps to protect Olympic athletes from abusers.

Grassley's letters come amid the 2024 Paris Summer Olympics. Olympic gold medalists Simone Biles and Aly Raisman testified in September 2021 before the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee about failures that enabled the sexual abuse committed by the former USA Gymnastics team doctor, Larry Nassar.

SafeSport, a government agency designed to investigate Olympic athlete abuse, and USA Gymnastics can provide protective measures against individuals who are under investigation for the alleged physical or emotional abuse of athletes, according to Grassley.

However, an internal SafeSport report revealed the agency only imposed protective measures on 5% of individuals under investigation.

Raisman testified in 2021 that SafeSport's priority does not seem to be the safety and wellbeing of athletes. "I hear from many survivors that they report their abuse and it's like playing hot potato, where someone else kicks it over to someone else and they don't hear back for a really long time," she said, according to Grassley's letter to SafeSport CEO Ju'Riese Colón.

"This is an affront to justice and demands immediate correction," Grassley wrote.

To USA Gymnastics CEO Li Li Leung, Grassley is asking for data on the number of times they imposed restrictions due to SafeSport investigations, declined to impose restrictions from a SafeSport investigation, internal policies on when they will impose a restriction and policies for an athlete to request restrictions against an individual.

Grassley brought up allegations of USA Gymnastics ignoring reports of children being slapped, dragged by the neck and kicked while the child was injured.

To the SafeSport CEO, Grassley asked why the agency has decreased its use of protective measures, what efforts the agency has made to inform governing bodies what they can do amid a pending investigation as well as what metrics are used to assess the seriousness of an allegation and the risk posed by an individual.

Grassley said in the press release that SafeSport delaying or avoiding punishments of alleged abusers despite numerous warnings of their danger shows the agency needs change.

"Long after SafeSport's formation, several habitual abusers remain in positions of trust, despite public scrutiny spotlighting their misconduct," Grassley wrote in his letter to SafeSport.

Grassley also asked for data on the number of protective measures taken since June 2020, how long have the 120 cases opened for more than two years been pending investigation and how many times has the agency eased restrictions placed on individuals by national governing bodies.

Grassley also called on Colón to defend why she deserves to still have her job.

Custom exempt slaughter allows livestock owners to operate without federal inspection if the slaughter is exclusively for the use of the livestock owner or the owner's family, guests or employees.

"Due to outdated laws, Iowa farmers oftentimes travel long distances to have their broilers and turkeys slaughtered and processed – this must change," Feenstra said in a press release. "By encouraging local processing and slaughter of poultry, we can deliver fresher products more quickly to consumers, eliminate unnecessary headaches and additional expenses for our producers, and strengthen our agricultural economy in Iowa."

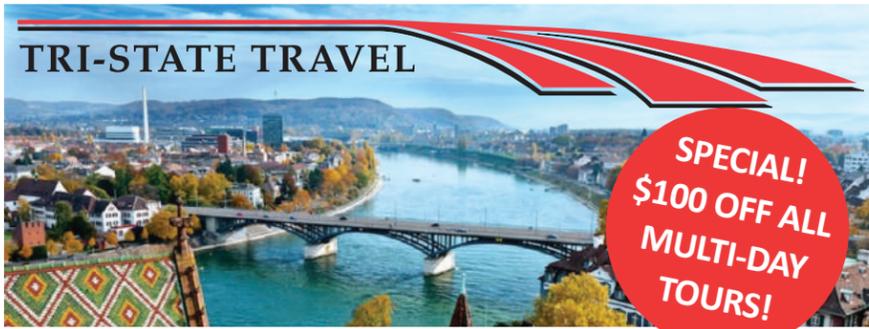

If passed, the bill would amend the Poultry Products Inspection Act which would allow poultry producers to increase the availability of local poultry processing options.

The bill introduced by Feenstra is akin to a similar bill created by Iowa Secretary of Agriculture Mike Naig that passed unanimously in the Iowa Legislature.

"Iowa poultry producers, especially those who sell directly to consumers, have long struggled to find poultry processing options within Iowa and have instead had to travel to neighboring states for this service. The legislative proposal I put forth to increase small-scale processing in Iowa was signed into law by Gov. Reynolds after unanimous support from the Legislature, so now we are just awaiting federal action and approval," Naig said in a press release.

Feenstra seeks an increase in small-scale poultry processing

Rep. Randy Feenstra introduced a bill to allow poultry processing plants to perform regular slaughter and custom exempt slaughter at the same facility.

SOFTBALL AWARDS

Skarich is co-MAC player of the year

Nearly every Lancer starter earned a spot on a 2024 all-MAC team

By Ross Shinberg

NSP Sports Editor

Fresh off a third-place finish at the state softball tournament, more accolades are rolling in for the girls that made it happen.

At the district level, senior Sydney Skarich and sophomore Adalynn Johnson earned spots on the Class 4A Northeast all-district team.

Wrapping up one of the best Lancer careers in recent memory, Skarich dominated on the diamond once again. She accumulated 59 hits, leading to a .472 batting average, as well as a .507 on-base percentage.

She scored a team-best 47 runs, stole 35 bases, drove in 22 runs and did not strike out one time in 125 at-bats.

Johnson provided the muscle in the middle of the Lancer lineup. She blasted 11 home runs and nine doubles leading to a .812 slugging percentage and a team-leading 34 runs batted in. Johnson also reached double-digits in the stolen base department with 14.

Skarich and Johnson also made the Mississippi Athletic Conference all-conference first team.

Skarich was named Co-Player of the Year along with Pleasant Valley's Mary Paige Withers.

The lone Lancer all-MAC first-teamer to not make the district team was junior pitcher Chevelle Kingsley.

Establishing herself as one of the best pitchers in the conference, Kingsley posted a 1.30 ERA, a 1.01 WHIP and 92 strikeouts across 102.2 innings pitched.

She also helped herself out at the plate numerous times with her .364 batting average, .442 on-base percentage and .614 slugging percentage.

Making the all-conference second team this season was senior McKinley Toohey, sophomore Cadey Bredar and eighth-grader Laney Welge.

Toohey was part of the dominant middle-infield combination with Skarich and an elite North Scott defense. She also recorded 23 hits and only struck out four times in 96 at-bats.

Bredar was elite in the circle this season. She posted a 1.32 ERA, a 0.96 WHIP and .190 batting average allowed in 79.1 innings pitched in her first season as a varsity starter.

Welge jumped right to varsity and played like a veteran. She ranked second on the team in batting average (.422), fourth in on-base percentage (.430) and fourth in slugging percentage (.544).

Rounding out the list on the honorable mention side were freshmen Alyanna Nelson and Kamilah Eller.

Nelson gave opponents double trouble. On the pitching side, she threw 40 innings and posted a 1.23 ERA and 1.00 WHIP. At the dish, she slashed .330/.392/.486 with three home runs and 14 doubles.

Eller played an elite center field all year making just three errors this season. She also recorded 17 hits, scored 16 runs and drove in 14 runs.

Additionally, North Scott skippers Holly Hoelting and Hallie Eller were recognized as the conference's best with the "MAC Coaching Staff of the Year" award.
