Welcome To Greater Severna Park

Originally named Boone, Severna Park was a stop along the Baltimore-Annapolis Railroad and was mostly open fields in the early 1900s. Severna Park experienced exponential growth over the last century. Today, the town is home to more than 38,000 residents, and the neighboring Broad-neck peninsula has a population of more than 60,000.

Families flock to the area for many reasons: prestigious schools, the B&A Trail, water activities made possible by the Mag-othy and Severn rivers, Kinder Farm Park, and a variety of restaurants and businesses that cannot be found anywhere else. The town is also conveniently located along the I-97 corridor, a short drive from Baltimore, Annapolis and Washington, D.C.

Severna Park and Arnold are part of a tight-knit community, and 2021 demonstrated that once again. It's a place where neighborhoods participate in an annual S(o)uper Bowl organized by Good Neighbors Group (last year, 20,500 items were distributed to local food pantries thanks to the effort). Year-round, generous people give to the nonprofits SPAN and ACAN. It's a place where droves of former Severna Park High School athletes and parents packed the Severna Park United Methodist Church parking lot to pay their respects to former field hockey coach Lillian "Lil" Shelton. It's also a place where parents planned a prom for kids when the school system canceled the original prom, and where students and parents held a party for retiring school resource officer Alex Swartz.

Flip through the pages of the Community Resource and Business Directory and you will find lists of schools, restaurants, government agencies and so much more information that is hopefully useful for you, the reader. You will also find several history stories.

It is our hope that you can use this information and share it with your neighbors to help them take advantage of everything the area has to offer. ■

From The Chamber CEO

Liz League
GSPACC

The Greater Severna Park and Arnold Chamber of Commerce (GSPACC) has been supporting and advocating for businesses and organizations in our community since 1957. Our mission is to build and strengthen relationships between businesses, organizations and the community, which will enhance local commerce, enriching the lives of everyone.

This period over the past few years was not just about survival; it was about adapting, investing and growing. Our business community persevered, setting us up for strong economic opportunities in 2022. Our local businesses hustle, adapt and lead change.

It is so important to shop local, eat local, and give local to keep our money in our small businesses and organizations. They give us desired goods and services, jobs, and are the first to contribute to charitable needs. This is our town, this is our community, and this is where every one of us has an investment to grow. Supporting local people and places gives our families and future generations a community with continued opportunity to live the American dream. ■

Hometown Events Make Severna Park And Arnold A Great Place To Live

These festivals, parades and student-led concerts are among the many events unique to Severna Park and Arnold, making it a tight-knit community.

WINTER

Rock 'N' Roll Revival

Severna Park High School's talented singers, musicians, dancers and crew members rehearse for months to prepare Rock 'N' Roll Revival, which features songs from different eras and a new theme each year. The show started in 1989. More than 30 years and 800 songs later, it is still a must-see spectacle.

"Time After Time" is the theme for the 2022 show, set for March 10-13 and March 17-19. Find more information at www.sphsdrama.com/rock-n-roll-revival.

SPRING

Burgers and Bands

Are you ready to rock? Bands and solo singers perform at Severna Park Taphouse to raise funds for suicide prevention. Since 2017, Burgers and Bands has sought to show people in Severna Park that no matter their age, they are not alone. There is help, there is hope and there are resources.

The 2022 event is planned for May 15 from 11:00am-7:00pm. To learn more, go to www.burger-sandbands.org.

Shop Local Fun Fiesta

The Shop Local Fun Fiesta has been held at all times of the year, most recently in May 2019, to showcase local businesses and organizations and to remind consumers why those groups are vital to Severna Park.

SUMMER

Earleigh Heights Carnival

Rides, concessions and games are all part of the Earleigh Heights Volunteer Fire Company's annual carnival, usually held in July. The carnival supplies fun while bringing in much-needed funds to keep the department in operation.

Fourth of July Parade

Each year since 1975, Severna Park families have lined their sidewalks with lawn chairs, blankets and patriotic outfits during the Fourth of July parade. Young children and pets are no exception, as they also don red, white and blue garb to commemorate the holiday. Organized by the Greater Severna Park and Arnold Chamber of Commerce, the parade brings together the best aspects of the community as neighbors celebrate their favorite clubs and organizations, businesses and youth groups that stroll two miles from St. Martin's-in-the-Field Episcopal Church on Benfield Road to Woods Memorial Presbyterian Church on B&A Boulevard.

National Night Out

Held on the first Tuesday in August, the popular community-police event came to Anne Arundel County's Eastern District in 2015. Earleigh Heights Volunteer Fire Company serves at the perfect venue, providing families with food, games, K-9 demonstrations and opportunities to meet local police officers, firefighters, sheriff's deputies and first responders.

Art in the Park

With top-shelf jazz groups and fine art in the courtyard and interior of Cafe Mezzanotte, the inaugural Art in the Park festival was a success in 2021. The next event, tentatively scheduled for September, is expected to be even bigger.

Lifeline 100

What began as a way to showcase Anne Arundel County's scenic trails and roadways, and spotlight cycling safety and benefits, has grown every year into a celebrated annual event drawing hundreds of cyclists of all ages and abilities. The event offers routes of 15, 30, 65 and 100 miles, taking cyclists to Kinder Farm Park, the Severn River, U.S. Naval Academy, the Chesapeake Bay, United States Naval Academy Stadium and more.

The Anne Arundel County Department of Recreation and Parks, Anne Arundel County Police Department, and Bicycle Advocates for Annapolis and Anne Arundel County (BikeAAA) are planning the eighth annual Lifeline 100 for October 2, 2022. Learn more at www.lifeline100.com.

Kinder Farm Park Fall Harvest Festival

With farm animals, music and a variety of crafts (like pumpkin painting and scarecrow making), the Fall Harvest Festival at Kinder Farm Park is a popular October celebration. In 2021, a smaller version of the event, called Fall Funday, was held in place of the Fall Harvest Festival.

Shoptoberfest

The Greater Severna Park and Arnold Chamber of Commerce put a new spin on the Shop Local Festival by presenting Shoptoberfest last year in October. Held in the Park Plaza shopping center, Shoptoberfest invited local stores and businesses like The Cottage and Ledo Pizza to set up tables and show off their wares. Halloween was celebrated early as a costume contest was held for kids and dogs.

SPAN Turkey Trot

Roughly a week before feasting on Thanksgiving dinner, runners and walkers unite at Kinder Farm Park for a 5K run or one-mile walk to support the nonprofit SPAN. Funds help local families in need with utility shutoffs, evictions, and medical/prescription copays.

Jingle Bell Hayride

Before fall officially ends, Kinder Farm Park hosts a December day of festive hayrides, roasted marshmallows and chances to see the park's decorated farmhouse.

Christmas Tree Lightings

It's not the holiday season in Severna Park until the town gathers to illuminate trees and welcome Santa Claus. The Greater Severna Park and Arnold Chamber of Commerce usually holds an early December tree lighting at its office, celebrating with music, cookies and hot chocolate. A few years ago, the Merchants of Park Plaza planned its own event with music, dance performances and a special visit from Saint Nick.

Taste & Sip

This Greater Severna Park and Arnold Chamber of Commerce event provides an evening of food, wine and music where guests can sample goods from local restaurants, bakeries and liquor stores. With networking, live holiday entertainment and a silent auction, Taste & Sip has plenty to offer. ■

ANNAPOLIS EVENTS

Severna Park and Arnold are a short drive from Maryland's capital, Annapolis, which has its own traditions and yearly celebrations. Here are some of the most popular activities.

Commissioning Week: The United States Naval Academy Commissioning Week is a time of celebration for midshipmen, their families and all of Annapolis. Visitors come from all over to celebrate this special honor with graduating midshipmen each May.

Restaurant Week: From carryout bargains to dining out and gift cards, deals are plentiful. Enjoy the Annapolis food and drink scene this year from March 26 through April 3.

Boat Shows: April brings the first of the year's boating events with the Spring Sailboat Show. During back-to-back weekends in October, Annapolis hosts water enthusiasts from around the country. The U.S. Powerboat Show (October 6-9, 2022) features luxurious motor yachts, trawlers, high-performance boats and offshore fishing vessels. The U.S. Sailboat Show (October 13-16, 2022) offers everything from high-tech navigational equipment to outboard motors.

Film Festival: The 10th anniversary of the Annapolis Film Festival is approaching, with a slate of more than 100 films from over 35 countries. The festival includes days of films, virtual panels, showcases, coffee talks and more. The 2022 event is scheduled for March 31 to April 3.

Lights on the Bay: Sandy Point State Park is illuminated from late November to early January, offering visitors a two-mile scenic drive along the Chesapeake Bay. Approximately 70 animated and stationary displays brighten the roadway. Proceeds benefit the SPCA of Anne Arundel County. ■

The Greater Severna Park Athletic Association, known as the Green Hornets, is a non-profit youth sports organization for children ages 3 to 18. Green Hornets serves more than 8,000 area children each year, providing the opportunity for kids to be involved in any of 11 sports at varying levels of competition. The organization consists of more than 800 volunteers who help the kids learn the rules of the game, build confidence and self-esteem, develop social skills, and gain an understanding of teamwork, coordination and athletic skills. ■

Green Hornets Provides Valuable Experiences Through Youth Athletics

FAMOUS GREEN HORNETS

Athletes from several sports have taken their coaching from Green Hornets and harnessed it as they continued to develop their skills and reach professional sports. These are some of the most famous players who came through the ranks.

Steve Wojciechowski — Basketball

As a point guard at Duke University, Steve Wojciechowski claimed many school records. He collected the second-highest single season steal total in 1997 with 82. He ranks ninth in career steals with 203 and eighth in career assists with 505. “Wojo,” as he is affectionately called, also won National Defensive Player of the Year honors in 1998.

He later joined Duke as an assistant coach, serving in that capacity for 14 years until he left to coach Marquette University, where he stayed for seven seasons until 2021.

Jordan Norwood — Football

A 5-foot-11-inch receiver for the Cleveland Browns and Denver Broncos, Jordan Norwood played in the NFL from 2009 to 2016. During Super Bowl 50 as a Bronco, he notched the longest punt return in Super Bowl history on a 61-yard scamper.

Kyle Dixon — Lacrosse

Following two national title wins with the University of Virginia, midfielder Kyle Dixon was drafted by the hometown Bayhawks. In his decorated career, Dixon was a three-time Major League Lacrosse champion and three-time All-Pro. He retired in 2016.

Gavin Floyd — Baseball

Selected one spot before Teixeira in the 2021 MLB draft, that year’s No. 4 overall pick, Gavin Floyd, pitched for 13 years in the major leagues. He finished with a career 4.37 ERA and 985 strikeouts in 1,250 innings pitched.

Mark Teixeira — Baseball

Mark Teixeira split his 14-year Major League Baseball career between the Texas Rangers, Atlanta Braves, Los Angeles Angels and New York Yankees. A potential Hall of Famer, Teixeira is one of only five major league switch-hitters with more than 400 home runs – a club that includes Carlos Beltran, Chipper Jones, Eddie Murray and Mickey Mantle.

Severna Park Library Offers More Than Just Good Books

For anyone who is in the mood for a good read, a movie to watch or even board games to play, the Severna Park Library is the place to check out. Built in 1972, the Severna Park branch of the Anne Arundel County Public Library system serves as a community space, open and welcoming to everyone.

"We provide free materials for checkout, from the hot best-sellers for adults to board books for introducing babies to reading," said Samantha Zline, branch manager of the Severna Park Library. "Additionally, we have free programs for all ages. All of these programs build community, forge friendships and encourage people to enrich their lives through our resources."

The library has monthly programs available for all ages and backgrounds, from the Early Readers club for kids to the Guys Book Club for adult men to the Rad Readers club for elementary kids who are homeschooled. Zline organizes and runs the board game night, when anyone is invited to play classic board games. There is even a "Dungeons and Dragons" group.

"So many people associate libraries with books, but we are so much more," Zline stated. "Library staff will gladly talk your ear off about all of the different resources and programs we offer, so I would encourage everyone to stop by and say hello. What other place can you think of where you can sit all day with your laptop and not be asked to buy a coffee? You might be surprised by how much you can do with that little card."

That little card is free for any Maryland resident. Worried about late fees? Rest assured as those are a thing of the past.

Check out www.aacpl.net for a full calendar of the library's upcoming events. Operating hours for the library are 10:00am–9:00pm Monday through Thursday; 10:00am–5:00pm Friday and Saturday; and 1:00pm–5:00pm on Sunday. ■

PARKS AND TRAILS

B&A Trail Connects Residents From Glen Burnie To Annapolis

Stretching over 13.25 miles and connecting Dorsey Road in Glen Burnie to Winchester Road, just north of Route 50, the Baltimore and Annapolis (B&A) Trail is both a meeting place and an outdoor fitness hub.

The trail connects with the BWI trail that circles the Baltimore Washington International Airport, the Jonas Catherine Green Park in Annapolis, and the Broadneck Trail that connects Anne Arundel County Community College and Sandy Point State Park. The trail makes Anne Arundel County accessible for commuting, exercise and entertainment.

Another attractive feature is the trail's many amenities to increase community interest. The Planet Walk is one of the trail's most popular offerings.

The Planet Walk is an almost five-mile-long stretch along the trail that features a scale model of the solar system. Each of the planets are spaced proportional to their distance from the sun. The experience explores facts about the solar system and educates guests as they walk or bike along the trail. The experience starts with the sun behind the Harundale Plaza in Glen Burnie and ends at the ranger station near Earleigh Heights.

The Friends of Anne Arundel County Trails organization also hosts a free concert series at Hatton-Regester Green Park in Severna Park in the spring. The event usually draws a crowd of about 100 people and features local musicians.

Aside from being one of the most accessible features in the county and offering a scenic alternative to Ritchie Highway, the B&A Trail connects people, encourages healthy living and brings Severna Park together. ■

SPY Swimmers Compete On Local, Regional And National Level

The Severna Park YMCA Swim Team, known as SPY, aims to provide a high-quality, competitive swimming program within the community. The SPY swim team wants to help all SPY swimmers reach their highest personal potential as both people and as athletes. SPY coaches are committed to helping children grow in character, physical development and skill.

The SPY swim team members are unique in that as a YMCA team, they participate in "Y" dual, invitational, district and national championships for both long course and short course venues. In addition, SPY swimmers are registered as USA Swimming members and participate in USA-sanctioned invitational meets, sectionals, junior and senior championships for both long and short course formats that lead to the U.S. Open and Olympic trials.

Crystee Ballard serves as the head coach of SPY. Learn more at www.spy-swimteam.org. ■

GSPC Advocates For Residents' Best Interests

An umbrella organization serving all of Severna Park, the Greater Severna Park Council (GSPC) was formed in 1959. Since then, GSPC members have worked to promote organized planning for zoning, sewage disposal, water supply, public roads, police protection, and schools; support actions to abate nuisances; assist local authorities toward good government; and aid the organization of community associations.

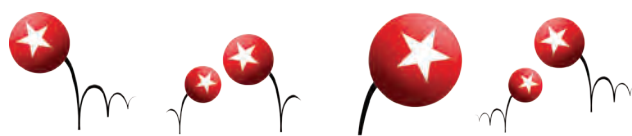

Since 2014, GSPC has been under the leadership of Maureen Carr-York. All Severna Park residents are encouraged to attend meetings, which take place on the second Tuesday of each month at 7:30pm. Meetings are currently being held via Zoom due to the ongoing pandemic.

Entrepreneurs Helped Transform Severna Park

From store owners to an ice cream salesman, business leaders in Severna Park spurred some of the growth that elevated Severna Park from a summertime destination to a developed community.

Mannie Hendler

From the turn of the 1900s through the 1960s, one of the most popular brands of ice cream in Maryland was undoubtedly Hendler's - "the velvet kind." The key proprietor, Lionel "Mannie" Hendler, got his start in the late 19th century, when he made his own ice cream from the leftover milk that he couldn't sell from his father's Baltimore-based dairy; by the time he was 26, he owned and operated a large factory plant at 1100 East Baltimore Street.

The story of Hendler's rise to success crossed paths with Severna Park when, in 1928, he made a deal with Oscar Hatton, one of the community's founders, to construct a clubhouse for the local nine-hole golf course. He would also use the land around that clubhouse to create another nine holes for the golf course, on the one condition that he could use the clubhouse anytime to throw large galas to entertain his Baltimore business associates. This was partially motivated by the fact that, despite his success, he wasn't allowed to join any of the golf clubs in Baltimore because he was Jewish.

Hendler's guests would travel via the Baltimore-Annapolis railway down to Boone Station and then make the trek down an unpaved country road to Hendler's estate. An account from one such guest describes swing dancing to a live orchestra and being treated to beer, sandwiches, coffee, corn, roast beef, pork and, of course, Hendler's ice cream.

After Hendler's death in 1965, his clubhouse, once the site of such lively galas, sat empty for roughly 40 years until it was bought and fully renovated by Scott and Donna Jay.

Hendler was a true innovator because he marketed his product specifically to pharmacists, knowing that customers would eat ice cream while waiting to get their prescriptions filled. As such, locals would often purchase Hendler's ice cream while waiting to pick up a prescription or cash a check at Dawson's General Store (also known as Dawson's Variety Store), just a stone's throw away from Severna Park's old rail station.

The Goska Family

When brothers Walter and Alex Goska bought their building from the Kleiss family in 1930, it was a general store. Goska Brothers Store specialized in fresh-cut meats and groceries, also selling kerosene, gasoline and feed. In 1933, the repeal of Prohibition meant that the Goska brothers could start selling beer and liquor.

As Severna Park developed over the years, the Goska's operation continued business, despite the advent of large grocery stores that displaced many small general stores. When Walter died in the 1950s, his wife, Helen, continued to run the shop with the help of her sister, Eva.

Kevin and Michael's father, Walter, nephew to Helen and Eva, relocated to Severna Park from Arbutus and helped run the store.

Walter was the one who helped solidify the store's place in the community, according to the history provided on the Goska's website. "Walter always greeted and thanked every customer that walked in the door," it recalls. "His appreciation for every customer was genuine and it was his practices that set the standard for Goska's renowned service."

As a third-generation owner and a resident of Severna Park, Kevin Sosnowski recognizes the importance of being a community-oriented business leader. "These customers are a part of our business, and they're the same people you see out and about," he said.

Clif Dawson

Clif Dawson, who opened the store in 1944, was a key proprietor in Severna Park's early days. Upon entering his store, patrons were greeted by either Clif, his brother Tom, or Skip Carr.

At the store, people could patronize the soda fountain or purchase nearly any staple item - candy, cards, newspapers or cigarettes. Around back, Dawson operated a country store and spirits shop.

Catastrophe struck in October 1957 when Dawson's Variety Store burned down. However, the next morning, a local newspaper ran a letter from Clif Dawson. He explained that he had just purchased the Severna Park Hardware Store (which the owner already wished to sell) and thus Dawson's would be open again for business that morning. The only further problem was that all the hardware supplies would need to be sold to make room for general store goods, so Dawson offered to sell all hardware items at 33 percent off.

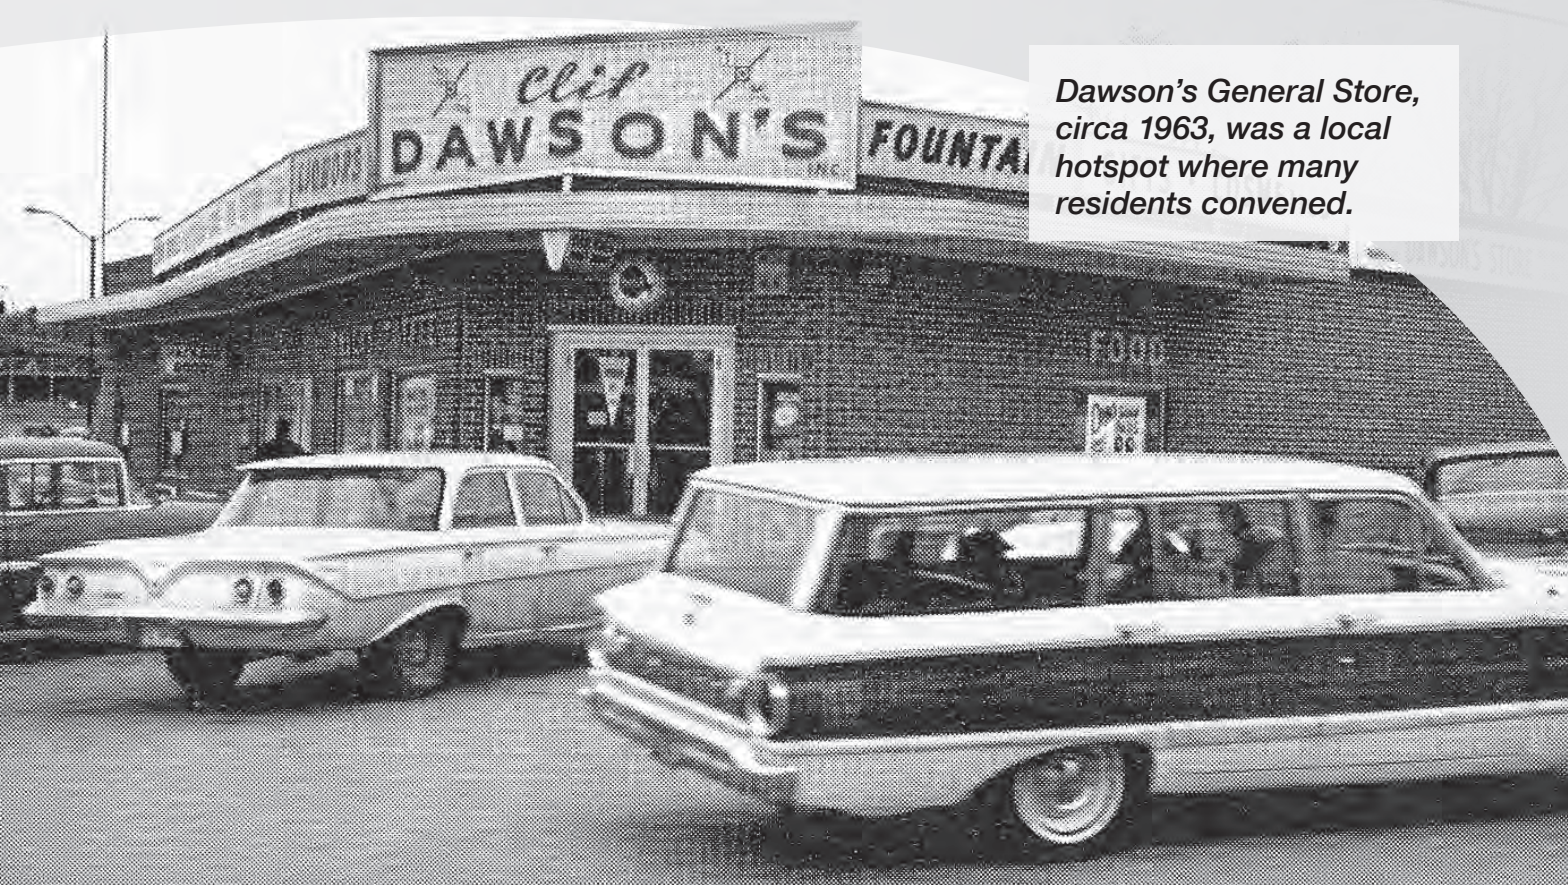

In 1984, Dawson died and his children later rented out the space to new owners. That transaction paved the way for Dawson's Liquors, which stands in place of that building today. Adam's Taphouse and Grille operates where Dawson's Country Store used to be.

The Barranco Family

In 1959, Bob Barranco and his wife, Catherine, moved from Baltimore to Severna Park and had a funeral home built along Ritchie Highway. At that time, Severna Park consisted mostly of farms and summer cottages and was just beginning to become a place for year-round living.

In 1960, before Barranco & Sons Funeral Home was even furnished, the Barrancos received their first call from a family experiencing a tragic loss. Their parents and relatives rushed to their aid by providing pieces of furniture from their own homes, creating a welcoming atmosphere for the new customers. Together, the young couple worked hard to build a reputation and business by providing respect and dignity to every family that walked into their establishment. The Barrancos raised four children, including James, John and Carolyn, in the funeral home's downstairs apartment.

During the mid-1980s, brothers James and John Barranco became licensed funeral directors and carried on the legacy created by their parents. A few years later, Carolyn Russell joined her brothers, assisting with office operations and accounting.

Dawson's General Store, circa 1963, was a local hotspot where many residents convened.

The Winkelmeyer Family

When Walter Winkelmeyer arrived in Severna Park in his 30s with his wife, Jane, by his side, the two of them had only a cigar box and $12. In those days, Severna Park was just a small stop between Baltimore and Annapolis along the B&A Railroad. Winkelmeyer set up shop and sold hardware and feed, as well as coal in the winter.

He saw the need for all the merchants to support one another, so he sought the help of Bob Barranco to help him form the Severna Park Chamber of Commerce. "It took dad more than 12 or 15 years to really feel established, and then it just burst," explained Betty Winkelmeyer Wells, Walter's daughter. "When dad brought Bob Barranco into his circle, there was no stopping these guys with what they were doing with Severna Park."

Wells took valuable lessons from her father that have helped her in her business dealings as owner of American Promotions and in managing the Winkelmeyer Plaza. "I appreciate the loyalty of the customers," she said. "They trust you. With that kind of trust comes some kind of expectations. You have one another's backs to strengthen the community."

Several other families played a role in Severna Park's early development. The Boro family operated a store at the corner of McKinsey Road and Baltimore Annapolis Boulevard in the early 1900s. The Dill family started a plumbing company and worked on private water systems before systems were taken over by the county in the 1940s. Arthur and Lydia Giddings owned several businesses (read more about the Giddings family in the neighborhoods story on page 49). ■

Winkelmeyer's Supply sold hardware, livestock feed and coal.

Black Families Helped Cultivate Severna Park's Early History

On the edge of the Severna Forest community – on the other side of a winding, single-lane road flanked by woods – is a neighborhood known by its inhabitants as Packtown. That area, named for a Black family that has lived there for generations, is just one of many Severna Park landmarks named for a host of families – the Whites, the Packs, the Days, the Jennings, the Cagers, the Johnsons, the Glenns, the Somervilles – who were vital to the early development of Severna Park.

One of the earliest Black community leaders was the Rev. George Asbury White. Born on March 5, 1896, White grew up on a farm by what is now the intersection of Whites Road and Ritchie Highway. His family picked fruits and vegetables from the fields and sold them in Annapolis, and as a 10-year-old boy, White helped Oscar Hatton, the developer of Severna Park.

“Mr. Hatton must have loved trees of all different types: spruce trees, holly trees, white pine trees and gum trees,” said Severna Park historian F. Scott Jay. “The catalpa trees that [White] planted with Oscar Hatton are still on Maple Avenue.”

If White and Hatton had anything in common, it was work ethic. As he got older, White bought a septic truck and ran his own business. He also cut the knee-high grass at the corner of Riggs Avenue and Evergreen Road, planted corn by Benfield Road and was a bus contractor. He worked day and night with those jobs, and he later cut railroad ties for the old Baltimore Annapolis Railroad.

While he maintained a close relationship to God, it wasn't until 1960, at the age of 64, that he became a pastor of Mount Tabor United Methodist Church in Crownsville. He had previously attended services at Wayman Good Hope A.M.E. Church and Asbury Town Neck United Methodist Church – two churches that have served as staples of the Black community in Severna Park for more than a century.

White lived to be 101 years old after having two successful marriages, seven children, 16 grandchildren and more than 40 great-grandchildren.

While the Whites are one family that worships at Asbury Town Neck, another is the Pack family. A descendent of the Pack family, Cyril Palmer grew up when schools were still segregated. His mother, Gladys Palmer, was instrumental in the conception of Jones Elementary. Cyril said there were about 150 black people living in his Jones Station neighborhood during his childhood.

“We didn't have any recreational place to play until [Jones Elementary] was built,” Cyril said. “There were no sidewalks, and the B&A train went through there ... Nobody in the community, in my early days, had running water. We had to go outside to use the toilet. But we had a tight-knit community.”

Delores Cager, also a Pack descendent, said that closeness was why so many Black parents raised their families in Severna Park. “Families loved together, they stayed together and they prayed together,” Cager said.

Left: Descendants of several Black families in Severna Park have carried on their traditions of love and prayer in their neighborhoods. Asbury Town Neck United Methodist has served as a community staple for more than 100 years.

Below: George White was one of the earliest local Black leaders. He worked with Oscar Hatton to develop the community.

Religion was essential, not only as a lifestyle, but also because many of the children were without TVs and other forms of entertainment. “Not having TV, we prayed every morning,” Cager recalled. “Before bed, the whole family came together and there might be three or four families in one room. A house might have eight or nine rooms.”

Cager said it's not uncommon to see large family reunions – a joyous scene that some passersby may have witnessed during a past summer while cruising along Hoyle Lane or a residential street near Packtown. “When Black folks have family reunions, it ends up being big,” Cager said. “We could have 200 or 300 people show up.”

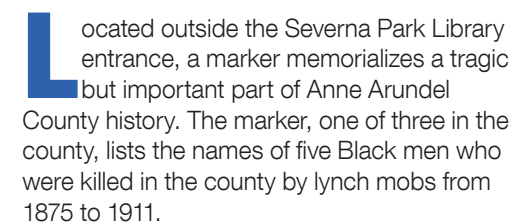

Black families continue their traditions today, worshipping in the same churches. Palmer attends Wayman Good Hope A.M.E. Church, which has been around for 131 years under various names. Its initial facility was built on 3 acres of land that now serves as Carpenter's Hill Cemetery in Round Bay. The congregation now gathers on Hoyle Lane.

Members of Asbury Town Neck United Methodist Church have prayed together since 1888, although the church name has changed several times. Members of the White, Pack, Jennings and Glenn families attend Asbury Town Neck.

Though there is still a strong foundation of leaders in the Black community, the population has dwindled because some descendants could not afford to stay in Severna Park. Still, there are lingering signs of the people who called Severna Park home – Whites Road, Jennings Road and Packtown.

“It's not what it used to be,” Palmer said. “But as long as [Black homeowners] are not selling out to developers, the future doesn't look bleak.” ■ said. "The reason why the Severna Park Library was chosen is so that future generations can be made aware of these lynchings."

tional tool to teach people about the untold stories of lynchings in Anne Arundel County.

“Silence for too long has facilitated the erasure of victims in Anne Arundel County,” said Elliot Spiller, an Equal Justice Initiative representative who attended the dedication ceremony in June 2021.

Carl Snowden, convenor of the Caucus of African American Leaders, agreed.

"Many residents are unaware of the fact that lynchings occurred in the county," Snowden ty's history.

“Kudos to [Connecting the Dots founder] Monica Lindsey, attorney Jennifer Haber, Skip Auld and County Executive Steuart Pittman for making this memorial a plaque reality,” Snowden said.

“Severna Park High School will find the Severna Park Library a great resource and the lynching memorial a necessary reminder of where racism can lead to,” he continued. “It is important that the victims of racial lynchings are remembered. We must remember the thousands who were lynched in America.”

The victims of lynchings in Anne Arundel County, as listed on the marker, are as follows:

- John Sims, killed in Annapolis on March 23, 1875
- George Briscoe, killed in Jacobsville on November 26, 1884
- Wright Smith, killed in Annapolis on October 5, 1898
- Henry Davis, killed in Annapolis on December 21, 1906
- King Johnson, killed in Brooklyn on December 23, 1911

SEVERNA PARK VOICE
SERVING OUR COMMUNITY SINCE 1981

From Beach Life To Bustling Communities

The Early Neighborhoods Of Severna Park

During Severna Park's early history, the town was viewed as more of a vacation destination than a place for year-round living. But as word got out about the tranquil area situated between two rivers, more and more neighborhoods started appearing in Severna Park.

Olde Severna Park

Olde Severna Park dates back to 1906 when Baltimore businessmen wanted to develop the land along the tranquil Severn River, specifically around Sullivan's Cove. The Boone railroad station - memorialized in the naming of Boone Trail - provided easy access to Baltimore and Annapolis.

Cape Arthur

The private beach area now known as Cape Arthur is believed to have been the site of Indian pow-wows where smoke signals could be easily seen from great distances.

One of Cape Arthur's most historical homes was "Magothy Hall," which was located on Beach Road. In 1906, the red brick house was purchased by Baltimore Sun columnist Folger McKinsey.

In 1914, the McKinseys sold the home to Anne McKim and moved to a log cabin they built on Cypress Creek. Magothy Hall was destroyed by fire in 1942. McKinsey died in 1950, but the elementary school on Arundel Beach Road was named after him. So was the main road from Ritchie Highway to Cape Arthur.

While McKinsey brought much recognition to Cape Arthur, it was Arthur and Lydia Giddings who developed the community. They started with a fruit and vegetable stand in the early 1930s in old Severna Park Village before opening a grocery store.

In what became the Carr Building on Baltimore Annapolis Boulevard, they opened the first self-serve store. They also opened the first hardware store and later a bakery.

In 1948, the Giddings purchased 12 acres of waterfront property from McKim, later adding 78 acres. Over the next several years, they and their son, Ronald, developed the lots with homes.

Top: Severna Park's early residents traveled by dirt roads.*

Middle: Because of the Magothy and Severn rivers, Severna Park became a popular summer destination before it was fully developed.*

Bottom: Summer cottages, like these on Maple Avenue, were enjoyed by Baltimore residents looking for a getaway.*

Jones

When the Jones community began around 1871, a store, owned and operated by the family of Peter Jones, was located just opposite Jones Station where trains received and discharged passengers. At its beginning, the community was mainly farmland.

In the early years, the Jones community used horse and buggy, farm wagons, and walked to get around on the dirt roads. The first school, which was located at Carpenters Hill where the community graveyard now resides, had one teacher, Victoria Coates. In 1914, the second school opened on the bottom floor of Mason Hall. When this school closed, students attended Town Neck until a third school was opened in 1927. Given to the county by the Wayman Good Hope A.M.E. Church, the school consisted of a library and a coatroom, had outside toilets and was heated by a coal stove.

At one time, Jones consisted of stores, restaurants, a gas station, barbershop, ice house, bars, dairies, schools and churches. It had many homes, which were owned by Black families.

Manhattan Beach

In the 1880s, Alfred Stinchcomb, owner of 226 acres of what became Manhattan Beach, occupied a farmhouse at the junction of the Magothy River and Dividing Creek. The Stinchcombs grew fruits and vegetables for shipment to markets in Baltimore and Annapolis.

The Magothy became a bustling waterway in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, with Ferry Point at the juncture of Mill and Dividing Creeks serving as a port for scores of schooners and steamships, which plied the river and Chesapeake Bay with passengers and cargoes of fish, seafood and crops.

Residential development here began in 1921 after George Stinchcomb sold 177 acres of the farm to J. Brooks Melchor of Baltimore's Ashburton Realty for $37,000. The land was subdivided into residential lots, usually 70 to 100 feet wide. Melchor named the nascent community Manhattan Beach when he found an Indian axe and other artifacts, which reminded him of the Indian name Manhattan.

Many lots sold off quickly in the 1920s as city residents, seeking relief from summer heat, built cottages near the inviting waters. Crystal Beach on the Magothy near Cypress Creek evolved as a popular shore-side park complete with picnic grounds, row boating, a Ferris wheel, waterslides and pony rides.

Round Bay

Around 1906, Round Bay was owned by the Maryland Development and Realty Company, which ran a tourist business seeking to attract people in Baltimore to visit Round Bay. In a report titled "Anne Arundel County's Beach Resorts," author Mandy Melton compiled old advertisements and newspaper excerpts to uncover details about early life in the area.

Citing the Severna Park Small Area Plan, Melton said, "The resort had a waterfront hotel, boardwalk, dance pavilion and bathhouse, and was accessed from a station on a spur line of the B&A Railroad." It also had "athletic carnivals" involving foot races and diving contests. ■

Arnold's Bygone Tourist Attraction

A wooden roller coaster once dipped and dove over the waters of the Magothy at Mago Vista Beach, a tourist attraction that also featured an alligator pond, an ornate ballroom and dance pavilions.

Now known for its upscale townhomes, the tranquil land in Mago Vista Beach was once a tourist destination where visitors came to observe alligators, ride the rickety roller coaster over the Magothy River and dance the night away in jitterbug contests in the grand ballroom.

From its opening in 1928 through the 1970s, the recreational area underwent a transformation from local beach to a premier — and at one time, controversial — attraction.

Robert Crisp Benson, who built and resided in homes throughout the area in the early 1900s, and his son Harold opened two bathhouses and a dance pavilion along the shoreline and began hosting picnics, dance contests and other festivities on the grounds, according to Marianne Taylor's "My River Speaks: The History and the Lore of the Magothy River."

As time went on, the beach grew into a popular venue for families and church groups, which used the facilities because of the strict no-alcohol-or-gambling policies that governed the grounds throughout its existence.

When the original facilities were destroyed by an electrical fire caused by high waters during the historic hurricane of 1933, the Benson family rebuilt. Rather than protect themselves from the same waters that had just destroyed their property, the Bensons embraced them: The new dance pavilion, named Marine Pier, jutted out over the Magothy. High dives, boat and canoe rentals, and a water slide attracted visitors who came to enjoy some of the cleanest swimming waters in the area. Later, they built a jetty and trucked in sand to create a beach and swimming area large enough to accommodate the growing crowds.

As the popularity of Mago Vista grew, so too did its amusements. For children, the Bensons added a carousel, a miniature train ride called "Toonerville Trolley" and, most remarkably, a wooden roller coaster that dipped, climbed and dove out over the Magothy. For adults, four eight-room cottages were built to house overnight visitors from Baltimore. Additional picnic areas and halls were added, including a large ballroom with a sparkling glass dome. The Bensons also reached an agreement with the Baltimore Zoo wherein the family would purchase alligators to display within a fenced-in pond on the premises. When the gators grew 7 or 8 feet long, the family traded them back to the zoo for smaller ones.

As Mago Vista Beach's popularity grew, so too did the controversy surrounding it. Despite being open to the public, the establishment barred Black families, and signs on the gates surrounding the facility read "Gentiles Only." Protests took place outside the gates and mounting pressure compelled the family to eventually change the name to Mago Vista Beach Club.

The Bensons began selling parcels of the property in 1964, perhaps because the family's patriarch no longer wanted to exhaust himself managing the grounds; perhaps because the Chesapeake Bay Bridge, which opened in 1952, had unveiled the attractions of the Eastern Shore to many of Mago Vista's visitors; or perhaps because, like the Saturday night jitterbug contests staged in its ballroom and the "Gentiles Only" signs that hung on its gates, the once-popular destination simply belonged to an era that no longer existed.

By 1968, Mago Vista Beach Club was entirely owned by Capri Estates, which soon closed the facility, demolished or sold the amusements, and began building new homes there in 1973.

To read more about the history of Mago Vista Beach, read Marianne Taylor's "My River Speaks: The History and the Lore of the Magothy River" and Alberta Stornetta's "Arnold Maryland and Neighbors on the Broadneck." ■
